YORK AND YORKVILLE

What's Doing Among our Neighbors Just Across the Line. Yorkville Register, 27th.

Mr. W. B. Steele, Jr., of Anderson, is on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Steele.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Strauss returned to Yorkville Saturday after a visit of two weeks to Abbeville and Cokesbury.—Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bailey of Union county, spent Friday and Saturday in Yorkville, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas F. Thomson.—Mr. W. B. Steele, of Yorkville, is critically ill as result of general break down incident to old age. He is in his 82d year.—Mr. John B. Whiteside is quite ill at his home in the Hickory Grove neighborhood, suffering from the effects of a fall sustained about two weeks ago and from the effects, also, of extreme old age.

In his sermon of last Sunday Rev. H. J. Cauthen threw out a very practical suggestion to the effect that every county seat town should have a public hospital. There is no question of the fact that there should be such an institution in Yorkville, and the town and surrounding country would do well to provide it. From two to three thousand dollars would put up a building and equip it very nicely.

Mr. D. A. Mauney of Gastonia, N. C. has opened a restaurant in the Rose Hotel building, and is fixing the place up in first class style for the accommodation of both ladies and gentlemen. The restaurant is to be in charge of Mr. D. J. Jamieson, assisted by his wife. Mr. Mauney has been in the restaurant business at Gastonia for several years past and will continue his business there, coming to Yorkville from time to time as occasion may require. He proposes to have a quick lunch counter, and also to serve anything and everything in the shape of eatables that his patronage may demand.

Mr. F. D. Hardin, accompanied by his nephew, J. W. Hardin, Jr., both of the Smyrna neighborhood, had quite a serious adventure at Rock creek on the Adair's Ferry road, about eight miles from Yorkville last Friday night, as the outcome of which they lost a mule, a wagon load of goods and had a close shave for their lives. They had come to Yorkville in a two-horse wagon and were returning with a lot of merchandise. A heavy rain came up after they had been on the road some little time, and the streams were swollen from hill to hill. It was about 10 o'clock when the wagon reached Rock creek. The clouds hid the moon and it was pitch dark. The little stream was high out of its banks and the current was hurtling by like a mill race; but without much idea of the extent of the danger Messrs. Hardin drove in and attempted to cross. The mules were soon swept off their feet and unable to make headway against the current, the whole outfit was swept down stream, a distance of about 200 yards, the Messrs. Hardin making every possible effort in the meantime to guide the mules to one bank or the other without success. Mr. J. W. Hardin, Jr., managed to swim out. Mr. F. D. Hardin, being unable to swim gave his attention to the mules. One of them became fastened in such a way that he could do nothing with it. It was drowned. He succeeded, however, in cutting the other loose, and it carried him safely on its back. Nothing could be done towards getting out the wagon and contents that night; but after securing help Messrs. Hardin went back next morning and recovered the wagon and part of their goods. Their loss, including the value of the drowned mule, was about $200.

LINCOLN LOCALS.

Lincoln County News, 27th.

Mrs. L. J. Dellinger, Miss Dellinger, and children, left Sunday for a week's visit to Mt. Holly.—Mr. John G. Carpenter, of Dallas, spent Friday in the city.—Mr. Lawrence Jenkins, of Stanley, was in town Monday.—Mr. Eric Hoover, of Gastonia, spent Sunday at home.—Right Rev. W. A. Guerry, Bishop of South Carolina, is visiting at the home of Judge W. A. Hoke.—Messrs. Edgar Love, Robt. L. Wycoff and Miss Mary Lander leave to-morrow for New York to buy goods for the E. & R. Love store.

The Orphans from the Oxford Home gave a very delightful concert Saturday night to a packed house, the Court House being inadequate to accommodate the crowd. The programme consisted of songs, recitations, dialogues, etc., and the audience was very appreciative.

There were fifteen children in the class, which was in charge of Mr. J. S. Burch, manager, and Miss Sattie Marler, teacher. The orphans arrived Saturday afternoon and left yesterday forenoon for Cherryville where they gave a concert last night. The receipts from the Lincolnton visit netted the orphans $100.

Quite a crowd of citizens gathered about the court square yesterday to watch the placing in position of the gun which the War Department has presented to our city. This gun is a small howitzer, and is accompanied by 24 large shells which form a pyramid on the green, near the gun. Several citizens have expressed disappointment in the size of the gun, but perhaps its history, when written up, will compensate for what it lacks in size. At any rate we should not "look the gift gun in the mouth." The News is glad the gun is here, and that its mouth is so large, and that it is close to the office. If certain contemporaries do not stop monkeying with the tail of our comet, and casting innuendos about the size of our eggs, we will load this engine of war with tomatoes and potatoes, and turn her loose in the direction of Shelby and Newton.

Eugene Cargell, marshal of Curio, Georgia, was shot and killed Tuesday by a negro named Colben Stimus.

The Advertiser's Handy Guide.

Volume XVIII, has just been issued by the Morse International Agency, whose reputation in the advertising field is world wide. It is a standard work of reference, indispensable to advertisers large and small, and as important to the buyer of space as a "price current" is to a buyer of goods. If any evidence were needed that this work has permanently taken the lead in its class, it will be found in the fact that the Morse International Agency has received a very large number of commendatory letters from the leading advertisers in both the United States and Europe. Not the least of its important features is its condensed form. It may be carried with ease in the pocket, and as such commends itself to every travelling salesman, who contracts for advertising in the towns along his route. It is thoroughly up-to-date and in addition to the general list of daily and weekly newspapers, are special lists of class publications grouped under the following heads: Magazines, Medical Journals, Agricultural and Religious papers and those in foreign languages. It may be obtained from the publishers—Morse International Agency, 19 West 34th Street, New York, on receipt of the price, $2.00.

Rev. J. C. Schmidt, for thirteen years pastor of the Lutheran church at Concord, has accepted a call to Pittsburg, Pa.

A lion in Luna Park, Pittsburg, escaped from its cage Tuesday, and before it could be killed, attacked a woman who was standing near, inflicting injuries which caused her death.

Durham, have returned to Raleigh.—Mr. and Mrs. Lee Thornburg are visiting the Exposition this week.—Miss Wright of Columbia, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Mitchell, returned home Monday.—Mrs. Griffin and Miss Lillian Sholar have returned to Easley, S. MORAL HEROES.

Great Menace to Our Public and Private Morality in the Modern Business Corporation—Need of Educating Individual Conscience.

Associate Reformed Presbyterian.

In the business methods of today the individual is largely lost sight of. His personality is merged in a fictitious personality, created by law, in whose name business is conducted; or it is swallowed up in some union through which labor seeks to protect itself against corporate wealth. Organization is the order, as it has become a necessity, of our present day civilization. Colossal enterprises, such as the construction of railways and canals and the furnishing of great cities with water, light and transportation, are planned, financed and executed by powerful corporations, in which men of great wealth and business capacity work together. As we would not give up the advantages which accrue to the public through such corporate activity and go back to the ways of former days, so sure is it that we shall not put an end to that corporate activity through which the advantages accrue.

Along with these benefits of corporate activity have come evils and abuses, well known and well nigh as colossal, as the benefits themselves. Extortion, graft, rebates, suppression of competition, the anarchy of labor disturbances—it is a long, dark catalog.

These evils it is not proposed to discuss particularly. But it's worth while to put the finger on a common characteristic of them all, through which we may perhaps discover the underlying evil principle and even get a suggestion of the way to a remedy. And that common fact is the merging of personal responsibility, so that the individual loses sight of himself as a moral agent and gives countenance to corporate acts and methods to which, acting singly, he would not stoop. The ring gets its hand in the public purse and divides the spoils; the trust crushes competition and extorts fabulous profits from the public; the labor union makes heroes of assassins; the mob murders the criminal, real or supposed. And yet the individuals composing ring and trust, union and mob, are not robbers and assassins. In individual life they may be men of high principle and even of Christian profession; but in taking corporate action they merge individual in corporate responsibility. And "corporations have no souls"; they may therefore act soullessly, irresponsibly, immorally—such is the reasoning.

This is the old principle of going with a multitude to do evil. It is in this instance aggravated in its manifestation, however, by the enormous exaggeration of the evils perpetrated, by the reduction of the participating multitude to its lowest terms, and by the element of cool calculation which always enters in.

Of this matter it should not be necessary to say that there is in morals no such process as merging individual moral responsibility. Every moral act of a body is the act of each individual forming the body. Every member of a mob that commits murder is a murderer. Judge Landis was right in classing oil magnates with common robbers and counterfeiters. Woodrow Wilson was right in prescribing personal imprisonment instead of corporate fines as a remedy for such evils.

Corporation ethics do not differ from individual ethics. Accountability is in the nature of the case individual.—The at-
