HOLD GRADY AND NEALY IN AUTO WRECK CASE

6000 PEOPLE HEAR REV. MR. M'LENDON IN SUNDAY SERMON

Grady Out Under $5,000 Bond; Dossie P. Traylor Was Killed In Turn-Over

Miss Lena Williams Was Not Seriously Injured, Hospital Authorities Say

H. J. Nealy, 23 years old, of Summertown, Tenn., is in jail and Harold Grady, local youth, is under $5,000 bond as a result of the death of Dossie P. Traylor, 18 years old, in an automobile accident near the old country club on the Kinston highway about 10:20 Sunday night.

Grady suffered a broken arm and Miss Lena Williams was badly cut about one leg. Nealy was driving the car at the time it turned over and pinned young Traylor underneath. Grady was standing on the running board on the right hand side. Nealy escaped without a scratch.

Nealy and Grady were held for the grand jury at the next session of Superior court under instructions from the coroner's jury, which considered the case under the direction of Coroner T. E. Robinson yesterday morning. Late yesterday Nealy, a well-mannered young man, was wiring friends in Tennessee in an effort to raise bond.

Evidence introduced before the coroner's inquest was to the effect that the accident in which Young Traylor was killed and Grady and Miss Williams injured was the culmination of a wild auto ride. Four witnesses testified that the car, a Ford roadster, was giving chase to a Hudson sedan and making a rate of estimated at between 35 and 45 miles an hour. It was said that Grady was drinking and that he was loudly cursing at the party driving the Hudson.

Evidence as to who was driving the Hudson car was not given in the coroner's inquest.

The accident, according to the story told by Nealy happened when he slowed up, because he was blinded by an approaching car, and the right rear wheel dropped off the pavement. Traylor lived about an hour after he was carried to the hospital.

Death must have resulted from internal injuries, for there was only a small bruise visible on the body—a small circular black spot near the right shoulder blade. Hospital authorities say that Miss Williams will be out in a short time.

The following made up the jury which investigated the case:

E. E. Griffin, E. C. Denmark, Herman Brewer, C. H. Martin, Sam Eason, and B. A. Grant.

The verdict was as follows: "That Paul Traylor came to his death from an accident from a Ford roadster recklessly and dangerously driven by H. J. Nealy, aided and abetted by Harold Grady."

We think Grady as guilty as Nealy and recommend that both H. J. Nealy and Harold Grady, be held under sufficient bond for the Grand Jury of the next Superior Court, and that Sheriff Grant be instructed to hold these parties in jail until bond is given.

KIWANIS CLUB HAD CHICK'N FRY

Met at New Country Club and Featured Song Fest

The Kiwanians entertained their ladies at an old fashioned chicken fry last night at the New Country club.

It has been the custom of the club to entertain ladies once each year at some form of outdoor meeting, and in this instance the club took advantage of an invitation to use the club grounds, and take to stage their picnic outing.

Many of the members and guests gathered at the club in time to enjoy a swim in the lake before the cook, "Adam Scott," sounded the gang to gather around the specially prepared tables where the delicious viands were arrayed. After every one had "done themselves proud" the President Kiwanian Taylor who had previously extended a welcome to all present, turned the program over to Kiwanian Miller chairman for the evening, and "Chas," after taking one good look at the gathering that faced him, decided that everybody wanted to sing; accordingly he called the two newest Kiwanettes to the imaginary stage and the song fest was on.

We might say right here that the Kiwanettes above referred to have on previous occasions demonstrated their delightful talents, before the Kiwanians of this city, and we might also say—but that's another story.

Kiwanian Chas. B. "Souza" Miller, himself directed the singers during their hour of song.

The meeting broke up, only after it became too dark to continue the program longer.

Deputy Rhodes and Officer Lancaster Clear up Cases

Three out of the seven instances in which homes or firms were entered last week were solved with the confession Sunday morning of Alfred Harris, colored. Harris implicated Coleman Smith, colored, in his confession. Both Harris and Smith were bound over to Superior court under charges of store breaking and larceny in city court yesterday morning.

Deputy Sheriff "Chink" Rhodes learned that Harris had changed a $10 bill at a store in Webbtown. Deputy Rhodes knew that Harris was not a caster, he went to Harris' home early in the morning, he went to Harris, home early Sunday morning.

Upon questioning Harris, according to officers, confessed to entering the Smith Hardware Company on August 2, to entering Handley-Stallings on August 4, and to entering Farley's department store on August 5.

Several flash lights, a quantity of cartridges and a thirty-two rifle were recovered by the officers and identified by the hardware people.

The question of who the negro was who entered the home of Mrs. H. H. Hobbs last Friday afternoon, of who entered the home of Griff Porter and stole some small change, a pistol and a dinner ring Saturday, and the question of who entered the Parrott and Green Shoe Store remain unsolved. Officers are working on these cases.

STONE ATTACKS GOV M'LEAN IN ADDRESS

Says Governor and Grist Unfair to State Labor Faction

Salisbury, Aug. 9.—(AP)—An attack on Governor McLean and Frank Grist, commissioner of labor and printing as being unfriendly to labor featured the annual address of C. P. Barringer, President of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, late today.

The governor has been "eminently fair" in his remarks," the speaker said pointing from the Governor's address to the legislature. "But when we review the acts of his administration we find this boasted fairness weighed in the balance and found wanting."

The Governor, Mr. Barringer said has eliminated representatives of labor from the directorate of a number of state institutions on which they were appointed by former Governor Morrison when their time expired.

He also criticized the action of the governor in the recent survey of women in industry saying there was no reason why the state should not have the agencies set up the federal government to make the survey.

"North Carolina tax payers contribute to the support of those capable and impartial officials and are entitled to their service."

"There are only two laws relating to women in industry on the statute books of our state," he said. "And this lack of protection for our working women makes all the more vivid the need of laws regulating such matters and the collection of impartial data."

The present commissioner of labor and printing, he said has been "openly antagonistic to the labor movement" by publishing misleading articles in the state press in regard to wages in the dominant industries.

EPIGRAMS

One trouble with our homes today is that we have too many limousines and not enough milk cows.

The home is the fountain—the spring from whence must come the life-blood of Americanism.

We value things in this country on the basis of their durability. The human soul is immortal.

Broken lives and broken homes seem to be inseparably connected.

Strength in your children is but the reproduction of your own.

School teachers receive less pay for what they do, and more for what they don't do, than any other set of people on earth.

The angels asked Abraham where is Sarah, thy wife? He said simply, "She has gone to the next party."

There will never rise higher than the general life of its people.

There is nothing in society just what there has been in the home.

If you think too little, you will be sure to talk too much.

N. C. WILL MAKE MILLION BALES

July Rains Saved Cotton Crop in State Says Report

Raleigh, Aug. 9.—(AP)—While less than a month and a half ago North Carolina's cotton crop appeared to fall nothing short of complete failure today with 170 per cent conditional report for August indications are that the state will produce more than 8 million bales. This prediction is based on a study of the fields of 1,000 farmers in the state made by the crop reporting service of the United States Department of Agriculture. Despite a ragged stand the rains of late July came just as the crop was beginning to bloom, points out the service, and since that time the plant has done more growing and blooming.

This year's crop will be appreciably later than those of other seasons, however, it is estimated that the first grown boll would be on an August 9 and will open about September 1.

The best stands are found in the northeastern areas of the state while the poorest conditions exist along the South Carolina border, extending up into Cumberland county.

Preached on "Spiritual Baptism" in Afternoon and "Ten Commandments" at Night

Fully six thousand people heard Rev. E. F. McLendon in the two services at Mount Olive Sunday. The two powerful sermons started Clarence Mack into his second week in the nearby town.

In the afternoon service Mack preached on "The Baptism of the Holy Spirit," and showed what America needs today is a real spiritual rebirth of the old time religion. In the morning the evangelist made a call for all those who had made a call for a new start, to have experience of the baptism of the spirit in their lives to come forth and for fifteen minutes he was shaking hands with the many who came forward.

One woman came all the way from Memphis, Tenn., she wrote in a letter to Mack in order to be present at the services. Clarence Mack, of Greensboro, Kinston, Palm Springs, Raleigh, and Greenville were present in the afternoon session.

J. H. Jones, in charge of the singing, announced a "booting" service to be given by the children between the ages of 6 and 14 years of age, late in the afternoon. He requested parents to allow the children to gather this morning at 9:30 for a practice period.

Following Sunday night's service Mack left for his home in Summerville, South Carolina. He will return to Mount Olive this morning.

The Sunday evening service was as follows:

TEN COMMANDMENTS

The Bible is starting in its annunciation of sin. In the fifth Chapter of Daniel is an account of the feast of Belshazzar, one of the greatest and most wonderful kings of ancient times; and the story of that feast, as told by the prophet Daniel, is one of the most wonderful pieces of Biblical history in the entire Old Testament.

I want to say to you here tonight, you men and women of Mt. Olive, that I have the same authority to stand here and say to you that you have been weighed in the balance of God as Daniel had to stand there that night at the feast of Belshazzar and that proclamation to that godless king. I don't care if you are a leading citizen, and have received the approval of the people; that doesn't weigh an iota in the divine balance. I don't care if you are a social leader. God cares nothing about the follies and fancies of society. I don't care if you are a scholar, if you have taken diplomas from a dozen colleges, the question, and the only question is, can you measure up to the standard God has established?

I know a preacher is ridiculed whenever he assaults old customs, but do you suppose I care anything for your ridicule? It is God's approval, and the approval of the public.

What did public opinion do in the days of Dr. Jenner? Dr. Jenner was the man who discovered the principle of vaccine virus, and by the use of vaccination they have reduced the number of smallpox fatalities from eight in 100 to four in 100. I would rather have smallpox than typhoid fever or pneumonia. If it were not for the name it has, you would think nothing of smallpox. Which was Jenner or public opinion? They scoffed at Jenner and said he was crazy, but vaccination did the work, and they are not prepared to build monuments.
