DUPLIN MAN BRUTALLY SLAIN; VIOLENCE FEARED

Wallace Magistrate Is Shot By Black Who Attacks Him In Store

16-Year Old Son of Esq. Sidney Teachey Looked On, Helpless, at Act

NEGROES HAD BEEN ORDERED TO LEAVE

Duplin Deputy Tells The News He Fears Mob Violence If Assailant Taken

With feeling running high, officers and possemen last night continued the search for Paddy Teachey, 30-year old negro, who on Saturday night fatally wounded Sidney Teachey, 55, justice of the peace at Wallace. A Duplin officer told The News last night that he feared violence in case the assailant were caught. They believed the Negro was hidden in the swamps or forests of the section.

Sidney Teachey, who was one of the prominent men of his section, operated a store and filling station at Pin Hook, three miles from Wallace. Saturday night Clyde Sloan, Paddy Teachey, and Gabe Teachey, Negroes, were at the white man's place of business. Gabe Teachey is a father of Paddy Teachey. The Sloan and younger Teachey Negroes had been drinking and were boisterous in their conduct. The News was told over long distance telephone.

The storekeeper asked them to leave the place and was joined in his request by Gabe Teachey. The two younger Negroes at first left, and had gone some distance when Sloan, the News was told, decided that he was going back and "raise a row". Paddy Teachey accompanied him.

Re-entering the store of the Wallace man, Sloan seized the 55-year-old magistrate and engaged him at close quarters. Darting to one corner of the room, Paddy Teachey seized a shot gun and leveling it fired at close range. The load was from behind and tore a large hole in the back.

Roby Teachey, 16, son of the storekeeper, looked on in helpless fear as the Negroes assaulted his father. The News was told.

As Esq. Teachey fell to the floor of his store, the Negroes broke from the door and ran to the nearby woods.

The young son called aid and the wounded man was hurried to a Wilmington hospital where he died at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Funeral service was held from the home at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The Wallace section was reported greatly aroused over the incident. Bloodhounds were brought from Smithfield and arrived about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon to aid in the search. They tracked the "leaving Negroes" to the home of a friend and for a short distance from this point but lost the trail before 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The search was continued until late Sunday night and resumed early yesterday and continued throughout the day. A Duplin deputy told The News last night that he did not believe the assailants had left the county. "But it may take sometime to find them, the woods and swamps are so bad," he said. He frankly admitted that he feared mob violence in case the Negroes were captured.

PARK CADE IS AGAIN ARREST'D

Charged With Larceny of Coils From An Automobile on Friday Night

Park Cade, local white man, was found over to county court under $100 bond on a charge of larceny of ignition coils from the automobile of P. S. Bizzell, local filling station operator, Friday night, at a hearing before Mayor Jack Hill in police court here yesterday morning. Cade, who has been in trouble with local police a number of times before, was arrested Saturday morning after he had escaped from Officer E. B. Bailey the night before. Bailey, who is on night duty, was walking through the alley behind the city hall when he saw Cade in front of him with something under his arm. Officer Bailey called to the man to halt, it was said, but instead of stopping, Cade started running. Bailey fired his pistol over the fleeing man's head in an attempt to frighten him, according to the police, and Cade stumbled, dropping the package of coils and skimming his knee. He recovered his footing, however, and escaped before the officer could catch up with him. Cade was arrested at his home Saturday morning.

Officer Who Fired at Rum Runner and Terrorized Of Miami Made Defendant

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., April 15.—(AP)—The coast guard's investigation into the firing of a fusillade of shots on Miami river early Sunday came to a dramatic adjournment late today when Commander K. L. Jack notified the boatswain's mate J. R. Ingram that his status in the case had become that of a defendant.

Ingram had just completed testifying that he was in command of a picket boat on the river and had ordered his look-outs to fire a shot across the bow of a rum runner which failed to halt after challenge. Commander Jack told Ingram, "You are now a defendant" and gave the boatswain's mate privilege of choosing counsel for the hearing which will be conducted tomorrow morning.

Shots fired on the river during the incidents struck buildings ashore in the heart of the city, pierced the cabin of a house boat and narrowly missed a woman. The firing drew strong protest from city officials who claimed lives of Miamians had been endangered by the shots.

Under the fusillade of "tracer" bullets, several of which struck buildings ashore and houseboats moored at the river's edge, the crew of the liquor-laden rum boat abandoned the craft, which was captured by coastguards.

CONFESSES TO AXE MURDERS

Negro Says He Smoked Three "Muggles" Cigarettes and Killed 2 People

NEW ORLEANS, April 15.—(AP)—Julius "Dumdum" Roberts, 22-year-old Negro held by police for the axe murder of Mrs. Henry S. Plink and her son Henry, Jr., 16, confessed late today that he hacked the two to death in their Entilly grocery store early Saturday and stole $5, district attorney Eugene Stanley said tonight.

After hours of questioning, Roberts told how he had gone to the store early in the morning with an axe, struck the boy down and then hit the woman. The Negro admitted that he was under the influence of "muggles" cigarettes. He had smoked three of the cigarettes he declared in his signed statement.

Roberts told the officers he felled Mrs. Plink beside a little cake box, took a box of coins from the store and left. The axe-murder was carried out single-handedly, he declared.

He will be formally charged with the murder tomorrow.

Mill Official Reports Invaders Forces His Plant to Close Down

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., April 15.—(AP)—F. E. Muehleider, assistant president of the American Bemberg Corporation here, said tonight that "either strikers of the American Glanzstoff plant or outsiders" forced the whole day crew of the Bemberg plant away from their machines this afternoon against their will and that both plants are closed.

He declared none of the Bemberg employees, he believed, was willing to go out. The two plants are operated under joint management, one as a textile mill and the other manufacturing rayon.

The invaders the officer said, climbed over fences around the Bemberg plant and forced their way inside the mill. He was unable accurately to estimate their number, "but said they were more than 200." Sheriff's forces were unable to keep them away.

Senate Plan for Relief Not Completed and Adjournment on Wednesday Talked

HOPES TO GET IDEAS OF PRESIDENT HOOVER

Secretary Haugen of House Committee Introduces Bill As Gavel Falls

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—The bills of the former about which three administrations have worried and talked brought the new Congress into special session today to deliberate a remedy.

Meeting at the call of President Hoover for the specific purpose of carrying out his campaign pledged for farm relief and the suggestion for tariff revision the two houses sped through the opening formalities today and paved the way to press to a conclusion the work already started on these subjects.

While there appeared a possibility in the senate that no farm bill would reach the floor before next Monday, the house moved ahead swiftly. Barely had the echoes of the opening gavel subsided before Chairman Haugen of the agriculture committee dropped into the basket a bill drafted along lines of the Republican platform and the campaign utterances of a president. It has been represented as having the tacit approval of Mr. Hoover.

A senate agricultural committee has not decided whether it will write the debenture plan into its bill and is delaying action until tomorrow with the hope that Secretary Hyde will appear before it and give the administration views upon that proposal. If the debenture plan is rejected, the general principles of the bill to be presented to the senate will be similar to the measure before the house.

With the committee undecided over which course to take, sentiment was reported growing in the senate for adjournment Wednesday over the week end to give the agricultural group time to settle the debenture question and report the bill.

Some house leaders expressed determination to make short shift of the farm bill. Members of the agriculture committee after approving their measure Sunday regarded the remainder of their work as only a formality. The bill will be referred formally to the house tomorrow after the committee has been organized for the new session and they expect to have it ready for house consideration Wednesday.

Although its program had been tentatively set to include farm relief, the related subject of tariff revision, re-portionment of the House, and a measure setting a date for beginning the enumeration of the nation's population, no one would venture a prediction as to the life of the session.

The president had been represented as favoring a limited legislative program, but he had made it plain that he would not attempt to tell Congress what to do. So it is up to the Republican leaders to guide the destinies of the session. They also favor a limitation of activity but Democratic leaders have threatened to oppose such efforts.

Only the perfunctory progress of organizing faced the House today while the Senate was ready for business immediately, as this work was taken care of in the brief session held early in March to confirm the Hoover cabinet.

Other than meeting and adjourning the Senate had little before it as the message of President Hoover will not be transmitted to the capitol by special messenger until tomorrow. In the House, however, sixty-eight new members were called to take the oath in the House alone with those re-elected last November. Of the newcomers, one, Oscar de Priest of Chicago, is the first negro elected to Congress in 23 years.

Of the other new arrivals, three were women, bringing the total feminine group there to eight.

At the other side of the capitol nine new senators, already sworn in, (Continued on page 2)
