Huggins Says He's "Satisfied" But Not As Much As Might Be

McKETCHNIE DECLARES IT'S ALL UP TO TEAM

Lazzerri Not In Best of Form; Cardinals Fresh As Morning Dew

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP)—"We are satisfied" mused Huggins standing over a plate of roast chicken at the stadium today. "We are not, however, so well satisfied," he continued in the same passionless voice, "as we would be if Combs could play, which I cannot and if Lazzerri were in form he is not."

"Our club enters the series prepared to give as good as it sends and is confident of its ability to hold its own. That sun helped today. No, I never make predictions."

NEW YORK.—(AP)—"Did you ever see a manager win a world series— from the bench" demanded Bill McKetchnie, chief of the Red Birds as he sat comfortably in a field box at the stadium today while the Cardinals, spick and span in new road uniforms frolicked under an Indian summer sun.

"Any championship that is won by St. Louis will have to be won by my players. They are all prepared. The battle remains up to them—and the Yankees. I must not predict since I really have no part in it at all."

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Baseball players wearing the colors of the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals hit their last balls for fun today and waited for the World Series to open tomorrow. After an extended final practice session the champions of the two leagues put playing behind them for the World Series strictly business.

A bright, warm day gave the athletes a chance to clothe their preparations for classic with extended batting drills followed by brisk infield workouts. Nothing happened at the last minute sessions to indicate that either manager has changed his mind on pitching selections for the opening selections. Miller Huggins and Bill McKetchnie insist that they are open minded as to nominations for pitching duty but there will be wide spread surprise if Waite Hoyt and Bill Sherdel are not the opposing moundmen.

The Yankees learned definitely today that they will not have the services of Earle Combs, their brilliant center fielder, who was hurt at Detroit last week. Combs, hoping to the last that he might get in, tried to swing a bat today, but found that his wrist would not stand the strain. Ben Paschal and Cedric Durst will alternate in furnishing replacements for the fleet Combs.

Newell has the reputation of being a gift at entertaining speaking, Mr. Crow said.

STATE STUDENT BADLY WOUNDED

Negro Watchman Set To Guard College Apple Orchard Held In Jail

RALEIGH, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Dixon Poole of Spartanburg S. C. freshman at N. C. State college, is in a hospital here seriously wounded and Marshall Hoover negro night watchman at State college is held in the county jail charged with the shooting. Hoover said he had been assigned to watch an apple orchard owned by the college to prevent students from stealing the fruit and was given a shotgun with orders to fire if he heard off apple thieves. Poole, he said with two other boys invaded the orchard tonight and he fired without intending to injure them. The load took effect in Poole's face badly wounding him. His companions were not struck.

Young Poole was still in the operating room at a local hospital late tonight and the seriousness of his injuries was not known. "It was thought that he probably would lose the sight of one eye even if he lived." According to the report given police by Joe Harris and F. J. Hodges, the boys with Poole, the negro was sitting in a shadow when they drew near. Suddenly he rose from ambush and fired without warning. Young Harris carried Poole to the orchard fence and Hodges went for help. As soon as he fired the shot Hoover ran but officers found him at his home within an hour. He admitted his guilt but that he was obeying the instructions of director Miller of the college greenhouse who employed him and give him the money for the gun.

CORN CONTEST TAKES NOTICE

Other Communities Seek To Get Honor From Nahunta Community Men

Wayne county farmers are now giving time to picking out their ten best ears of corn to be offered in competition for a silver vase offered at the Wayne county Fair, Goldsboro, October 29, November 3. The vase, given by a prominent seed dealer was received yesterday by county Agent A. K. Robertson and is now on display in his office. Last year the prize for the ten best ears of corn was won by Frank Poole of the Nahunta community, but fine corn growers of every section of the county are going to do their best to take the honor away from him this year. The Nahunta community has three silver vases won by Nahunta farmers for best corn ears exhibited at various county fairs. In addition to that won in Wayne by Mr. Poole, Joe Davis of Nahunta took the similar prize at the Kinston 10 county fair last year, and Floyd Edgerton of the

DUPLIN CROWD LIKES GARDNER

Not Enough Seats To Go Round When Democratic Candidate Speaks There

(Special To The News) KENANSVILLE, Oct. 3.—(AP)—There weren't enough seats in the Duplin county courthouse here today when O. Max Gardner, Democratic candidate for Governor spoke here this afternoon. They said down there that it was the biggest political gathering here in a coon's age. The crowd was estimated at from 1200 to 1500 and they must have made the next governor feel mighty good, the way they cheered and applauded him as he went along. "The Shelby man did a good job of tearing into the Republicans and their alders and comforters who are laying down the "whispering" attack on Governor Alfred E. Smith. Mr. Gardner let it be known in no uncertain terms that he was not making an appeal for the support of those who are against the national candidate. He compared deserting Governor Smith to deserting the commander in chief of an army. Following the address, Mr. Gardner returned to Raleigh where he will spend the night before going to Goldsboro tomorrow night for an address.

Latest Example Of "Whispering" Attack

Here is the latest sample of "whispering" being circulated locally against Governor Alfred E. Smith. Whence the unmitigated "lie" came or how could not be ascertain by The News, but it is going the rounds in Goldsboro. "I am just a 'fraid of that place," said a certain man of the city, pointing to the local Catholic church building, "as I am of a snake. You know they tell me that there is a company of militia drilling in there every night, and that as soon as Al Smith is elected they are going to take charge of the country for the Catholics." This was the conversation given The News yesterday from reliable sources. If this is ignorance Good Lord give us Mexico. If not ignorance hell's gates are yawning hungrily.

HOOVER TALKS WITH COOLIDGE

Representative Fish Tells Dr. Work Religious Literature Must Be Stopped

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover today paid another visit to the White House to discuss the general political situation with President Coolidge and discussed after the conference that the chief executive planned to deliver some addresses before election day. The Republican presidential nominee declared that he did not know whether the speeches of Mr. Coolidge would be political. He would not reveal the subject of their conversation beyond declaring that it was upon various matters pertaining to the campaign and the general progress of his presidential fight.

Earlier in the day Hoover welcomed a group of first voters from the home town of Governor Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic opponent, with a brief address in which he emphasized that the vigor and idealism of the younger generation were essential to carry on the Republican party. The candidate also learned from Representative Hamilton Fish of New York a new angle on the political situation in that state. The nomination of Ambassador A. B. Houghton of Great Britain as Republican senatorial candidate, Fish said, together with the vigorous fight of the Democratic forces under Governor Smith had thrown that state into the doubtful column. The selection of Houghton had alienated the world war veterans from the Republican party.

Later Fish said he had informed Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee that unless the circulation of religious literature was stopped, the Democrats would make sweeping gains in the East. He added that he also had urged Work to summon Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt back to her duties in the department of justice.

Wayne Blockaders Now Erect Iron Shed To Protect Outfit

Wayne county blockaders spring something new on Sheriff's deputies every few weeks, it seems. The latest is a galvanized iron roofed shed built in the forests to shelter the booze plant. Officers discovered such a shed in the Wooten's MBI section of New Hope township. Marks about the shed showed that a considerable stay had been made at the place, probably several months, but the outfit had been recently moved. A half mile from the site the deputies found hidden in brush a complete 80 gallon capacity outfit. Deputies Kornegay, Gardner, Smith and Coker vouch for the facts in this story. In the Bennett's Bridge section of Indian Springs, the Deputies captured a 60 gallon still in operation. As they entered the vicinity, two youths raced past them on a Ford roadster and some distance up the road fired at an imaginary object in the woods. Fired twice in quick succession. This was evidently the "clear out signal" for when the officers reached the still a few minutes later, nobody was at home. Liquor was trickling into a half gallon fruit jar which was running over. Four empty barrels showed a good sized run had been made. Kornegay, Smith and Gardner were the raiders in this instance.

Nathan O'Berry To Present Him

Will Arrive in Goldsboro This Morning Spend Most of The Day Here

O. Max Gardner, of Shelby, Democratic Candidate for Governor, will address Democrats of Wayne county at the courthouse this evening at 8 o'clock. The courthouse will in all probability not be large enough to offer accommodations to all who come, but W. A. Deen, County chairman, said yesterday that the Democratic principle of first come first served would be followed with reference to the seats.

"So if you intend to hear Mr. Gardner—and I know you don't want to miss that—you had better be there early." Captain Nathan O'Berry, one-time state chairman of the Democratic party in North Carolina, and the hero of many a battle for the Democratic party, will present Mr. Gardner. Mr. Gardner now has the nomination which at one time the Goldsboro man, according to Josephus Daniels, declined to accept. As county leader in the days of Fusionism, Captain O'Berry held Wayne state in the Democratic column and saved the day for the party hereabouts.

Mr. Gardner will spend most of the day in Goldsboro and will be registered at the Hotel Goldsboro, it was stated. He may be somewhat tired after his strenuous speaking tour of the past three weeks and snatch the opportunity of getting a few hours of rest. It is very probable, however, that the gubernatorial candidate will do a good bit of greeting the folks before the hour for his address tonight.

Democratic leaders are expecting tonight to have one of the best "soul saving" political speeches made in the vicinity thus far in the campaign. Mr. Gardner started cooler, but has been warming up more and more the further on down the line he has gone in his tour. In Morehead City Monday night a fire alarm disturbed the speaking. Volunteer firemen in the audience had to rush out. "You fellows hurry on out and put out that fire and come back," said the nominee. "For I am going to build a fire under the Republicans and they will need you to put it out." Mr. Gardner is a native of Shelby, Cleveland county, and is forty six years old. At the age of 18 he spent nine months as a "mule skinner" in the American army in Florida and Cuba during the Spanish American war. He was a star football player at the University of North Carolina. Since his school days he has been football coach, lawyer, banker, manufacturer, Sunday school teacher, state senator, lieutenant governor.

CARNES NEARS UNITED STATES

Ill At Ease and Seeks to Avoid Talk About His Alleged Crimes

SPRAGUE, Montitoba Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—At ease while chatting with officers taking him back to Atlanta, Clinton S. Carnes early this afternoon was nearing the American border. His silence regarding the past was continued but he said he realized his arrest and return must be the cause of a sensation through the South. He appeared worried and seemed as though he sought to cease his mind when he talked to his escort about the Canadian prairies and sights along the railroad. Carnes face was lined and he has several days growth of beard. He is being kept in handcuffs.
