That New Story.

Here is the way it has been described:

"It is certainly a thriller! Exciting at every turn! No place where it fails to interest! Holds the attention all file way through." No use now to worry over hard times, cold weather, and the Legislature. Get yourself ready to read this capital story by Dr. A. Conan Doyla. It's coming; watch out for it and hand the word around. It is a winner. Here is the way it has been described:

Valentine Shadow Party.

Miss Mattie Glenn gave a delightful party Friday evening to a number of her friends. It was a "Valentine Shadow Party" and had twice been manum Party and had twice been postponed on account of inclement weather. Notwithstanding; the elements seemed to defy them, each "lad" ventured forth with his "hasle" and was soon inside the doors of the home of their charming hostess where several hours were very pleasantly spent in social enjoyment. It was a perfect success and Miss Mattie is due the thanks of every guest for an evening of rare pleasure.

His Steight-o'-band.

A convict who had escaped from the I convict who had escaped from the Heiderson county chain gaing was arrested here by Chief Alexander and taken back last week by the Sheriff of Henderson. The convict's name was John Jolly. He had been sent up from Lincoln county for beating his mother, While here he twice picked the handwhile here he twice picked the handcuffs that bound him. One pair he handed through the prison bars as a present to some "visiting brother."
He never would tell whom he gave them to and the town of Gastonia is out one pair of hand cuffs. Chief Alexander tried to make him tell how he got them off. He at first declared it was by a sleight-o'-hand of his. But that didn't suit Mr. Alexander and he bided his time to find out. It was too bided his time to flud out. It was too cold one night to keep the fellow in the calaboose. He was taken to the Mayor's office and chained to flour. A fire was built to keep him comforta-ble and Mr. Wiley Carroll, night watchman, was given charge of the prisoner. He came in from his heat and the prisoner was loose. Mr. Usr roll quietly stole back down stairs and sent a measurer for Mr. Alexander, then returned to hold his primmer. When Chief Alexander came in there stood Mr. Carroll over his men, cover ing bim with his bullet-spitter. It was a remakably olever piece of work by Mr. Carroll. The prisoner was searched and in his shoe was found a small piece of wire bent at one end With this he had worked his "sleight-o hand" and picked the ouff-locks. A SHOOTING SCRAPE.

Those who were near enough heard Those who were near enough heard two pistol shots ring one Tuesday afternoon about four o'clock in the openway between Dr. Hoffman's deutal office and J. E. Those who looked at them in time saw two colored gentlemen fall over one two colored gentlemon fail over one another getting in to Jim Moore's restaurant, leaving a man and a woman standing in the opening. The man went into the house by a side door and in a moment or two a hip pocket with a pink handkerchief projecting and waving therefrom was seen to whirl around a corner and rapidly accompany a flexing man in a basty trip across the country. followed in hot pursuit.

A big crowd quickly gathered. Harry Harnett and Joo Cathey, both colored, had had a fight. They had run into "holts" and Harry went to the bottom, Cathey; diverting himself, meanwhile, by obstructing the pessage of the free air of heaven down Harry's whichpipe. Objecting to these distressing familiarities, Harry "turned" his antagouist, rot on him, and commenced to best ties, tharry "turned" his antagouist, got on him, and commenced to beat the steak-pounding tattoe on Cathey's face. Here Cathey's "coman" presented herself on the scene brandishing an axe, indicating in no uncertain way that her feelings would be greatly relieved if Harry would "get up off'n honey." Quick to take a hint with an axe at the back of it, and not wishing at this important juncture to be disat this important juncture to be dis-courtsous to a 'coman, Harry respon-ded with all the gallantry of genuine fright, quickly adjourned the steak-pounding performance, and get right up "off'n honey."

Taking advantage of the sudden freedom that had even to him ("ather

But this way of conducting a rusus become so disgustingly dull to Cathey that he whipped out his British building to see what interest it might add to the exercises of the hour. As he dog to see what interest it might add to the exercises of the hour. As he unrolled the weapon from his handker-chief, Harry began to side off. Bang! went the thing. Bang! it went a second time. But Harry didn't stay to see it. He conducted himself away from dar atter de fust shot.

from dar atter de fust shot.

Cathey made good his escape into the swamps and Sheriff Lottin had to give up the chase. Cathey had his shooting irons along. One fellow attempted to halt his just beyond the Baptist church, but Cathey covered him with his "bull dog" and the fellow went down behind a brush pile. The chase was a lively one and heing chase was a lively one and, being across an open country, was witnessed by numbers of speciators. The fusitive was perhaps making as many steps to the minute and as few to the mile as he ever did in his life. He is said as ne ever did in his life. He is said to be "young Joe" Cathey, a carpenter from Belmont, and has been in Gas-tenia but a short while. Harry Bernott and the woman who had the axe were haled into court yesterday morning. Harry was dis-missed and the woman bound over to court in a $50 band.

The report that Cathey had been caught yesterday morning was a fulse one. Chief Alexander's prisoner was one he had arrested on a telegram.
