Deputies and Citizen's Groups of Three Counties to Redouble Search Today

KILLING OCCURRED 15 MILES NORTHEAST CITY B. J. Baker Shot By "Shack" Tyndall When Accused Later Stealing Tobacco

In quiet groups of twos and threes at widely scattered points on the edges of Wayne, Greens and Wilson county deputies and special deputies early today continued the search for "Shack" Tyndall, white tenant about 52 years of age, who yesterday morning shot and killed B. J. Baker, about 70. Sheriff Rasberry last night told The News that yesterday as many as a thousand people joined in the search which until an early hour this morning had proved unavailing.

Mr. Baker was the owner of hundreds of acres of land in the Bull Head section of Greene county, situated miles northeast of Goldsboro and just over the Wayne county line. He had been missing tobacco. The News was told and thought he had evidence implicating Tyndall, his tenant.

Meeting Tyndall at the home of Ernest Jones, negro, who resided across the way from Tyndall, Mr. Baker confronted him with his charge. The latter denied the charge.

"Well", Mr. Baker was quoted as having replied "Come on with me and I will show you the evidence I have."

"Wait a minute," Tyndall was quoted as having replied. He turned and stepped back a few paces for his double barreled shot gun which was leaning against a tree in an orchard. He raised the gun. The News was told by one who came from the scene and fired twice, striking Mr. Baker in the shoulder and arm. The aged planter fell, face forward, to the earth.

Walking to the prostrate man, The News was told, Tyndall held the shot gun very close to his head and fired a third time the full force of the load taking effect in the head and tearing the top away. Carrying his gun with him, Tyndall ran into a dense woods, the edge of which was close to the house. A negro had been the only eye witness of the shooting and he gave the alarm.

Baker was one of the best known farmers of Greene county and the Bull Run section. Twenty five years ago he moved from the Faro section into Bull Run community. At that time he was a poor man. Through industry and frugality, he succeeded as a farmer and at the time of his death owned seven or eight hundred acres of line land. He has a large family.

News of the cruel killing spread rapidly and in a few hours hundreds of people were on the scene. Sheriff Rasberry of Greene county took charge of the search for the slayer, with his deputies as his lieutenants. A citizens posse was formed and deployed around the stretch of woods into which Tyndall had disappeared after shooting Baker the third time.

Men knew that if they advanced too boldly into the dense woods after Tyndall that they took their lives into their hands. He had taken the shot gun with him, and no one knew how much ammunition he had.

Blood hounds were called from Smithfield and placed on the trail of the killer. With an unerring, unswerving path they led the deputies through the woods and it was soon ascertained that Tyndall had made good his escape from the impeded vicinity.

"We trailed him to the direction of Black Creek" Sheriff Rasberry told The News over long distance last night "and have men stationed about

LOCAL SCHOOL ABOVE AVERAGE

Goldsboro High Seniors Scored 95 Against 82.91 For Whole State

The Goldsboro high school showed up good in the high school senior examinations given last spring to all seniors of accredited high schools in the state, according to announcement just given out by the State Department of Education. The average score made by all high school seniors in the state was 82.91, while the Goldsboro high school graduating class scored 95.

There were fifty-six students taking the examination in the Goldsboro high school. These fifty six students were tested in history, English, science, mathematics, Latin, and French. As shown by the summary of scores made, the Goldsboro high school was 12.09 points better than the state average. The report given out on the examination given the year before showed the local high school 8.6 points above the average of the state.

The local high school was above the average score of the state in every subject but science. They were slightly below in this one subject by .83 of a point. The report showed the year before that the 1927 senior class was slightly below in French. The differences in the scores made by the local high school and the state average scores were much greater in the last examination than they were the year before. The differences are in favor of the Goldsboro seniors.

Want 500 Young Democrats Enrolled In Wayne County

Five hundred members of the young Democrats organization in Wayne county. This is the goal which has been set by Fred P. Parker, Jr. Wayne county chairman, and with an eager-eyed crowd of young cohorts, has started to work for this goal. Campaigns will be conducted to enroll the young voter under the Al Smith banner in every township in the county. The young voters will be asked to remain after each regularly scheduled Democratic rally, when local organizations will be formed. Later the Young Democrats may schedule a series of meetings under its own auspices.

The following is the membership pledge being circulated in the county: "We, the undersigned Young Democrats of Wayne county, are grateful to the great Democratic Party which

PRAISES WORK OF YOUNG LEADERS

Col. Langston Says Organization Young Democrats Doing Much Good

The interest which the young voters are showing in the cause of Governor Alfred E. Smith and other Democratic nominees augurs well for the success of the party, both as to the state ticket and nationally, in the opinion of Col. John D. Langston, chairman of the Democratic veterans organization in North Carolina. His observations are based on trips to a number of points in the state in the interest of the Democratic party and from information reaching veterans headquarters here.

"This organization of Young Democrats being perfected throughout the State by Mr. Tyre Taylor of Charlotte is going to accomplish a whole lot of good," said Col. Langston.

"These younger Democrats are out on the warpath with fire in their eyes and their services are going to count. Everywhere I have come in contact with the leaders of this organization I have felt the stimulation of their fine enthusiasm for the cause of Gov. Smith. They are doing a fine work, a work which will count not only in the election on November 6, but will count in the strength of the Democratic column in the state in later years. From the ranks of these younger men will be drawn the future leaders of the party, and they are now receiving their baptism of fire which will leave them tried and true for the future battles of the party."

TWO PLAYS ARE IN REHEARSAL

Community Players Prepare To Launch Their Fall Program

"The Pot Boiler" an eye-opening—ly amusing comedy, and "The Ghost of Lombrey," a tragedy of grim interest, will form the opening one act plays to be staged by the Wayne Community Players on their fall program of dramatic entertainments, according to an announcement by the secretary, Miss Margaret Korsegay, directing the productions. The probable date has been announced for Thursday, October 18th.

The two plays chosen should prove an excellent evening of entertainment, giving a mixture of both fun and seriousness. "The Pot Boiler" written by Alice Gerstenberg, is one of those hilarious farces written in a satirical vein which stiches the sides of the audience from the moment the curtain goes up until it falls on the final episode.

It portrays the trials and tribulations of a great playwright, great in his own estimation, at least, rehearsing his cast for his latest box office attraction. And what a time that gentleman does have. What with temperamental actresses a handsome but dumb leading man, a vampire who doesn't vamp to suit him, a villain of painfully moral cast, and a fool problem of whom he is to have shot, poor Mr. Sud the famous playwright, has reason for pulling out the very last strand of his beautiful curly locks. And, before it's all over which he almost does.

The serious part of the entertainment is furnished by "The Ghost of Lombrey" a production from the pen of William Royall, local author of no little reputation. In it we find one of the oldest legends of Eastern Carolina dramatized in a most effective manner. This play was rehearsed for a summer production, but was postponed until the fall. It is certain to bring creeping chills up the backbones of the audience which are at once both painful and pleasing.

The casts for these two plays have been selected with care. Under the skillful direction of Miss Korsegay they should put on creditable performances. Rehearsals are already under way.

CAR HITS WAGON, ONE IN HOSPITAL

Rosewood Section Man Was Driving in Middle of Highway Without a Light

Jim Vinson, white man of the Rosewood section, was badly injured last evening when the lightless wagon on which he was riding was hit by the automobile driven by Carl Stevens of near Clayton. The accident occurred near the overhead bridge on highway number 19. One of the mules hitched to Vinson wagon sustained a broken leg and had to be shot. A young son of Vinson who was on the wagon with him escaped injury, as did Mr. Stevens, who was allowed to continue on his way.

The accident occurred about 7 o'clock during a heavy downpour of rain which made visibility very bad. Before the wagon and wrecked car could be cleared from the highway the Buick driven by Hubert Griffith truck Stevens' car. Both the Buick and the car of the Clayton man were damaged. The heavy downpour of rain made it impossible to see more than a few feet and there was a string of cars coming in the direction of Goldsboro their lights blinding Griffith.

Vinson was driving his wagon in the direction of Rosewood without a light and in the center of the highway according to the story told by Stevens. The latter said that in the rain and darkness he saw the wagon when he was directly upon it, and did not have time to stop his car, though

DESPONDENT, HE ENDS LIFE

Young New Bern Man Sends Bullet Through Heart and Ends It All

Despondent because of a physical infirmity which shut him out of the regular channels of society, C. R. Richards, collection clerk of the New Bern National Bank, ended his life at his room in New Bern yesterday by sending a bullet through his heart. News of the suicide was brought to Goldsboro last evening.

Mr. Richards left note directed to his landlady a Mrs. Jones, telling her where $2600 in bonds and securities could be found. Mr. Richards was a cripple and the note explained that he was despondent over his condition.

So far as could be learned, one sister, Mrs. Edward Sipple, is the only surviving relative. She lives in Frederick, Md.

New Theory Advanced In Death Goldsboro Native

That an accident which happened in his boyhood days in Goldsboro may have contributed to the death of Johnston Baker, who died while attempting to separate two brothers who were wrestling, is the theory advanced in the Winter Haven Daily Chief, a copy of which has been received here.

Baker, aged 21, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, who moved to Winter Haven from Goldsboro 15 years ago.

The story as given in the Florida paper is as follows:

Owing to vague conflicting stories which seem to be in circulation around Winter Haven, none of which are founded on fact, the Chief is glad to cooperate with the Baker family in publishing a true account of Baker's sudden demise at his home here last Wednesday morning, under

Jesse Haines Depended On To Start For Cardinals and Zachary for Yanks

NEW YORK WON TWO CONTESTS STRAIGHT

Brass Band and Cheering Throngs at Station to Greet Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The bursting of aerial bombs and the noise of a riotous welcome broke the anxious calm of St. Louis baseball fans as they received their Cardinals as they came home today from two losing engagements in the battle for the world championship.

The milling crowds about the union station gave proof with their shouts that St. Louis fandom is backing its team. At the Red Bird warriors were conducted to gaily decorated open automobiles to the accompaniment of two brass bands and cheering appreciative throngs spread over their contentment.

Meanwhile the scene was set for the St. Louis end of the World's series. The hotels were filled and many out of town fans were driven to seek quarters across the Mississippi in East St. Louis.

The weather forecast was "Fair tonight and cooler tomorrow". McKetchie planned to send Jesse Haines the knuckle ball expert against the formidable Yankees in the third game.

Yanks Slip In ST. LOUIS.—(AP)—The New York Yankees slipped quietly into St. Louis late today while the echoes of the celebration over the return home of the Cardinals were still resounding in the city's streets.

With two victories in the world series safely tucked away in their belt bags, the American League champions were quite content to come to town unheralded and unsung. It was the Cardinals celebration and the Yanks said they did not want to edge into the picture.

Miller Huggins, midget manager of the Yanks, made no definite announcement of his pitching choice for Sunday's game; but the general belief was that Zachary, the old Washington left hander, who set the New York Giants down in the World Series of 1924 would be nominated.
