Fifty years ago yesterday, on Au gust 17, 1858, the first message was fished across the Atlantic on the telegraphic cable. It was a message from Queen Victoria to President Buchanan and on the following day the entire country celebrated the wedding of the old world to the new by this slender thread of instantaneous communication. It is a remarkable fact that within these fifty years from the establishment of intercontinental communication by wire, the wireless telegraph has come to completion and is now well established as a means of communication much cheaper, and fully as reliable as the old. How wonderful the progress of these past fifty years, the most fruitful in every form of materfal advancement of any half-century in the world's history. Who dares predict what wonders the remainder of the twentieth century

No death or recent occurrence has come as a greater shock to the people of Western North Carolina, and indeed of the whole State, than that of Judge Frederick Moore, which ocuccurred at his home in Asheville last Friday night. Judge Moore was attacked by fever while holding court at Bakersville only two weeks before his death, but insisted on finishing the term, and when he returned to his home the disease was welldeveloped. He was a man of splendid physique, as will be remembered by those who attended the last term of Gaston Superior Court, over which he presided, but doubtless his unwillingness to adjourn court before completing the term on account of his illness was responsible for his untimely death. izen pays the following high tribute to Judge Moore's character as a citizen and as a judge: "As a citizen a lawyer and a judge he was held in the highest of esteem and admiration. Of flawless private character and of unusual legal ability, he graced the high position to which his merits as a young man had elevated him and his lovable personality endeared him to thousands of friends. Few men in public life in the State measured so well up to his standard, because he was a well rounded man, capable, conservative, kindly, considerate of the rights of all, an exemplar of the highest citizenship and manhood."

We were surprised to learn in a conversation with Superintendent Wray, of the city graded schools, a few days ago, that some difficulty is experienced in finding homes in private families in the city for the lady teachers of the graded schools who come from other places. This is a matter, it strikes us, in which every citizen, and especially those who have children in the schools, should take a lively interest. The salaries of the teachers are not large, and that they should be forced to live at boarding houses at high rates speaks rather poorly of our appreciation of the good work they do for comparatively small compensation. The Gazette would be glad to have those citizens who are willing to take one or more teachers to board in their homes to communicate that fact to Superintendent Wray.

We are most pleased with both the number and quality of the news letters sent in for this Issue by our cor respondents over the county. They contribute very largely to the news value of the paper and are no doubt of exceedingly great interest to our subscribers in distant States who formerly lived in the places from which the various letters are dated. This paragraph is written chiefly to express our appreciation of the good work of our correspondents and to remind them of how great value their co-operation is in making The Gazette a good county newspaper. The Gazette very much desires to obtain a good correspondent in every community in the county, and if your community is not represented in our columns, this is an invitation to you to send us in from time to time such items as you think would be of interest to our readers.

Her burial took place at Shiloh cemstery Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Rankin Bereaved.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed J. Rankin was saddened by the death, Saturday evening at 3:30, of their little son William Stowe, aged 18 months and three days. The little one had been sick about a week with gastritis. The funeral services were conducted at the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock by Rev. R. A. Miller, of Lowell, the pastor, Rev. R. C. Anderson, being out of the city. The remains were tenderly laid to rest in beautiful Oakwood Cemetery.

Tried for Retailing. Summey Sain and a young man named Yoder, both of whom live near Henry, in Lincoln county, were tried at Dallas Monday on a charge of having been engaged in the un lawful occupation of selling intoxicating liquors at Hardin, in this county, last Saturday. They were arrested at Hardin Saturday afternoon as they were about to board a train by Deputy Sheriff Bob Rhyne. The evidence showed that they had brought the liquor to Hardin in glass fars, concealed in a valise, and that Sain had actually sold it, while Yoder had poured it out, so that Sain's bond was fixed at $100 and Yoder's at $50.

An Ideal Place for a Summer Resort -Son thing About a Region but Recently Penetrated by the Rail-

Edgemd cl The suggestive mountains and coves streams and fishes, cool and refreshing air and nights of restful and restoring sleep. In company with a friend The Gazette man spent Sunday at this new summer resort and he was charmed with the place. As yet practically undeveloped and unadvertised, it is yet the mecca of not a few people who seek rest from noise and strife and close communion with nature in all her grandeur. With only one small hotel and a cottage or two with accommodations for thirty or forty guests, it is not as yet prepared for taking care of any considerable crowd of people but, if properly handled and advertised, it will undoubtedly some day in the near future be one of Western North Carolina's most popular resorts.

Edgement is the terminus of the Caldwell & Northern Railway which is an extension from Lenoir of the Carolina & Northwestern Railway. It is 23 miles from Lenoir and hence about 85 miles from Gastonia. Leaving Gastonia on the week-end special Esturday evening at 7 o' clock we arrived there about midnight and soon found ourselves sleeping under cover. Just what the elevation of this place is the writer did not learn but it is sufficiently high to ensure cool nights all during the summer and the days are comfortably cool if one keeps in the shade. The hotel here was opened for the first time last summer and the first cottage was built this summer. The railroad company has erected a commodious and attractive little depot and baggage house. A concrete reservoir has been built some little distance up on the mountain above the hotel which furnishes pure cold water for all purposes. The Edgement Club is grading a road to property recently purchased on which it expects to erect a commodious and comfortable club house for its members. This will probably be ready for occupancy next season. Between the depot and the hotel rung toe clear swift Wilson creek which is spanned by a suspension bridge. Its waters are as clear as crystal except in rainy weather when they become somewhat murky. Recently this stream has been heavily stocked by the government with fish and within a season or two fishing wil be a great sport in the vicinity of Edgemont. At this point the stream is shallow and furnishes a means for great sport among the younger folks who delight to wade in its cool crys-

Two miles south of Edgement is Mortimer, the headpuarters of the Ritter Lumber Company which is operating extensively in that section. Their big plant at this point consumes an amount of timeber that is astounding to the average layman who lives in a section where lumbering is not known. This company has a flume ending at Edgemont which brings the sawed planks from saw mills as far back in the mountains as eight miles. They have flumes also at other points. At Mortimer there is a hotel and quite a number of nice homes. The town is lighted by electricity furnished by the company. A point of peculiar interest in this section of the State is Grandfather Mountain which is only about ten miles north of Edgemont. This peak is in the neighborhood of 6,000 feet high and many tourists make their way to Western North Caralina for the sole purpose of seeing and climbing this wonderful mountain. A few miles further on is Blowing Rock, another famous summer resort which is reached ordinarily by a long drive from Lenoir. Just what the plans of the railroad are is not known but it is believed that some time in the future this railroad will be extended on to Blowing Rock thus putting this isolated paradise within easy reach of the Many Gastonians will learn with regret of the death at Yorkville, S. C., vesterday evening of Rev. W. C. Ewart. The news was told in the following dispatch to The Charlott of Gastonia, and all the elements Observer of this morning: "Rev. William Cameron Ewart.

he pastor of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church at this place died at his home here this evening, Mr. Ewart had been pastor of the church here since January, 1904/and by reason of his superior ability. exalted Christian character and personal magnetism won his way to the hearts of the people, and his untimely death is a severe shock to all. About three weeks ago he was granted a month's vacation by his congregation and decided to spend t at the summer school at Northfield, Mass., where he was when stricken with gastritis and beart trouble. He immediately started home, reaching here last Friday afternoon, accompanied by his wife and family physician, both of whom met him at Gas-

Large Crowd and Most Pleasant Occassion at Union Presbyterian Church Last Saturday,

Last Saturday, August 15th, was the day set for the annual picnic in the grove surrounding Union Presbyterian church, seven miles south combined to make the occasion one of the most pleasant that has been enjoyed by the people of that progressive and prosperous community for many years.

In the first place the location is an ideal one for such a gathering, the church, which by the way is one of the most beautiful country church es the writer has ever seen, being located in a cool and pleasant grove and surrounded by a broad lawn of luxuriant grass.

Good weather was another element which contributed to the pleasure of the day, for although the temperature was high, there were cooling breezes and the heat was not oppres-

Third and most important, the large crowd of people present were all on pleasure bent and in a most friendly and congenial mood. There were present many no doubt, who found opportunity there of meeting and greeting friends whom they only see on rare occasions.

Appropriate exercises were held in the church about 11 o'clock in the morning, including an address to the Sunday school by the pastor, Rev. G. A. Sparrow, after which came what was to most the chief feature of the day, a sumptuous basket dinner, spread on a long table under the trees. It is sufficient to say that ample justice was done to this feature of the day by all the large num ber present, and there was greatest abundance of all the good things that one could wish for.

In a prettily decorated booth the ladies of the church served ice cream, lemonade and other refreshments for the benefit of the building fund and they were kept busy all the day, very probably realizing a good sum for the worthy cause.

A number of Gastonia people were in attendance, among them being Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Henry, Messrs A. M. Whitesides, J. H. Williams, W. M. Morris, Charles Moore, Thad Clin ton, Geo. W. Smith, Meek Huffstet ler, J. M. Hampton, Dr. H. F. Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Lineberger, Miss Nannie Carson, and Miss Margaret Whitesides.

What is Real Happiness? Indianapolis Star.

Young girls are found everywhere who look with yearning eyes and aching hearts upon other girls who are apparently reveling in the "good t mes" from which, for one reason and another, they are shut out. The assumption is always that the people are happy who possess what we desire and have not. It is a natural inference, but it is not always right. Under the rich gown beats many a sad heart; the calm and smiling faces hide often deep troble and anxiety. In the trains that pass the country womens door are passengers summoned by death or weighted down by impending calamity-passengers who look out upon the quiet farm houses as a peaceful and happy heaven. The young girl so envived by others because of her beauty, her accomplishments and the attentions heaped upon her, may care nothing for what is hers be cause of one thing unattainable and without which life to her seems not worth living.

No, the happiness of the world that goes by is not to be judged by appearances. People of wealth splemnly aver that money does not bring unalloyed joy, and conspicuous illustrations presented in the news columns in recent months prove at least that it does not insure bliss. Mary Anderson and Ellen Terry have lately testified that the triumphs of their profession, the applause of the public-and few women have more did not make them happy. The people who possess what others do not are likely them selves to lack some deeply coveted treasure and go uncomforted because it is out of reach. In these days of the world men and women do not wear their hearts upon their sleeves; they go about with smiles and brave faces whatever happens, but they are not always to be envied because of the light that falls upon them. For each heart, whether under silken bodice or ragged shirt knoweth its own bitterness, and of bitterness each has had its inevitable share.

Buncombe Superior Court Saturday of manslaughter and sentenced to nine years, in the penitentiary. He shot and killed Alma Green, a young girl, at Buena Vista last December.

According to Alfred Henry Lewis, in The Broadway Magazine for Sep tember, the Republicans and Demo crats will spend five million dollars on their campaigns this year. The first big campaign money was raised in 1880-$1,000,000 by the Republi cans, and $355,000, by the Democrats. In 1904, the Republicans raised $5,000,500, against $1,250,-000 by the Democrats.

The additional provisions for the insane at the Raleigh Hospital will bring the number that can be accommodated up to over 800. The epily eptic colony will add 500 to this. At the Morganton Hospital 100 more can be accommodated and this will bring the total there for which provision can be made to 1.300.
