WHY BLOCKADE LOOKS BLUISH

Deputies Learn Something In Taking Still In Indian Springs

Wayne county officers in making a raid in Indian Springs township, not far from the old Walker Mill discovered why some blockade liquor being turned out now has a 'bluish' tint. It is because the concoction is distilled from surface water, muddy and dishwashy, is dipped from the surface hold. At least they say so.

In the last raid they came upon four men running a 40 gallon capacity outfit by lantern light. Deputy Sheriff Carl Smith was alone when he discovered the eerie light shining through the thickets and advanced upon the place. Deputies J. C. Kornegay and H. B. Gardner were some distance away at the time.

The men running the plant fled into the darkness and made good their escape. A small quantity of liquor had run from the worm into a five gallon demijohn. Six barrels of beer were poured out.

Water for the "run" was being obtained from a shallow hole which had been dug at a low place in the woods. It was muddy, brackish water, but it was being used in the mash, deputies said.

The News, returned yesterday from Asheville, where he attended a two-day session of the Association of Carolina Circulation Managers held at the Vanderbilt hotel. Daily newspapers of North and South Carolina and Tennessee sent their circulation managers to the convention.

While in Asheville, the delegates were entertained by the city, by the Asheville Times, and by the Asheville Citizen.

"They did give us a good time. There isn't any joke about that," said Mr. King yesterday.

"And I believe I learned a number of things that will help us give the subscribers to The News better service."

"One point which all emphasized was that the time has gone when a newspaper can be distributed to those who fail to renew their subscription when the paid up time expires. Let your circulation lists show exactly the paid up business, all agreed. This is a thing The News has striven for several years and it is a policy which will be conducted without change."

ZERO HOUR OF FAIR AT HAND

All Indications Point to Creditable Exposition of Wayne's Products

The "zero hour" is close to hand at the Wayne County Fair. Only a few more hours remain until the gates are officially opened for the annual exposition of the Wayne County Agricultural Association, which will be held here from October 25 to 27.

All in haste and bustle at the grounds, with exhibitors and concessionaires in a last minute rush to get their exhibits in place for the opening. Secretary W. C. Denmark has notified all superintendents, exhibitors and concessionaires, everything must be in readiness by not later than noon, Tuesday, October 25.

A well rounded fair in all departments will be thrown open to the public. In fact, visitors will find so many complete exhibits, that they will constitute "fairs within a fair." The liberal premiums offered by the management for educational displays has resulted in such wide interest that record-breaking lists of exhibits have been reported by nearly every department superintendent.

The livestock show, as usual, will be a big one. Stock shows, prancing horses, fat pigs and cackling chickens will vie with one another for popular attention.

Women and children will be especially interested in the exhibitions of boys and girls club work. They will find that many of the juvenile exhibitors have exhibits good enough to win prizes from their elders in open classification.

As good as the educational features are they will not overshadow the entertainment featuring professional harness horse races, yanderwe fireworks and a big carnival will be presented.

SWAMP PEAT IS SAID SALEABLE

Geologist Says Has More Faith In This Idea Than in Oil Production

RALEIGH, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The Dixie Swamp, lying partly in Virginia and partly in North Carolina, has enough peat to be of commercial value, says H. J. Bryson, state geologist.

In the North Carolina portion, deposits of peat are found in Pamlico, Pasquotank, Currituck and Currituck counties.

Just on the outskirts of Elizabeth City there is an area of good grade of peat averaging from 14 to 18 feet thick. In Craven county there are deposits of peat that were worked from 1918 to 1925, in Sampson County, near the main line of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad from Wilmington to Fayetteville, is a large acreage of peat.

In 1918 North Carolina became a producer of peat for the first time. The production so far has come from Craven county. In 1918 the Atlantic Humus Company, New Bern, was a producer and in 1919 and 1920 the Pho-Pho Gorm Manufacturing Company, New Bern, was a producer.

Air Mail Carried Over 6,000 Miles

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The first time in history residents of the Argentine capital today were able to read letters and newspapers ten days after they were mailed in Europe, a saving of from 8 to 9 days over the usual time as a result of the 6,000 miles of the two French airmen's flight from Paris here.

D. Costes and his companion left Paris October 19 arriving here today with the first regular mail across the South Atlantic. The two records, making the entire flight in the shortest time to date and also were the first to fly across the South Atlantic without a stop.

Dr. Redden has charge of the gigantic anti-disease crusade in the Mississippi Valley flood relief fund of $17,000,000; Everett Dix, staff assistant to the vice chairman, is in charge of Red Cross work in eight Southern States, and Miss Maude L. Lewis, who, as assistant to the director of the Junior Red Cross, helps direct the program of an organization of nearly 6,000,000 school children.

North Carolina conferences are scheduled as follows: Wednesday, October 26, Hickory Hotel, Hickory; Friday, October 28, Memorial Community Building, Goldsboro; November 1, Baptist church, Burlington.

There was no production in 1925. The peat produced in North Carolina has gone largely into the manufacture of fertilizer, and with the growing demand for fertilizer in this state peat should properly become one of our important products.
