CENSUS BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE AFTER CHANGING

PROVIDES FOR REALLOTMENT HOUSE SEATS

Passage of Bill Marked by Tenacious Situations and Skillful Maneuvering

DEFEAT PROVISION WHICH WAS AIMED AT SOUTHLAND

Export Debenture Controversy Is Thrown Back Into Senate Again

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—The census bill was passed by the house today after a stormy session featured by a successful parliamentary maneuver by leaders for elimination of two amendments which they feared had endangered the reapportionment provision of the legislation.

The bill goes back to the senate for agreement to minor changes made by the house. Passage of the legislation made it almost certain that house representation would be reapportioned among the states on the basis of the 1920 census provided by the measure.

There has been no re-allotment of the seats since 1911, although the constitution specifies that a reapportionment shall be made every ten years.

Consideration of the legislation in the house was marked by a series of the most tense situations that branch has experienced in several sessions. It saw written in the measure and then stricken from it two proposals which would have made large reductions in the representation of industrial and possibly Southern States.

The first was to exclude aliens from the count upon which reapportionment was based. The second would have excluded from the count disenfranchised citizens and was aimed at Southern States where it has been contended many Negroes were not permitted to vote.

Both proposals were adopted by the house Tuesday and the move by leaders today to strike them from the bill came as a surprise after they had failed to agree on a parliamentary method by which this might be accomplished.

The export debenture controversy was thrown back into the Senate; where the proposal was put into the farm bill over vigorous administrative opposition, by the decision of the Senate and House conferees to recommend its elimination after adjusting all other differences in the relief measures passed separately by the two chambers.

The House was called upon to act on the revised farm bill first, but little opposition appeared in sight there in view of the fact that it follows rather closely the measure passed by that chamber early in the special session.

The national origins contest, which has been in progress for several days, was expected today to reach a vote tomorrow.

The cotton controversy arose after the New York attorney's nomination had been confirmed yesterday in open session—the first open session confirmation of a presidential nomination in many years. Reconsideration was demanded by Senator Wheeler, who said he wanted time to consider some questions raised with respect to Cotton's record. Protests, it was understood, were presented to the foreign relations committee on the ground that Cotton was a member of William G. McAdoo's law firm when it was retained by Edward E. Doheny, California oil man, who subsequently was acquitted of conspiracy with Albert Fall in connection with the naval oil leasing agreements entered into while the latter was Secretary of the Interior.

Examine Number Witnesses In $75,000 Damage Action

ADDISON HAWLEY TELLS HOW HE WAS CALLED TO KRESS' STORE AND FOUND MRS. BOWEN, UNAIDED, INJURED IN FALL FROM OIL ON FLOOR

Wayne County Superior Court will convene an hour earlier this morning—at 8:30—to again take up the $75,000 personal damage action of Mrs. Mamie Carr Bowen of Faison against the S. H. Kress and Company. About one-half of the evidence for the plaintiff was introduced yesterday.

It was expected that Judge Midyette might adjourn the sessions of the court today upon the completion of the case. Members of the bar agreed yesterday that they would not ask for trial other cases at this term which might require additional juries.

Mrs. Bowen claims $75,000 of the Kress Company for injuries she sustained in a fall in the defendant's store here on December 11, 1926. The floor had been excessively oiled, it is claimed, and the plaintiff fell, and was so injured that she was unable to rise.

So severely hurt that she could not help herself, it is alleged, the employees of the company made no effort to aid her or to procure aid.

Addison Hawley, who married a niece of the plaintiff testified yesterday that a friend brought him word of the accident to Mrs. Bowen whose home was at work at the Yelverton Hotel. The latter company is about three blocks on East Walnut street from the Kress store on West Walnut street where Mrs. Bowen fell and was injured. He at once went to the Kress store, he testified, and

Life Saving Program For Red Cross During Summer

Plans for an extensive program of instruction in life saving and first aid for the summer are now being worked out by the Wayne County Chapter of the American Red Cross, in conjunction with the National Headquarters. This instruction has for years been a feature of the summer activities of the Red Cross and will be pushed more vigorously this summer than ever.

These plans call for daily lessons to children of the city at the municipally operated swimming pool, for a school in life saving and first aid, and for the organization of life saving corps throughout the county.

NARROW ESCAPE IN AUTO WRECK

Freighter Truck Sideswipes Car of Frank Banks And Continues on Its Way

Frank Banks, local white man, had a miraculous escape from serious injury or worse when his Chrysler coupe was sideswiped by a huge truck freighter on Highway 40 between Wallace and Burgaw Wednesday night about 9 o'clock. One side of the car was badly damaged, but Banks escaped with only a few slight cuts and scratches. The driver of the truck did not stop, and it was so dark the license number could not be obtained.

A piece of one of the fenders, torn off when the truck scraped by Banks' car, fell on the car, however, and it is hoped that the truck may be identified by this.

Mr. Banks and Roy Keller attended a wedding at Burgaw Wednesday evening. The News was told. Keller decided to remain over, so Banks started back home alone. When about halfway between Wallace and Burgaw, the driver of the Chrysler saw a pair of bright headlights approaching him from the opposite direction. In order to play safe he drove off the pavement, leaving only the two left wheels on the highway, it was said. The truck came closer and closer and Banks told friends that he edged further still off the road. The truck sideswiped the Chrysler, however, rippling off both left fenders, the running board and part of the top, and badly scratched the body of the car on that side. Several of the glass windows were also broken.

The driver of the truck did not even slow down, it was said, and finally, after ascertaining that he was not seriously hurt, Banks replaced a tire which had been blown out by the impact, and drove on in to Goldsboro. The left front axle was said to have been bent, forcing the local man to drive at a low rate of speed for the remainder of the trip.

City's Airport To Be Used As Permanent Port by Plane

Commercial Flyer, Native of Wayne, To Bring His Ship Here at 2 P. M.

Goldsboro gets its first commercial airplane today and the Goldsboro Municipal airport on the northeastern edge of the city acquires a plane which will be operated from the field permanently.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon Duraid Wilson, a native of Mt. Olive, expects to pilot a Travelair plane to the City's port. Accompanying him as passenger will be C. W. Barbee, also of Mt. Olive. Wilson is the first native of Wayne county to secure a pilot's license for the purpose of engaging in air commerce in his home county. Wilson saw action in the World War as a member of the aviation service, but did not secure his pilot's license at that time, being not then interested in aviation as a business. Recently, however, he has completed a course in flying in Tampa, and has been licensed as a commercial flyer.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Barbee are joint owners of the plane which they will fly regularly from the Goldsboro port.

"We are going into commercial flying," said Mr. Barbee last evening in telling The News of his plans "because we believe that aviation is one of the coming industries. We want to get in on the ground floor, and we believe that Goldsboro's location makes it ideal for the beginning of operations in Eastern North Carolina. We expect to keep our ship on the Goldsboro port from now on."

THIRTY-ONE GRADUATED

The commencement exercises closed a very successful year at Dillard high school last night. Thirty-one diplomas were issued to as many negro boys and girls. Prof. Allison Davis of Hampton Institute spoke on the subject, "Tomorrow and The Next Day." He warned the class against laziness, against misunderstanding. He said we must face the South where there are marvelous opportunities for development.

Prof. Ray Armstrong presented the diplomas and Prof. Lovett awarded prizes to students who were successful in the essay contests.

Early in the day, at Chapel service, Edward Bostic graduate of last year's class delivered certificates to one hundred and fifty children who had not been absent nor tardy during the year.

Fear Mediterranean Fruit Fly Is Discovered In City

INSECT FOUND IN ORANGE OUT OF SHIPMENT FROM FLORIDA LAST EVENING—WILL BE SENT TO RALEIGH FOR EXAMINATION BY DR. LEIBY TODAY

Has the Mediterranean fruit fly, a dread pest which attacks fruits and vegetables, been discovered in Goldsboro?

Many believed last evening that this question should be answered in the affirmative.

A soda jerk cutting an orange at Hicks and Hawley's Drug Store last evening, noticed a speck-like insect crawling in the inside of the fruit. The orange was at once opened and the insect captured and placed in a bottle.

When placed in the bottle, the insect was more of the grub-variety than anything else. But at 11:55 last evening, it had developed tiny wings. The insect was to be held at the drug store until this morning when County Agent A. K. Robertson will go with it to Raleigh to deliver it to Dr. W. Leiby, state entomologist, for examination.

The orange in which the insect was discovered was in a shipment recently received from Florida.

If the insect proves to be the fruit fly, it is possible that other infected fruit in the same shipment have been distributed in Goldsboro.

Full grown Mediterranean fruit flies were discovered in the window of a Raleigh grocer last Saturday and this discovery had led Commissioner of Agriculture W. A. Graham to assert that a serious situation confronted North Carolina. He believes, however, that with general cooperation (Continued on page 5)

WOOTEN CLAN TO MEET SOON

League Will Have Part on President of National Story Program at Bayview

Members of the Wooten Family from far and wide will meet for their fifth annual reunion at Bayview, near Washington, N. C., on Friday, June 21st. Rooms may be reserved at the hotel for those who wish to spend the night.

The meeting will be called to order at 10:30 A. M. by the President, Dr. W. I. Wooten of Greenville. A most interesting and inspiring program has been planned for the occasion. The principal speaker will be Professor Matt H. Wooten, former superintendent of the Duplin county schools, who will deliver a memorial address.

A very interesting feature of the program will be entertainment by Miss Daphne Carraway, Wilson, who is president of the National Story League. Miss Carraway will appear on the program during the morning hour, and after the picnic dinner, while the older members are in business session, she will conduct a special program of stories and stunts for the children.

Mrs. Daisy Wooten Smith, Raleigh, chairman of the music committee, will be in charge of a pre-arranged musical program. Time will be reserved for a series of short talks by various members present.

Descendants of the earliest Wooten settlers have borne the name worthily and have served their state and church with honor and generation with unselfish devotion. The Wootens have been, for a number of years, prominent and prosperous. There are hundreds of them in Eastern North Carolina and it is noted that there is an exception number of representative men and women among them. There are bankers, lawyers, doctors, educators, planters, merchants, and prominent army officers. Among the notable members present will be Col. Council S. Wooten, octogenarian resident of Mount Olive.
