Gastonia has no team to shed to-day. The $15,000 which she offered the unty for the erection of public buildigs within her bounds is still hers to e spent upon her own improvements. But the vote cast indicates that the court-house is coming one of these days. "For Removal" received more votes than any successful county oundidate in 1894, and the opposition had fewer votes in the count-up than any defeated candidate received that year. Nobody has the least reason for believing in his beart that the county-seat is a fixture at Dallas. It is but aimple instice to that town, therefore, that the county make the removal at the entitest possible date. Then the unmen of Dallas will know better what than last year, for her apportionment to depend on in their local investments.

Gastonia wanted the court-house. abe made a generous offer to the citiseas of the county. She hoped it would be accepted by them, but did not feel called upon to beg them to take it. The issue is settled for the present against bor and she accepts the altustion in the best of good humer. Her face is still to the suprise and she will now interest berself in schools, lights, water-works, streets. good roads, and other improvements. Her motto is "forward !"
