Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl in my early teens and I am popular with both girls and boys. There is one boy for whom I care more than any other and he seems to like me. I think first when I meet him! Because he is too shy when I am with girls, he does not know. And it hurts me to think when girls and boys tease me about my looks for he is shorter than I

Does it make any difference to have him for my boy friend? JUST WONDERING JUST WONDERING IT'S YOUR place to speak to the young man first when you meet him on the street or any place else. Wondering As to the difference in height—the shouldn't make any difference at all. And if your friends tease you, don't pay any attention to it. Laugh with them and they'll soon tire of it. For if they think they can make you uncomfortable, they'll only see it on esting meetings during the year. Observe the three League covenants.

Have a regular plan of Social Service work.

Conduct a Literary Social every month, and to encourage wholesome games of amusements.

Conduct at least one class during the year in each of the courses of study of the Epworth League.

Require written reports from each officer.

Increase memberships.

Have 25 per cent of the members of League as subscribers to the Epworth Era.

MRS. S. A. DANIEL DIED LAST NIGHT

S. C. Mrs. J. H. Edwards of Henderson; Roy G. and J. A. Daniel of Warrenton.

Mrs. Daniel was a life long member of the Methodist church, a sweet-spirited, noble woman, who reared her children in the fear and admonition of the Lord. There were many in the spacious atmosphere of the old Warrenton days who felt the influence of her character.

Rev. Mr. Daniel and children will leave this morning for Warrenton to attend the funeral.
