Sizing up temperance sentiand legislation in this ate, Rev. Sam Jones wrote to the Atlanta Journal the other day that, "whiskey has the at eye and the lamest legs in North Carolina of any state in this union." That is a pretty bessive statement, but if it is true there's nothing in it for the temperance forces to feel bad about. Let the eye stay black and the legs wobbly.

That he has never yet voted for a man who was elected presire of some disapour Democratic life, J. P. Davis. The first time and the last time that Mr. Cleveland was elected. Mr. Davis was in another State or something else happened that he couldn't vote, and the year Mr. Cleveland was defeated Mr. Davis youed for him all right. We can't help feeling it in our lie Summey returned the latter part of last week from Hickory, where they had been attending Davis's chance to hit it right with his Democratic Presidential ballot is coming around this fall.

It was at Dallas court Tuesday. An occupant of the bar, reading the Charlotte Observer of that morning, was posting to his mental ledger the entries on the editorial page. A chunky hand from the man in the next chair moved over into the sender's field of vision and swept an index finger down the first column. "That," whispered the owner of the hand with a grim sorrow that chuckled at itself, "shakes my confidence in government ownership." The man who spoke was Major W. A. Guthrie, of pleasant memory and delectable presence, and the editorial was about that railroad report down at Raleigh.

The presence in court the other day of two dangerously criminal little negro boys preuted a case that puzzled the ers of the law. These-little negroes about 12 or 14 years of see had been severely whipped by their father at the direction of a previous court. But they did not reform. They were eves and runaways and would ep in barns. The neighbors re not satisfied to have them at large, and the court took their intimation that it would probably be best to send them to the State penitentiary and give them light work. In this connection it may be of interest to observe, in a letter published in another colms, how the state of Texas deals with its youthful criminals. A citizen of Gastonia, Mr. Ed bitualdes, now visiting in that tate gives a brief account of what he saw at the reformatory for boys. That white and negro boys are both admitted to the sisstitution is a provision at grates barshly, even though sey be kept in separate build-M. Apast from this considertion this reformatory seems to be a good institution for the as it was designed to serve and the brief account of its workings is not without interest.

Silly to Pay Any Attention · Whatever to Bryan.

Charlotte Chronicle. A dispatch from Indianapolis to The New York Sun says that mined fight for Judge Parker nominated at St. Louis, are turning to Mayor George B. Mc-Ciellan as a man upon whom all factions in the party could agree and one who is likely to receive consideration from the convention." If the Indiana Democrats are really contemplating any such action as this, they are exhibiting a degree of silliness that is surprising. Bryan will oppose any Democrat who is nominated. He will bolt any-thing but a Pop and a Populist platform. The talk of dropping Parker or snybody else to placats Bryan is political insanity. The Peerless Populist should be dropped from all Democratic calculations. He will not have a corporal's guard of followers.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Pleasant Afternoon With Mrs. Frest Torrence-The Methers As Guests.

One of the most delightful of the many receptions for which Gastonia is noted was that given by the Tuesday Afternoon Club at the residence of Mrs. Frost Torrence last Tuesday after-noon. This reception was given to the mothers of the Club members and a number of others were invited to meet with them. The rose is the club flower and roses were used in the decoration of all the rooms. In the hall pink roses and potted plants were seen, Mareschal Neil roses were in the parlor. In the dining room the lights were burn-ing beneath red shades; beauti-ful red roses adorned the tables. The guests were taken to the dining room and seated at the tables "in the good old way." The menu consisted of chicken salad, tomatoes with mayon-naise dressing beaten biscuit, pickles, coffee and tea, pound cake, pineapple snow and straw-

On leaving the dining room, each one was given a strawberry emery as a souvenir of the oc-casion. During the afternoon the hostess entertained the club and the guests with delightful music and Mrs. T. L. Craig sang beautifully two selections which were greatly enjoyed.
