PREACHES BETWEEN INNINGS.

Wisconsin Pastor Addresses Spectators at a Sunday Ball Game in Beloit— Urges Observance of Laws.

Beloit, Wis., Special. 15th. to New York Herald.

The novelty of religious addresses between innings at a Sunday base-ball game was given to a big Beloit crowd to-day when the Rev. Joseph Carden, rector of the St. Paul's Episcopal church, one of the fashionable congregations of the city, preached on the diamond.
The sermon was given at the request of the management of the City League.

Two games were scheduled, and when the first was over Dr.
Carden was introduced and spoke for 17 minutes, using fourth commandment for his text, "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy." The fact that it had been advertised that he would speak drew numerous prominent citizens to attend who are not frequenters of Sunday games.

Mr. Carden presented the rights of all men to seek recreation on Sunday according to the dictates of their own conscience, and said as there was a State law against playing ball on Sunday every person participating was a law-breaker. Turning to Mayor Cunningham, he said,

"If I were Mayor of Beloit or the head official of the county games would be stopped until the laws were changed, and I wouldn't let any one buy liquor on Sunday, either."

After discussing public morals, Mr. Carden said poor men should be careful to keep the law, as their violation made it easier for the wealthy classes to violate the law and do greater damage than the poor men could do.

Mr. Carden took the meat trust to task, saying its members were canning hooch and horns for workmen to eat.

The preacher said he considered the matter of Sunday observance a thing for individual discretion. Working men had as much moral and religious rights to be present there as the wealthy men had to seek pleasure and recreation in their automobiles.

Mr. Carden spoke strongly against intemperance, saying it was the worst evil, working men had to contend with. He expressed sympathy with working men in their daily struggles and urged a high ideal in life. He thought they should try to obtain a law requiring weekly pay days and cash payments, instead of checks on banks, to be cashed in saloons or stores.

Mr. Carden came to Beloit recently from Winthrop, Mass., and has gained popularity with the men. It is doubtful if the Sunday sermon will be repeated, however, for while the speaker received the most respectful attention and was heartily applauded, many "fans" are opposed to the idea.

INDIAN CANOE UNDER STREET.

No One in Neighborhood Can Explain Its Presence, But Foreman of Men Who Found It Thinks It Dates Back to Hudson's Time.

New York Herald, 16th.

Out of black, oozy mud in an excavation ten feet deep in the middle of the roadway at Oliver and Cherry streets yesterday afternoon came what looked like an ancient Indian canoe 15 feet from tip to tip and three and a half feet wide amidships. It was one of the kind which the Indians were accustomed to carve out of the trunk of a tree, with delicately curved bow and stern and graceful lines. Workmen cut off one end of it before they realized that the object had been shaped, and in the effort to get it out of the excavation it was split and stove in.

John A. Dowd, a foreman for the Consolidated Subway Company, was engaged with a band of men in digging a manhole at the corner to connect a trunk line of electric wires which runs along Cherry street from Pearl street. At 1 o'clock one of his men remarked that there was a tree trunk at the bottom of the excavation. The obstruction proved to be the canoe, upside down. When the mud was scraped off the canoe, it was found that the spruce wood of which it was made was still white.

Nobody in Cherry or Oliver streets has the slightest idea how the canoe could have found a resting place where it was found, and the oldest inhabitants thereabouts do not remember ever having seen or heard of a boat like it in that vicinity. Dowd said it surely went back in its history at least to the time of Hendrik Hudson. He carefully removed the relic to a sheltered spot under the Brooklyn Bridge at Pearl and Frankfort streets, and there it was viewed by hundreds of curious persons in the course of the afternoon.

Exercise for Business Men.
World's Work.

The average city business man without physical impediments to fight against can probably get along successfully on such an exercise schedule as the following:

1. Five minutes each day of purely muscular exercise, such as can be taken perfectly well in one's room without any special apparatus.

2. Short intervals during the day of fresh air, brisk walking, deep breathing. This can all be secured in the regular order of the day's business. A man can easily spend as much as half an hour walking out of doors every day. This is for heart, lungs and digestion.

3. The reservation of at least one day a week for rest and recreation for being out of doors, for playing games, etc. This is an essential. This is for both body and mind. A man who thinks he can get along without at least one vacation time a week simply proves his ignorance.
