STANDS O. K. IN YANCEY.

Webb Will Receive Strong Support in This Mountain County — McNinch Gets Cold Comfort from Yancey Republicans — The Situation There Reviewed.

Alvin Horton in News and Observer. BURNSVILLE, August 11. — The old line Republicans in Yancey are avowedly dissatisfied with Samuel S. McNinch.

Not one of them, however rabid a partisan he may be, denies that E. Y. Webb has done his duty, and is therefore deserving of the support of all good citizens.

The few who are outspoken for McNinch boast that he has money, and that they will get to use it to carry Yancey.

These three facts sum up the whole political situation here now, less than a fortnight after the Republican nominee to represent this congressional district crossed the Blue Ridge and told the highlanders the wherefore of his candidacy. Mr. McNinch doubtless enjoyed his visit here much, for the mountaineers are both hospitable and polite. He ate good rations and wasn't called "Sun Set" a single time. There are three other facts, however,—facts of all previous campaigns, which no Republican will attempt to deny, nor would he willingly deny them if he could. They indicate that McNinch's published avowal on his return to Charlotte, "Webb's efforts in the mountains are a joke," is to be classed with the equally confident but more classic assertion of John A., when he faced Mr. Webb two years ago, "Venl, vidi, vici, which translated, means, 'He's my meat.'"

1. When the Republicans of Yancey were dissatisfied with a candidate, they did not vote for him.

2. When so many of them commended a Democrat, he had easy sailing.

3. When a man of whatever party, relied on his means, rather than his ability or his issues, to elect him, he was not merely defeated, but he was literally snowed under. "Money" has been his epitaph.

I have seen and talked with a number of Republicans here today, and not one of them has essayed to palliate in the least the sudden change of the political convictions of McNinch, nor has any one predicted for him anything like the vote given Smith two years ago. They say that if a man who has passed the age of 30 years forsakes one political party and goes to another, his motives are calculated to be neither patriotic nor honorable. I am violating no confidence when I say in print that this assertion, acquiesced in by everyone, originated with an ex-chairman of the Republican County Executive Committee, ex-clerk of the court, and now a recognized leader of his party as well as one of the county's best citizens. It is due to him to say that he did not have McNinch in mind when he spoke, but I am informed that he has not reconsidered and taken it back since McNinch was placed on the ticket.

In the contest between Morehead and Duncan, the latter receives the endorsement of every Republican in Yancey, so far as I am able to ascertain. Morehead and Butler are severely condemned here, especially the latter. "Morehead and Money," "Butler and Booze"—these do not appeal to the Yancey citizenry for the simple reason that Yancey Republicans do not stand for issues so manifestly dishonorable. The fact that Morehead is interesting himself so immensely in McNinch does the latter no good here.

It is told that the few who talk McNinch favorably aver that Republicans must stick to him because his money is needed to carry the county. "We're going to beat you," one of them said to a Democrat a few days ago, "and I don't care to say that we'll do it with money. McNinch has got plenty and he can get plenty more if he needs it. Webb's a pretty good man, but we're tired of seeing the county go one way all the time, and you may bet that we'll carry Yancey for McNinch."

This sort of talk, it is said, is heard frequently among those who place party above principle.

Yanceyans, or many of them, have read Mr. McNinch's platform, and, if there is anyone who endorses it, such a one is not in evidence. No one here sees any comfort in it for the interests of Yancey—which are in agricultural rather than "business" and "manufacturing."

Application Denied.

Yesterday's Kings Mountain Herald says that an application for a receivership for the Mascot Cotton Mill Co., of Bessemer City, was denied by Judge B. F. Long in chambers proceedings in Charlotte Monday. The Badische Company, of New York, contended that the Mascot Company owed them $900 and was in immediate danger of insolvency. The company set up a counter-claim and the receivership was denied.

Picnic at Hepzibah Church.

The Gazette is requested to state that there will be a Sunday school picnic at Hepzibah Presbyterian church, about seven miles north of Dallas, on Saturday, August 27th. Congressman E. Y. Webb, of Shelby, and Mr. John G. Carpenter, of Dallas, are the speakers for the occasion. Everybody is cordially invited to be present and bring well-filled baskets. Dinner will be served on the grounds.

They Will Not Be Forgotten.

Raleigh News and Observer. The long line of Gray is thinning, rapidly crossing the river "to rest under the shade of the trees" with old Stonewall. The Gastonia Gazette says that at the Confederate reunion in Dallas last week it was reported that during the past year twenty-six of the veterans had answered the roll-call of the skies. But their lives of heroism and devotion to principle still lives!

DISAPPEARING CONFEDERATES.

They Pass Out of Public Life Sooner Than Union Veterans Do. New York Tribune.

We called attention not long ago to the practical disappearance of the "Confederate brigadier" from the roster of senators and representatives elected from the Southern States. Within the last month the number of senators who served under the Stars and Bars has been reduced by the deaths of Samuel D. McEnery, of Louisiana, and John W. Daniel, of Virginia. Only six ex-Confederates are now left in the upper house of Congress—John H. Bankhead and Joseph F. Johnston, of Alabama; James P. Tallafiero, of Florida; Augustus O. Bacon, of Georgia; Hernando De Soto Money, of Mississippi, and Thomas S. Martin, of Virginia. Mr. Money is to retire to private life next March, and his successor, John Sharp Williams, was not born until July 30, 1854. Mr. Tallafiero has been defeated for renomination in the Democratic primary in Florida, and his successor, Napoleon Bonaparte Broward, despite his name, also never had a chance to distinguish himself on the battlefield. There are left in the present house of representatives only six Confederate soldiers. George W. Taylor and William Richardson were elected from Alabama, Leonidas F. Livingston from Georgia, and George W. Gordon, from Tennessee. The other two represent States not in the Confederacy—J. F. C. Talbot coming from Maryland and A. W. Rucker from Colorado.

Commenting on the nomination of Major Charles M. Stedman as the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Fifth district of North Carolina, The Charlotte Observer recently made this interesting statement: "If elected, Major Stedman will become the only Confederate veteran whom North Carolina Democrats have had in either house of Con-

COMMISSIONER'S SALE OF VALUABLE FARMING LANDS.

By virtue of a decree of the Superior Court of Gaston County, North Carolina, made this day, in the special proceeding entitled "Mary J. F. Abernethy, Administratrix of the estate of Robert L. Abernethy, deceased, versus Reuben F. Abernethy and others," I will offer for sale to the highest bidder at public auction, at the Court House door in Dallas, at noon, on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1910, all the lands belonging to the estate of the late Colonel Robert L. Abernethy, situate in River Bend township, Gaston County, North Carolina, adjoining the lands of W. B. Hipp, Ed Lee, Cannon, Farrar, Underwood and the Catawba Electric Power & Manufacturing Co., on both sides of the public macadam road leading from Mount Holly to Lucia, containing 233 acres, more or less and known as

"OPEN VIEW FARM."

This valuable farm has been subdivided into three tracts, containing 95 acres, 62 acres and 77 2-3 acres and will be offered for sale separately and as a whole and whichever bid or bids is most advantageous will be reported to the Court.

The 77 2-3 acre tract has been allotted to the widow as her dower, and, if necessary to sell it to make sufficient assets to pay the debts, the same will be offered for sale subject to her life estate.

Terms of sale: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash and the balance, in two equal installments on a credit of six and twelve months, deferred payments to bear interest from date of sale, with privilege to the purchasers to pay all cash, title and possession reserved until the entire price is paid.

The lands will be shown to prospective bidders upon application to the undersigned on the premises.

This August 19th, 1910.

MARY J. F. ABERNETHY, Commissioner.

gress for fifteen years, Populist-Republicans excepted. North Carolina has sent no Confederate veterans to Congress since Senator Ransom's forced retirement. Unless Governor Russell (very much not a Democrat) should be counted nominally a Confederate, none of the last four governors comes under this category. In offices of state and the legislature Confederate veterans have for years been almost freakishly scarce."

It cannot be that the Southern Democrats have ever intentionally discriminated against Confederate veterans. The men who fought and rose to leadership in the Confederate cause became natural leaders in politics in their states after the war ended and reconstruction began. It must be that the new generation is displacing the older a little more completely in the South than in the North. There are nine members of the senate who fought in the Union armies and sixteen Union veterans in the house or representatives. Yet in the South service under the Confederacy was much more of a title to political preferment than service in the Union forces was at the North, the South being more one-sided politically and more single-minded in its devotion to the issues of the past. The submergence of the Confederate veteran by the politicians of a later generation only proves that in politics as in every other line of activity the nation is rapidly losing touch with issues and actors in the soul stirring period of the civil war.

A County Hospital for Alamance. Lexington Dispatch.

Alamance county is attracting attention on account of a vigorous and successful movement to establish a hospital. The county has given ten acres of land and $3,600 was realized off-hand. Following this a thorough canvass among the people was begun for additional funds. This is one of the signs of better times. Our people are thinking more about health and are seeing what a great waste of life there is in the absence of modern facilities for caring for the afflicted. In short, the value of human life is being realized more and more. Davidson county people could easily secure a county hospital. They are wealthy. Their county this year has gained a million and a quarter in property valuation over last year, and it hasn't been a very good year for gains, either.
