Nash Deputy Fears Violence in Case Accused Man is Taken During Night

NASHVILLE, N. C., August 1.—(AP)—Believing that Tom Bradshaw, negro, who is alleged to have attacked a 12-year old girl near Bailey, early Sunday morning, is hiding in a woods near Springhope, officers and several hundred men tonight had surrounded the section. They were heating the underbrush in hopes of taking the negro, despite the fact that a heavy rain fell late today and the outdoor work was disagreeable.

The sheriff and his deputies were at the man hunt scene in case of violence, which they feared, would be wrought upon the negro if captured. Every effort will be made by officers to get the negro to safety in case he is taken, the sheriff said.

Possemen found Bradshaw this morning in a deserted house near a lumber camp at Bailey where he had stopped, trying to rid himself of his handcuffs, which were placed on him when arrested Sunday. He escaped then and at the lumber camp house, he again bolted, eluding several shots fired in his direction and disappeared.

With bloodhounds, he was traced this evening to Vicks Ford 6 miles south of Spring Hope, but the trail was lost when apparently he entered the water. The posse learning again of a possible location of Bradshaw, tonight resumed the chase with every indication that the search would continue.

WILSON, August 1.—Nash county authorities are searching for Tom Bradshaw, negro, who last Saturday night attempted a criminal attack on a 13-year old daughter of Paul Karp, white farmer who resides about 4 miles from Bailey. The negro was trailed by blood hounds secured from Smithfield and was captured and taken into custody by an officer from whom he escaped while enroute to the county jail at Nashville.

No trace of the back has been found since he escaped, handcuffed and bareheaded from the officer, but officers are conducting a diligent search throughout the entire county in an effort to apprehend him. Officers in this and several adjoining counties are also the lookout for the man.

Reports reaching this city are to the effect that Bradshaw went to the Earl House last Saturday night, picked up the sleeping girl from her bed in a sheet and carried her off to the woods. The girl awakened and was frightened. She screamed for help and fought off the attack of her assailant who failed to accomplish his purpose.

Fleeing from the negro captor she fled from the woods and told of the attack. Officers were notified and a telephone message from Smithfield brought bloodhounds to the scene quickly. The hounds were put on the negro's trail and he was captured by a crowd of citizens and officers and was turned over to Constable Walter Bowell, who started off for the jail at Nashville with him.

Enroute to the jail the officers stopped his car for a moment and the negro, who was handcuffed, leaped from the vehicle and fled into the darkness. The officer told of the escape and blood hounds were pressed into service again but they were tired and worn out from their first chase and refused to trail the black.

CITY FATHERS HOLD MEETING

May Give Additional Lots at Willow Dale By Abolishing Unused Drives

The possibility of creating a number of additional lots in Willow Dale cemetery loomed last evening with the appointment of a committee from the city aldermen to investigate needed improvements at the cemetery. It is thought that additional lots may be made by abolishing a number of small drives now laid out in the cemetery but relatively unused for traffic. Matter of better drainage and other improvements will also be considered. Families living between the city limits and Oleanor avenue in Edgewood will get the benefits of the regular city collection of garbage under a favorable report made by a committee to the board last night. There will be a charge of $15 per family per year, payable semi-annually in advance.

The committee reported to investigate the feasibility of paving Center street for a few blocks, approaching the plant decided not to recommend the paving just now. This report was made because it was indicated that other paving may be constructed for within the not-distant future and it would be cheaper to contract for both projects at one time.

Murderer of Fremont Boy Dies Tomorrow For Crime

Unless a last-minute clemency order from Governor McLean saves him, George Frank Bazemore, negro, will tomorrow pay with his life for having taken the life of 15-year old Gordon Yelverton, son of Banks Yelverton, of Fremont.

Mr. Yelverton told The News yesterday afternoon that he was going to Raleigh today but he did not intend to witness the execution. He said he would be accompanied to Raleigh by D. B. Peacock of Fremont. He doubted that the latter would care to witness the execution.

Bazemore was twice convicted of having murdered the young Fremont boy. The first time the Simpson court granted him a new trial because Judge Stack had allowed the clerk of court receive the verdict from the jury. Judge Cramer in Greene county court several months ago passed sentence the second time, the jury having found a first degree verdict. Eight Thousand Complete Vaccination For Typhoid

While eight thousand Wayne county people have completed typhoid vaccinations in Wayne county this season, the Wayne county board of health is not satisfied with the record but is renewing the campaign to interest all unvaccinated in the county to act now to protect themselves from the disease.

Corbett, health officer, in a statement issued yesterday, called attention to the epidemic now raging in western county and made it clear that those driving from point to point by automobile or planning a vacation should take double precautions to protect themselves. The statement by Dr. Corbett follows:

The health department wishes to issue a warning to all vacationists, motorists and other folk who ride around over the county drinking water here and there and yonder. Take your typhoid vaccine now, better be safe than sorry. Typhoid germs lurk by the billion in thousands of unsuspected pools, springs and other watering places. MANAGER SILK MILL ARRIVES

Plant Will Be In Operation by October 1; Prospects are Bright

The Goldsboro Artistic Narrow Web Company, manufacturers of silk novelties, brand, brand labels and the like, will hardly begin operation by October 1. It was learned yesterday, Machinery in the plant, located near the Cotton Storage Warehouse, is now being installed under the direction of F. Zecha, Jr., general manager.

Between now and October 1 will be required, it is believed, to install the forty-four looms, and "line" them into first class operating condition. Labor will be employed from Goldsboro sources to operate the plant, it was said.

Mr. Zecha has for years been connected with his father in the silk novelty business in New Hampshire and retains an interest in two plants at Keene, New Hampshire. If the plant here pays as it should, it was indicated that these two plants may be moved to Goldsboro. The forty-four looms which will be placed in operation here on about October 1, were looms which the New Hampshire companies had in stock, but for which they were unable to secure employment to operate.

Mr. and Mrs. Zecha arrived in Goldsboro late Saturday afternoon, having made the trip by automobile. Mr. Zecha visited in Goldsboro to survey the situation here several months ago and was favorably impressed. Mr. and Mrs. Zecha have taken a home in Edgewood.

On the way south, Mr. Zecha was quoted as saying, opportunity was had to book enough orders for the product of the mill here to take its entire output for several months, had the mill been in position to offer its goods immediately.

BRADFORD, PA. AIRPORT NAMED EMERY FIELD

BRADFORD, Pa.—Surveying of a site for the newest airport in Pennsylvania is under way under the direction of Maj. John Stewart. It will be known as Emery Field and is expected to formally open shortly.

As soon as he has completed the high school, the state will take him and educate him so that he will be able to take care of himself. Dr. Bird the state doctor, has already begun to talk to him about things which he might do and has named over twenty or more jobs in which he might make a living.

Richard's diving feats, the indomitable fearlessness which he showed, caused crowds to gather and continually there were exclamations of surprise and amazement that a boy without legs and only one arm could name himself as an athlete.

"When I see a fellow like that doing things like that, I just naturally think of myself as not being any better than I am," said a Bladen county farmer who had watched big-eyed boy disporting himself in the water.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillburn have one son older than Richard. He is a well formed boy without a physical defect. Medical experts say that the birth of a child without legs and with only one arm is exceedingly rare in the records of the sciences.

Did Not Enter School Until Seven and A Half Year Grades in Two Years

WAS BORN WITHOUT LEGS AND WITHOUT LEFT ARM

Liken Water and Demonstrated Diving Prowess at White Lake; Crowds Amazed

Born legless and without a left arm, Richard Hillburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hillburn of Hamlet, at nine years of age is farther advanced in school than most physically perfect children and possesses accomplishments which many a boy of normal body might envy.

Goldsboro people at White Lake Sunday saw Richard dive time after time from a four foot pier into the water and recover bottles at the bottom, displaying a control over his body which was remarkable.

Richard was born without legs and with only a nub of a left arm. The skin is a perfectly formed whole, the back of your hand. The left arm is only a nub about four inches long and with no signs of a hand.

Extending a hand from the pier, Mr. Hillburn grasped the submerged right arm which Richard held from the water and pulled him onto the pier. Prior to making a dive, Richard adjusted himself to the position he desired on the pier by placing his one well-formed arm and hand on the plank and, with this as a pivot, edging his body to the edge. Always carefully at a point in the water which he cared to reach, the boy dived forward. Time after time he repeated the performance.

No other child of the age at the Lake displayed the same fearlessness in the water which he showed.

"He was born that way," said his father in discussing the boy. "He did not start to school until he was seven. Now he is nine and is in the fourth grade. That is two grades a year, you see."

"We live right on the school road so it is easy to get him to his classes. Every report he brings home shows a hundred for the lesson. He likes to do anything drawing and writing, and I just wish that you could see some of the work he does. And I am not just saying this because he is my boy either."

Richard's diving feats, the indomitable fearlessness which he showed, caused crowds to gather and continually there were exclamations of surprise and amazement that a boy without legs and only one arm could name himself as an athlete.

"When I see a fellow like that doing things like that, I just naturally think of myself as not being any better than I am," said a Bladen county farmer who had watched big-eyed boy disporting himself in the water.
