When Lieutenant Hobson arose after the introduction by the temporary chairman there was a faint smile on his fact. The audience rose with him and observed big negain and again. When he could make himself heard first words that fell from him were heard throughout svery part of the big building, for his voice was deep, resonant and clear. He said:

The ileutenant then described the great courage of the American sailor, or "jackie," as he called him. The incidents with which he illustrated this part of his address were largely drawn from his experience on practice cruises as a maval cade on the old ship Constellation. Uontinuing, he said:

"Recently, friends, I have had occasion to see "jackie" where he was sorely taxed. I feel that certain features of the incident, in which jackie played his part so well, should be referred to. It is known that when the call was made for volunteers to go on Lem Wetmere and the Nigger. Cleveland Star.

The speech of Lem. Wetmore, the Republican candidate for solicitor, de-livered in the court house Monday, was cough to make any white man puke. Wetmore made a clear-cut negro speech and completely disgusted the white Populists. Wetmore boasted about how many negroes this adminis-tration had put in office and J. Y. Hamrick, in his speech, said there were no more negroes in office than under a Democratic administration, but verybody knew that this statement sas untrue, if he meant it to apply to any Democratic appointees. Wetmore was brutally candid and told the was brutally candid and told the truth about the negroes holding office, but Hamrick was too shrewd a politician to tell the truth about a thing like that and then he knows that Cleveland sounty Populists dislike the negro anyway. Wetmore ran for mayor of Lincoloton inst year and only received one vete and it is said he voted in that election. If the people all over the district learn to know him as well as the people of Lincolaton du, it is doubtful whether he will receive many more votes for solicitor than he did for mayor.

Au Imermitemble Characteristic. Penria Herakl,

The Spanish objection to the Americau soldier is that he does not know when he is whipped, but keeps right on fighting when, by all the rules of war, he should be giving up, in the end coming out conqueror. This is not the first time. the first time this very grave charge has been made against the American soldier. Santa Anna, during the Mexican war, made the same complaint. But we do not see how our soldier is to be broken of the habit. It seems to be grounded in him.

The Record is reliably informed that a colored school committeemen took the last census of the public school children in one of the townships of this county. Charlette Observer, Aur 5.

Early resterday morning people from Charlotte and the surrounding country logan the journey to Biver Bond in all tinds of vehicles. There were bloycles, buggies, surreys, wagons and horse-backers. All went well till the Catawba river was reached at Rosale's ferry. There buggies stood in line 30 to 40 deep. It took several hours for the the river.

When once across the muddy Cu-Whon once across the mudgy Catawba, the journey was soon over. for the famous pienic ground is but a mile and a half from the river. Long before the crowd reached Col. Abernathy's old-time but charming, country residence, scores of buggies and horses could be seen hitched in the barnyard and along the forces. and along the fences.

For the comfort of the tired horses, Col. Abernathy had posted a sign at his lot gate, which read: "Drive in and have your horse fed and cared for for 25 centa." The horses neighed at there, too, that the most productive red-bugs of Gaston have seen fit to congregate and do well. Just before entering the picnic grounds a greased pole, high in the air, with a breech-luading shot-gun hanging from the top catches the eye. There is a standing offer of the gun and 520 to the one who will climb to the gun and bring it down. As yet, the gun swings undis-turbed. In the neighborhood of this pole are three or four ple counters, where the hungry can be fed on ham sandwiches, bologus sansage, peanuts, red-lemonade, Near by Mr. Jake Fasnacht, of Charlotte, ran a candy stand. As the pot boiled and bubled over the coals, the hot stuff was served to the boy and girl who had the price.

Flanking these stomach gratifiers was

Dr. Ellis, of Charlotte, with his comic coons, his tooth tongs and his cure-all medicines. In front of Dr. Elifs' ros-trum was a stand of "knock 'em downs," where the man with the strong arm, accurate eye and 5 cents to pay for three throws could enjoy himself. And to add to the pleasure of the occasion, a mounted phonograph sang war songs and recited the story of the Cuban battles in the eager ears of many. Fresh from all this the boys could go to the shooting gallery.

COL. IL L. ABBIENATHY. Still higher in the woods was the speakers' stand, with Col. Abernathy in command. He was in clover. Surrounded by all kinds of admirers, he acted as the impartial man. He showed the men of distinction no more favors than he did the common everyday fellow. That is the secret of his popularity. He is a genius. There never has been a man that could draw crowds like him. Think of a man running in the same woods pie-counters, lemonade stands, greasy pole con-tests, "knock 'em down," shooting galleries, phonographs and political speaking, all at the same time! The colonel was in unique attire yesterday. He is never gaudy, but always nest. Yesterday his feet were encased in a Yesterday his rest were encased in a pair of brand new patent leather pumps. After the speaking was over, he fed at his table in his own diving room over 75 people. They got the best he had. The food was wholesome and plentiful.

Col. Abernathy is a good farmer thrift. He has a lot of fine hoge, cows chickers and Scotch collie dogs. If is cotton and corn are good. His barns and cribs are full of horse feed. ADMIRAL DEWNYS LIVER.

A Part of It Was Removed By an Stalina Surgeon. New York Tribune.

There were a few officers of the mayy who can recall when Rear Admiral George Dawey once before faced death, and as cocasion when that officer didn't have talf a chance; but it was an occasion that he did not wish to have made public at the time, nor for some time afterward. Perhaps some will be prompted, when they meet him after his return home from the Philippines, to say to him, "Well, you had a liver!" But that is just what Admiral George Dewey hasn't, nor has he had one for several years. Now a good, whole liver is regarded as indispensable to keep a man going, but Dewey has shown to the world what he can do with only a part of a liver.

It was when Dewey was a captalu only that he underwent a terrible op-eration under an Italian surgeon's knife and hazarded a possible chance of life, and for a long time afterward he suffered intensely from the effects of the marvelous excision. The remaining part was treated to prehemorrahago, and then put back into place, and the lips made by the surgeon's knife were sawed up. The recovery was a slow process, but was a successful operation, and he is as able to do daty to-day as if no operation had ever been necessary.
