

GRAND JURY RECOMMENDS NEW JAIL FOR COUNTY

FREMONT GETS NEXT WAYNE COUNTY JUBILEE EVENT

Judge Harris Will Ask Board Commissioners See That The Suggestions Are Acted Upon

Report Not Usual Routine Record; Must Cease Make Parking and Hitching Lot Out of Courthouse Square—Keep Offices Neater; Stock Cruelly Treated.

Recommendation that a new and modern jail be constructed for Wayne county, that the contractors grading the road between Newton Grove and Grantham store be instructed to cease mistreating stock, the practice of making a combination parking place and hitching lot out of the courthouse square, be ended, that certain offices in the county court house be kept in a neater order. These were high spots in the report of the grand jury submitted to Judge Harris in Wayne county superior court here yesterday afternoon. A. G. Scott, foreman of the jury presented the report.

Judge Harris commended the jury for the efficiency and thoroughness with which the county's business had been attended to and spoke especially of the recommendations concerning the need for a new jail. He said that he had not mentioned the need for a new jail for Wayne in his charge to the grand jury because he did not think it his business to tell the county how to run its affairs. Since the matter had been mentioned in the report, he continued, he wished to point out the truth of the recommendations of the jury. He instructed Clerk of Court J. B. Hooks to prepare a copy of the grand jury report for transmission to the board of county commissioners and declared that he would advise the commissioners that it would be well to see that the suggestions were carried out.

The alleged mistreatment of stock by the company doing the grading on the Grantham-Newton Grove road was not mentioned in the written report of the grand jury, but Foreman Scott reported that four members of the jury had investigated complaints of mistreatment of animals and found them to be true. Upon this Judge Harris instructed Sheriff Grant to advise the contractors that the tubular practices should be discontinued and that if the conditions alleged were not remedied a warrant be issued.

The report of the grand jury was more out of the ordinary routine than any report submitted in recent sessions of the court. Conditions in and about the courthouse came in for special attention.

The report is as follows: We have inspected the courthouse and find it in the following condition: Sheriff's office, Clerk's office and register of deeds office in A-one condition. The other offices should be kept much neater. The colored lavatory is in bad condition and should be improved. We find that the third floor of the court house is very dirty and should be cleaned up as the court house is a public building as it is visited by numbers daily. We recommend a telephone be installed in the court room.

We have inspected the common jail of Wayne county and find same to be clean and well kept so far as it can be. We find that the jail is too small to care for prisoners as they should be cared for. The department for white women is entirely too small and close. We recommend a new and modern jail for Wayne county.

We have inspected the health department and find that it is deserving of approval for efficient manner in which it transacts business. However, this department is in need of additional office equipment and other equipment so that the department can

NEW FLOODS ARE RISING

Not Expected to Reach Former Record and Some Refugees Return Home

NEW ORLEANS, June 8.—(P)—While families are leaving their homes in some Arkansas, Missouri, and Illinois sections before the threat of the new flood wave, repatriation of the flooded Louisiana territory continued despite that the new crest will prolong inundation over vast areas of the main basin.

A steamer left Baton Rouge today with 200 refugees who are returning to their homes. Other persons are reported leaving the concentrating centers in two other towns although in one camp only a handful of the original list of the refugees now remain.

Tentative plans are under way for the demobilization of the United States government boats which have been serving as packets bearing food and supplies to the camps in central and north Louisiana. The service will be maintained by private boats under lease by the Red-Cross officials said.

Newspapermen were not the only notables at the alumni meeting yesterday. While former Senator Lee S. Overman and F. M. Simmons, alumni members of the board re-elected, were not able to be present, such distinguished men as Frank A. Linn, United States attorney for the western district; John H. Small, a former member of congress, and State Senator John S. Hargett, of Jones county, were among the notables to be seen on the campus yesterday. There were many others, of course, but none stood out more than these and Col. John F. Brown, the newly elected chairman of the board of trustees.

Director Moss Gives Reasons

Delivers Address at Wayne County Jubilee Celebration Wednesday

A good price for the 1927 crop of tobacco is expected by E. G. Moss, director of the State-Federal experiment station at Oxford. He told Wayne County farmers so in the course of an address on tobacco culture at the Wayne County Jubilee yesterday.

Mr. Moss believes that this year's prices will be about the same as last years because on April first the country had on hand only 101,000,000 pounds more of tobacco than it had on hand at the same time a year ago. He believes that before July this surplus will have been used up and the country will be in practically the same statistical position as it was a year ago when the market began to open. He cites the fact that 94 million pounds of weed were exported during the first quarter of the year.

Wayne county should be producing $200 to the acre for tobacco instead of only $177 Mr. Moss insisted. The average per acre for the state is $175.

To increase the paying power per acre, Mr. Moss urged more attention to the quality of the color, of the burning quality and of the aroma of the tobacco.

He said he believed that 90 per cent of the farmers in Eastern North Carolina planted their tobacco too far apart in the rows and plowed the rows too far apart. Tobacco planted about 12 inches apart was found by experiment at Oxford to pay better than 24 or 30 inches, he said. Loss of tobacco under the ground and rotting the moisture, he said.

A ridge cultivation of tobacco instead of flat cultivation of the weed was declared to have its advantages.

HOODED BAND IS REPORTED

Investigation of Information Received Fails to Authenticate Story

Did several members of a hooded band—reported dressed as Ku Klux Klansmen—visit a section of North Dakey street last evening?

"Several klansmen, wearing white hoods and robes, have just turned the corner of Dakey and Beach street," was the word telephoned to The News at 9:55 last evening.

"Who are you," the informant was asked.

"I don't want to say," was the reply.

Within five minutes representatives of The News were at the point designated. No signs of hooded bands or of the disturbance which might have followed such a visit were to be seen.

"Have you heard anything about a hooded band being in this part of the city," a man seated on his porch reading a paper was asked.

"I just got back from church," he replied, "but the folks say here that three hooded and robed men just turned the corner there."

The house pointed out was dark. No signs of life. On the opposite side of the street were two men and a woman—residents of the section—holding a friendly conversation. They denied emphatically that any hooded men had been seen in the section. One of the men said that a band could not have come up the street without him having seen it, because he said he had been standing at the point for several minutes.

CITY OF PEKING IS AGAIN QUIET

Withdrawal of American Embassy Is Not Expected for Present

PEKING, June 8.—(AP)—Last week's uneasiness among foreigners in this city has abated considerably and it is not improbable that the American Legation will leave the city in the near future.

A majority of Americans remain in the city which is orderly and well policed. It is felt that there is a minimum danger from international disorders since the anti-foreigner riots existed in South China never has gained a real foothold here. Although some British residents are moving into the legation quarter and the Japanese are sending many women and children home, the Americans and other foreigners generally are sticking to hermetical life in the city.

Although it is known that the American military authorities favor removal of the Peking legation to the coast whereas the diplomatic representatives feel such a move might be misinterpreted, advice from Washington indicates it is felt that as a wholesale evacuation of Peking would be necessary only if the situation should threaten to entrap foreigners as in the Boxer uprising of 1900.
