HOLLAFIELD CAUGHT.

Sherill Shuford Captures Isenhower's Assellant at Marion After Long and Difficult Chase -Held Without Bond Pending Developments of Latter's

Will Hollafield, of High Shoals, who, as told in The Gazette of last Tuesday, cut Ben Isenhower so severely that the latter's life was despaired of, was cap-tured at Marion Thursday night about midnight and is now confined in Dallas jail, pending the issue of his victim's wounds. At the trial before Esquire Friday at High Shoals Friday morning he was held without bail. Should Isenhower's wounds not prove fatal and should his recovery be satisfactory, bail will probably be granted. In the meantime the unfortunate man who, as witnesses testify, was literally cut to pieces, languishes in the hospital at Lincolnton, whither he was removed shortly after the difficulty, his life hanging in the balance. His chances for life, it is stated, are slim indeed. In the capture of Hollafield Sheriff Shuford and his deputy, Mr. Bob Rhyne, did some clever work They were untiring in their efforts to place the assail-ant in the hands of the law.

Thursday, shortly before train time, Sheriff Shuford received word at Dallas from an officer at Marion that the man wanted was at the Cliffs. Boarding the train, the party, which also included Isenhower's father, disembarked at Newton. At that point Mr. Rhyne and Mr. Isenhower took a conveyance and started on the trip overland. On the trip up from Dallas, Mr. Shuford, by a little shrewd detective work, ascertained that Hollafield's father, who is quite an old man, was on the train and had bought a ticket to Newton. Believing that his man was at Marion, the sheriff decided to take the first train in that direction. In the meantime he approached old man Hollafield and inquired whither he was going. He received evasive answers. He then told Hollafield that he was going to Marion after his (Hollafield's) son, whereupon the old man expressed a desire to go along with him. It was but a short time after their arrival at Marion until the ent went to work with the pros-

ROMANTIC STORY LOST.

The Gastonia Johnson Didn't Elope With a Pretty Woman -He Wasn't the Right Man-Bright Prospects Blighted-It Happened in Blacksburg, S. C.

The elopement of Mr. Nor-man H. Johnson, the silver tongued orator, and attorney general for the North Carolina Retail Merchants Association, and Miss Alice Baird, the beau-tiful and popular daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. G. Baird, of Charlotte, caused considerable excitement not only in Charlotte, where Mr. Johnson had just made two eloquent speeches within the space of an hour and where the woman in the case was a very popular and charming young lady, but in Gastonia as well.

It happened this way: The happy couple who were eloping just for the sake of an adventurous romance, passed through Gastonia on their way to South Carolina and while No. 35 was taking on passengers at Gastonia, a message was sent to their Charlotte friends from this place announcing their marriage and elopement. This little bit of information which would have been a sufficient clue to any newspaper reporter to scoop on a good surprisingly romantic story had the mislead-ing effect. In fact it gave all the Charlotte boys the impression that the couple had been married and had come to Gastonia where they had registered at the Falls House. The Observer force on duty of course first thought of the Gastonia representative.

As the telegraph offices in Gastonia were all closed long before this time the telephone system was brought into play but the Gastonia correspondent could not be aroused. However the information was received that the couple had arrived here, but as they did not register, the story was given a little more sensation, as probably they had registered under another name. Later the news went over the phone that Mr. and Mrs Johnson were registered at the Falls House, but could not be seen. With these facts gleaned from the Saturday morning's Observer the correspond-man wanted was in their hands, pects of having a newsy-sensaspend a few days with homefolks. They have been away from Gastonia nearly a year and in that time have covered a number of middle and Western States for their firm, the Carter Company, manufacturers of cigars, at Chattanooga. Mr. Crown Wilson leaves to-day for a visit to the Jamestown Exposition. On his return they will start on a tour of North and South Carolina for their

Home of Mr. J. R. Rogers Near Lucia Struck by Lightning-No One Hurt.

Mount Holly, June 11-The home of Mr. J. R. Rogers near Lucia was stauck by a bolt of lightning during the storm last night and considerably damaged. The weatherboarding was torn away and a bed in which two of Mr. Rogers' little children were usleep was wrecked. The children escaped unhurt. Mr. Rogers is one of the county's most prominent and well-to-do farmers and is also a deputy to Sheriff Shuford.

The episode was all explained in Sunday's papers, at least enough of it was given out to ascertain the fact that Mr. Johnson and Miss Baird were not married in Gastonia, but had simply passed through on No. 35 en route to Blacksburg, S. C., where they were married by a Methodist preacher, and for this reason the romantic story with a Gastonia date line was lost.
