COL. LINDBERGH FORCED DOWN AT CAPE HATTERAS

Battles Rain Storm In Effort to Continue His Flight to Capital City

Left Charleston, S. C., At 6:47 A. M. and Reached Hatteras At 2:15 P. M.

GOVERNMENT HAD BEGUN WILD SEARCH FOR HIM

The News Gets Information That He Is Comfortable Housed At Hatteras

Having made only a few hundred miles in eight hours on account of rain and wind storms, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was forced down at Hatteras Inlet, on the Carolina banks, at 2:15 p. m., yesterday, according to information given The News last night by the Newbernian of New Bern. The latter paper had been in communication with Col. Lindbergh by telephone.

The famous flyer left Charleston, S. C., yesterday morning for Washington and was expected to arrive in the Capital about 11 a. m.

Lindbergh told the New Bern paper that he was comfortably housed with Captain Walter Yoman's of Hatteras Coast Guard station and that he would remain there until time brought favorable flying weather.

CAPE HATTERAS, N. C., Feb. 16.—(AP)—The "Lone Eagle" tonight rested at the Hatteras Inlet coast guard station, awaiting better weather.

Forced down on the beach 15 miles south of Cape Hatteras this afternoon by fog and rain, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh adds another to the anxious periods of search that have marked several of his recent flights. For the second time in two days, friends, officials and fellow airmen were given anxious moments when the New York to Paris flyer failed to show up in Washington on his return from inaugurating the Pan-American Airways.

The Colonel left Charleston, S. C., at 6:47 o'clock this morning enroute to Washington. He was due in the capital city about noon and when he became an hour or more overdue an intensive search was started by the government lighthouse service and other agencies.

A check of Eastern North Carolina landing fields and coast points brought forth little information. A yellow and black plane had passed over Southport, N. C., at the mouth of the Cape Fear at 8:30 o'clock this morning and over Wrightsville beach, east of Wilmington at 8:45 a. m. The Southport Pilot's association office reported him flying northeast along the coast line. It was not believed that he would attempt to swing as far east as Cape Hatteras but apparently the low visibility overland and a heavy rain that started during the morning led him to attempt to fly around the storm. Coastguardsmen at the Cape Hatteras coast guard station first reported the Colonel down 15 miles south of that place. Later they said he was at the Cape Hatteras Inlet coast guard station.

The isolated coast guard station could not be reached by telephone, but at the Cape Hatteras station and at the office of the commander of the seventh district coast guard district at Elizabeth City it was stated that Col. Lindbergh's plane was not damaged and that he would remain at the inlet station until tomorrow.

Beyond the fact that the Colonel was uninjured and his plane undamaged, little information was obtainable.

COMPROMISE BILL

RALEIGH, Feb. 16.—(AP)—A compromise workmen's compensation act was ready today for presentation to both houses of the general assembly upon the heels of Governor Gardner's personal appeal to the legislators for such action. The insurance committees of senate and house announced last night that they had agreed upon the draft of a measure, with only one negative vote, that being cast by Senator-alter Clark of Mecklenburg.

Rain Falls Steadily For Over 50 Hours

At one o'clock this morning it had been raining in Goldsboro for 50 consecutive hours. Starting about 5 o'clock Friday morning, the rain had ranged from the drizzle kind to the steady downpour, but not once was there a let up. Already the storm sewers of the city were being taxed to a capacity. The city engineering department said last night that there was likely to be a repetition of bursted mains and refuse thrown up on the southwestern edge of the city. Nense river had risen only slightly but it was expected that it would be out of its banks as the rain is born into it. Many of Goldsboro's streets were lakes in appearance this morning.

FLORIDA CROWD PRESSES HOOVER

Fort Lauderdale Children Show How Glad They Are To See Him

BELLE ISLAND, MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 16.—(AP)—President elect Hoover returned to his per-inaugural vacation home here at 5:50 p. m. today from his Everglades tour. He was almost mobbed by an enthusiastic crowd Fort Lauderdale where he stopped for a few minutes.

Mrs. Hoover, who had joined the president elect at Palm Beach was with him as the crowd carried them along for two blocks in Fort Lauderdale. Scarcely had the next president and the next first lady stepped from the car before they were surrounded by a crowd of men, women and children, mostly children.

The crowd broke the police lines and surged about Mr. and Mrs. Hoover while two secret service men sought vainly to fight them off. Four other of the secret service detail were unable to reach the president elect and Mrs. Hoover and the few city policemen on hand were powerless.

It was a very friendly crowd with those in the rear laughing as they sought to make their way to the front. A fater being born along for two blocks, Hoover halted. Mrs. Hoover received a bouquet of roses and the two re-entered their car.

The stop at Fort Lauderdale was made ostensible so the president elect could review the school children there whom he missed when he passed through yesterday morning.

Owens Violin Which May Have Been Property of Jefferson

An ancient violin believed at one time to have been the property of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the Democratic party, and to have been used in sounding the minuet and Virginia reel at parties at Jefferson's Monticello home is now owned by J. F. Aycock, who lives five miles from Fremont. D. A. Holder, principal of the Aycock school informed The News yesterday. Mr. Holder believes that the instrument is a genuine Stradivarius and if this is the case, it would be very valuable. "A few weeks before Christmas," said Mr. Holder, "I was soliciting musicians for a fiddlers convention, for the benefit of our school, and I visited J. R. Aycock, a farmer who lives about 5 miles from Fremont. Mr. Ay-

Royall H. Spence Is Named To Head Merchants of City

The board of directors of the Goldsboro Merchants' Association at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, elected Royall H. Spence as president of the association for the present year. Mr. Spence will succeed L. R. Thomas, who was recently elected president of the association, but who found that the necessity of spending so much of his time out of the city would not enable him to fulfill his duties as president. He petitioned the board to release him of the responsibility. Spence will begin his new duties Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when he will preside over the mass meeting of Wayne county merchants. The meeting has been called to be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, and its object is to give consideration to the Sale Tax Bill now pending in the state legislature. The Association has requested Wayne county delegations in the legislature to attend this meeting.

"As you no doubt know," says a letter from the association to members, "the Finance Committee of the State Legislature which is now in session has drawn up a Merchants' Sale Tax Bill" which if put into law by the legislature will raise a revenue of approximately $25,000,000.00. "Our board of directors in session this morning disapproved of this bill and authorized the writer to call a mass meeting of the Wayne county merchants to be held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce in Goldsboro, Monday afternoon, February 18, at 3:00 o'clock. "The object of this meeting is to discuss this bill and if the meeting decides to do so a resolution will be adopted expressing the merchants' disapproval of the bill and copies of same will be sent to our Wayne county delegation in the legislature."

Further Declines As Bank Board Reiterates Stand About Credits NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The flood gates of liquidation were again thrown open on the New York stock exchange today as the federal reserve board's credit warning strengthened yesterday by the unqualified approval of the Federal Advisory Council still hung over the stock market. Most of the active stocks lost from $1 to $2 1/2 a share in the flood of selling. Trading was in large volume for a two hour Saturday session, nearly $2,500,000 shares changing hands. The Associated Press price index of 50 leading industrials dropped 2.6 points to a new 1929 low at 201.09 about 15.5 points below the record high established February 4. The index of 20 leading rails fell about a point to a new low for the year, about 8.5 points under the year's high. The Common stock of Radio Corporation of America, which sold as high as $420 late last year, dropped $21 during the session, threatening $235. Adams Express lost $18. STORMS SWEEP NORTH ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Throughout the worst north Atlantic storms of the winter the U. S. liner President Harding ploughed its way tonight toward the American freighter Padansay, rudderless and helpless with at least 35 persons aboard. The liner immediately departed from her course for Europe when the freighter's course was picked up about 10 a. m. with her Commander Capt. Wm. Rind, six hours later reported she had received no further word from the stricken ship. He believed the freighter's wireless had been blown away, but he kept on in the direction of the position indicated in the distress flash and expected to reach the vessel about 4 a. m. tomorrow. This confirmed report estimates that 18 hours would be required to close the gap of approximately 300 miles between the two vessels the general position of which was 200 miles south of Cape Race New Foundland and 100 miles east of New York. The President Harding had been making only about 12 knots, presumably because of heavy seas. The steering gear of the Padansay presumably was broken—something during the 36 hour storm—that had been sweeping the Atlantic steamer James Rain and snow, driven by winds which had approached gale force, were abating, although weather continued thick and a heavy fog was running.

MONTANA FEELS QUAKE

Sterilization Bill Is Enacted Into Law When House Votes Favorably

16 Escape Injury As Bus Goes Into Ditch

Some 16 or 18 passengers on a Wilmington bound bus escaped injury, about 8 o'clock last evening when the bus slipped off the shoulder of the highway near Dudley and went into a ditch on the side of the road. The driver of the bus was passing another car when his machine skidded, slipped off the highway and into the ditch. Though undamaged, the bus could not be brought back to the highway and auxiliary equipment was hurried to the spot to carry the passengers on to Wilmington.

Provides For Sterilization of Feeble Minded in State Institutions

PREScribes METHOD OF PROCEDURE IN ALL CASES Gwynn's Government Investigation Proposal Is Broadly Amended RALEIGH, Feb. 16.—The house enacted into law today the Miller bill for sterilization of the feeble minded. Already passed by the senate, it received approval of the house without a record vote. Only a few "scattering noes" greeted speaker Graham's call for those opposed to the measure. The bill provides for sterilization of feeble minded inmates of state institutions and for sterilization of other feeble minded persons where the next of kin or guardian shall request it in writing to the county board of commissioners. All operations are to be done only by a registered surgeon and at public expense. Before any operation is performed the case must be reviewed and approved by a board consisting of the commissioner of public welfare, the state health officer and two physicians from state institutions. Senator Miller, Republican of Burke, was the author of the bill. Representative Gwynn's bill to provide for an investigation of the state government to determine if there is overlapping and duplication of effort among the various departments passed in an amended form. Representative Moss, Democrat of Nash, offered the amendment. It changed the wording of the bill to read "The governor may appoint a commission," leaving the entire matter in the governor's discretion. The original measure instructed the Governor to appoint five members of the General Assembly to make an investigation.

COLLEGE SHOWS A NEW GROWTH

Contributions of $3,180 to Anderson Day Inauguration Miss Denmark

On the day when Miss Annie Dove Denmark, Goldsboro girl, was inaugurated as president of Anderson College, S. C., donations to the college endowment fund amounted to $3,180, it was learned yesterday. Since the time that Miss Denmark took over the duties of president of the institution, contributions to the endowment fund have amounted to $95,000. Most of this was donated during the past year, and was considered as indicating the renewed interest among the alumnae of Anderson in the affairs of the college since Miss Denmark has become president.

The Goldsboro girl in her inaugural address the past week said in part: "There have been a few times in my life when I have wanted to be a man, when I wanted to know how a man felt under certain circumstances, when I have wanted to know how a man would react to some given situation. "Today I am wishing for every man here, that for the time being he might be a woman, with a woman's institution and immediate apprehension that he might know now, how I feel under these present circumstances and that he might know my reaction to a given situation, the situation being that of Anderson College. "Anderson College has become my child. That interprets the authority and the capacity of my love, and justifies the faith I have in the possibilities here. Therefore I have accepted the confidence of the board of trustees who have called me to the presidency of Anderson college. I want to pay tribute to the trustees of Anderson college. They are a strong and since group of men and women. I should have guessed already to the magnitude of the undertaking had these men and women not been untiring and unwearied in their response to my endeavors. "Now my inaugural address is finished! In looking forward to this. (Continued On Page Three)
