AMUNDSEN AND FRIEND MISSING FOR TWO DAYS Left Norway Port to Head For Spitzbergen And Nothing Since Heard From Them

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, June 20.—(AP)—The barren Arctic fastness tonight had divulged the retreat of six men who had dared it but its white ice clad reaches had swallowed two more.

General Umberto Nobile, chief of the dirigible Italia and five of his crew were found on their ice cake home today and given food and supplies, but the veteran Roald Amundsen and Rene Guldstrand, who left Tromsø, Norway Monday for Spitzbergen have been lost for two days with little or nothing to indicate where they might be.

Ten others also are lost, the three men who started afoot toward land after the Italia crashed and the seven who remained with the dirigible and were borne away to the east when the gas bag lightened by the loss of nine of its crew rose again.

Though trips through the air in search of the Nobile have been under way for several days by the Norwegian Captain Riser-Larsen and Lt. Holm, it remained for a fellow Italian, Major Maddalena, in the seaplane Savoia-55 finally to find Gen. Nobile. As a result of carefully prearranged wireless signaling Maddalena today reached them and dropped 50 pounds of food and supplies by parachute before returning to King's Bay.

Maddalena's discovery materially brightened the prospect of the Nobile group. They have discovered through the wireless how to bring the rescue chips and planes to them and they have food and supplies now to live on the ice floes indefinitely. Rescue they may now regard as most a matter of days, and ice on the floes should be relatively comfortable from now on.

SMITH LEADERS REACH HOUSTON

Establish Headquarters in Convention City and Predict Early Nomination Smith

HOUSTON, Texas, June 20.—(AP)—The first of the Tammany leaders supporting the nomination of Alfred E. Smith as the 1928 Democratic standard bearer arrived here today from New York in prepared to set up headquarters in the Rice Hotel where leaders of the Reed organization have opened up shop.

George Namee, pre-convention campaign manager, and Norman E. Mack, veteran national committeemen from the Empire State constituted the advance guard of the Smith forces. Thomas Spellacy, national committeeman for Connecticut and prominent in the Smith councils also reached Houston.

Others of those who will direct the campaign will arrive later in the week. Governor Smith will be nominated, no doubt about that," Mr. Namee said. "It will come on a very early ballot."

The New Yorker would not hazard a guess as to the precise ballot, explaining that it might be the first, second or third. Governor Smith has more than 650 votes for the first ballot he added. "I am making no claims at this time about the others."

"The convention ought to be allowed to express itself on all the candidacies the various states wish to put forward. New York State stands for tolerance, free speech and good will. We all want to leave the convention with a spirit of good feeling."

TEXAS STIRRED BY A LYNCHING

Unmasked Men Took Negro From Hospital Cot And Hanged Him To Bridge

HOUSTON, Texas, June 20.—(AP)—Stirred by the first lynching here in 56 years, municipal county and state officials joined today in an intensive search for the eight unmasked white men who early this morning took Robert Powell, 24 year old negro, alleged slayer from a hospital cot and hanged him from a bridge outside of Houston.

The fact that the lynching took place while the national political spotlight is turned upon the city caused officials particular concern and quick steps were taken in an effort to fix the responsibility.

An appropriation of $10,000 was voted for the city council for an investigation by a committee of six, two members of which are negroes.

District Judge Langston King charged the grand jury to drop all other matters while in enquires into the lynching. Governor Dan Moody at Austin offered a reward of $250 for the arrest of each participant in the lynching and sent a detail of Texas rangers to join others assigned to duty for the Democratic national convention.

American Girl In Wales

Miss Earhart And Comrades Are Now Thinking Of U.S.A.

LONDON, June 20.—(AP)—The airplane Friendship, having carried through the success the mission implied by its name, Miss Earhart, Pilot Stultz and Mechanician Gordon today turned their thoughts to home.

The trio planned to the continent for the week end visiting Amsterdam and Paris. They will come back to England probably on Tuesday and take passage by steamer for America Wednesday or Thursday.

The Dutch air line has put a plane at the Americans' service and they wish to accept it if it is possible to arrange their crowded schedule. The big orange colored Friendship remains at Southampton where it will be shipped back to the United States.

The three aviators continued to be buried under an avalanche of letters and invitations and are besieged by callers. The strain seemed to be showing just a little on Miss Earhart tonight. She appeared somewhat nervous and wanted to get away from the London crowds and fly a Moth plane at Croyden. She also expressed the horseback in famous "Rotten row" of Hyde Park but for the moment engagement prevented her from doing either.

Miss Earhart cannot leave her hotel without being rushed nearly off her feet by admiring crowds, mostly women and girls.

EAGLE SCOUTS GIVE BARBECUE

Entertained Several Business Men of City At Dinner and Meeting Yesterday

The Eagle Scouts of Tuscarora council were hosts to some of the business men of Goldsboro at a chicken barbecue, at the old country club, yesterday afternoon.

Each of the scouts and guests present made a short talk on some phase of Scout work and all of the boys, told of the benefits they had derived from their scouting experiences.

One of the outstanding features of the meeting were the talks made by the guests, who spoke on "How Eagle Scouting Looks to Me". Each one of these speakers commended the Eagle Scouts on the laudable work they are doing.

Another feature of the barbecue-business meeting was the discussion of plans for forming an Eagle Scout club in Goldsboro. There are twelve Eagle Scouts in Goldsboro, which is said to be an unusually large number for a town of this size when it is taken into consideration that organized Scout work has only been in progress here for a little over four years. A committee was appointed to consider and make plans for the organization of such a club. The members of this committee are as follows, Lionel Well, Jr., chairman, David Liles, and David Bland. The entire meeting was conducted by the Scouts, with David Liles as Master of Ceremonies.

Edgar Bain, Jr. reviewed his Scout cooking test by acting as chief cook for the occasion and serving barbecued chicken, slaw, potatoes, pickles, rolls, and punch to the following guests: Judge D. H. Bland, president of Tuscarora council, A. A. Joseph, chairman of the camping committee, Lionel Well, member of the Court of Honor, Rev. W. O. Cone, member of the Court of Honor; Scout Executive W. W. Cotton Problems Aired At Meeting Here Yesterday

Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce, and several others.

A report from the cotton growing states of the south was read. This report which was tabulated the first week in June, showed no appreciable increase in cotton acreage in any of the states except Texas and Oklahoma. It was said that this report was made too early to be able to gain any idea of the advance of the boll weevil, but that he had so far gained no ground except in Georgia.

Field men, county agents, vocational teachers, receiving agents, and warehousemen are all supposed to attend these monthly meetings, it was said. Among the field men present at yesterday's meeting were: Frank Jones of Goldsboro, J. U. Jones, of

Seven Hundred Guests of Carolina Light and Power Company Got Few Surprises

MAX GARDNER THROWS SEAWELL SOME FLOWERS

Goldsboro Delegation Is Among Those Present From 191 Communities

Not only did the lamb and lion lie down together, figuratively speaking, when the Carolina and Power and Light Company yesterday opened its new Norwood Hydro-Electric Power plant near Mt. Gilead yesterday, but the lion and lamb patted each other on the back and spoke soothing and caressing words.

For the principal speaker at the barbecue dinner tendered seven hundred representatives from the 191 communities served by the company was O. Max Gardner, governor elect as nominee of the Democratic party for the fall election, and following him was H. F. Seawell of Carthage the Republican nominee. They sat across from each other at the barbecue and then Mr. Gardner cast a whole armful of bouquets at Seawell and the Republican party as he got off to a talk about how Muscovini was running things in Italy, revitalizing the nation through developing its hydro-electric power.

I've learned recently, confessed the Shelby man, that not all the goodness is cornered in the Democratic party, and I don't wish all the Republicans were in heaven, though I may be that about Seawell before this election is over.

The seven hundred talks present, folks drawn from all points in North and South Carolina served by the Carolina Power and Light company, had marveled at the magnitude of the dam penning up the water for the plant, at the giant shafts timed by clocks to do their duty, at a plant acres in scope yet so delicately and efficiently adjusted that upon occasion two men can operate it. They had marveled, but when the Democratic governor said nice things about the Republican nominee for governor, their mouths fell open in amazement. W. M. Stevenson, congressman from the fifth district of South Carolina could not refrain when he had been called on the platform to remark that things were certainly different from the time when he heard Judge Fettle and Zeb Vance blister each other from the platform.

A Day of Surprises

But it was a day of surprises for those not familiar with hydro-electric developments. For one thing harnessing the river had in no way taken away any of the natural beauty of the place, indeed it had added to it by creating a lake of considerable proportions where had been only a meandering stream. And over the lake a breeze blew all the day, adding a breath of pleasantness to a temperature that had left most of those present floundering and perspiring.

Those arriving at the scene of the plant near Mt. Gilead stepped from their cars to have their ears met with the strains of a jazz orchestra and their eyes greeted with the sight of two sections of sheds erected especially for the occasion and the convenience of the guests. Following an inspection of the plant—Fitzhugh Lee, superintendent of the company's properties in Goldsboro heading the Goldsboro delegation—that included teachers suggesting a well gotten up social affair.

That the occasion had been elaborately planned was evident and every possible detail had been worked out for the convenience of the guests. The barbecue dinner with Mr. Gardner and Mr. Seawell as speakers and with James H. Pou, J. W. Bailey, and A. P. Tillery also on the program ended the ceremonies.

Goldsboro men present for the formal opening of the plant included: Mr. Lee, local superintendent, Ken-
