We wish to announce that we have just completed the erection of an up-to-date gin plant, consisting of three 80-saw gins, operated by electrical power. It is located near the Gray Manufacturing Co.'s mill at the intersection of the Pisgah and Kings Mountain roads and is well situated for the convenience of the farmers on these two roads. We have also erected a warehouse for handling seed and will keep a supply of cotton seed meal on hand for exchange purposes. This plant, together with the one situated at our mill, gives us a total ginning capacity of 75 bales of cotton per day, consequently we can assure our customers of the promptest and most efficient service.

About Gaston Mills.

The Mill News, published at Charlotte, in its issue of last week, carried on the editorial page a two-and-a-half column article on Gaston county mills, written by a representative of the paper who made a personal visit to them. Facts are given about twenty-nine of our cotton factories. The article contains a large amount of information and is interesting. We note that the article says, with reference to the Gastonia mills that the Flint is running day and night, the Ozark on full time, the Modena on full time, the Avon at full blast, the Clara and Dunn on full time, the Trenton day and night, the Arlington full time, and of each of the others it is stated that they are doing exceptionally well.

Broke Jail.

Jim Stirling, a negro under bond for trial at the next term of court for selling cocaine, and Curley Mitchell, white, one of the pickpockets caught here on circus day, escaped from the Dallas jail last Thursday night and succeeded in getting away. Up to the present both are still at liberty. They succeeded in making a hole in the brick wall through which they crawled. There are now no cells in the Dallas jail, they having been removed to the new jail here.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Gastonia Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Gastonia. Follow the advice of a Gastonia citizen and be cured yourself.

J. T. Chaffin, 427 Loray Mill House, Gastonia, N. C., says: "For several months I was bothered by pains through my loins. That my kidneys were disordered, was plainly shown by the unnatural condition of the secretions. I took several remedies but received no benefit until I finally heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a supply at the Abernethy-Shields Drug Co., and soon after I began using them, the pains in my back ceased. The difficulty with the kidney secretions was also corrected. I cannot say too much in favor of this valuable remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

HIS TWO BAD DAYS.

Lord Byron Had a Positive Dread of Fridays and Sundays.

The belief in palmists and soothsayers is not, as is sometimes supposed, confined to the ignorant and the credulous. Lord Byron was not a skeptic in those matters. Just before his death, as recorded in "Byron—The Last Phase," by Richard Edgcumbe, "he said he had reflected a great deal on a prediction which had been made to him when a boy by a famed fortune teller in Scotland. His mother, who firmly believed in chiromancy and astrology, had sent for this person and desired him to inform her what would be the future destiny of her son. Having examined attentively the palm of his hand, the man looked at him for a while steadfastly and then with a solemn voice exclaimed, 'Beware of your thirty-seventh year, my young lord, beware!' He had entered on his thirty-seventh year on Jan. 22, and it was evident from the emotion with which he related this circumstance that the caution of the palmist had produced a deep impression on his mind, which in many respects was so superstitious that we thought it proper to accuse him of superstition. 'To say the truth,' answered his lordship, 'I find it equally difficult to know what not to believe. * * * You will, I know, ridicule my belief in lucky and unlucky days, but no consideration can now induce me to undertake anything either on a Friday or a Sunday. I am positive it would terminate unfortunately. Every one of my misfortunes—and God knows I have had my share—has happened to be on one of those days.'—London Gentlewoman.

FAMOUS SWORDS.

The Monster Weapon Used at Welsh Eisteddfods.

The largest sword of which there is any record is the seven foot ceremonial sword that was made for Edward III, and is now preserved in Westminster abbey. Next comes the "sword of ceremony" that is used at Welsh eisteddfods. This weapon if placed in the hands of a modern Godfrey de Bouillon, who, it will be recalled, with a two handed sword cleaved a Turk into halves from the shoulder to the hips, would be quite long enough for any one who wished to put it to practical use. It is six feet two inches in length.

Of gorgeous swords which are not so much weapons as settings for precious stones the most valuable in English is said to be the one presented by the Egyptians to Lord Wolsey and valued at $10,000. This sum is comparatively insignificant for a bejeweled sword if the value of the sword brought over to Europe some years ago by the then shah of Persia—namely, $50,000—be taken as a standard of what a diamond tilted weapon ought to cost. Competent authorities on the subject familiar with that famous weapon of the Persian ruler are rather skeptical as to the existence of the gawkwar of Baroda's gorgeous blade, which is supposed to be worth more than twenty swords of equal beauty and value to the shah's, but it is popularly supposed that the diamonds, rubies and emeralds with which it is thickly encrusted bring up its value to about $1,000,000.—Exchange.

How Thackeray Worked.

If ecarte is to be held responsible for Thackeray's appearance as an author, his erratic methods of work contributed equally to his early death. He wrote invariably with the printer's devil in attendance.

"I can conceive nothing more harassing in the literary way," wrote Motley to his wife in 1858, "than Thackeray's way of living from hand to mouth. I mean in regard to the way he furnishes food to the printer's devil. Here he is just finishing the number that must appear in a few days. Of course whether ill or well, stupid or fertile, he must produce the same amount of fun, pathos or sentiment. His gun must be regularly loaded and discharged at command. I should think it would wear his life out."

Motley's fears were realized within a few years.—London Chronicle.

The Homeric Controversy.

It was about the year 1795 that the "Homeric controversy" began. About that date F. A. Wolf, in his Prolegomena, argued that the Homeric poems were composed of independent epic songs, collected and arranged by Pindar about 550 B. C. Wolf's theory created a great stir among scholars and poets and inaugurated the fight which enlisted most of the learned men of the day. Mr. Andrew Lang, in "Homer and the Epic," 1893, vigorously defended the "one author" theory, as opposed to the idea of Wolf that the famous poems were composed through ages by many different persons.—New York American.

Shot Out.

Rev. Mr. Waters—Look at Bill Burrey, for instance. It was the demon rum that made him the one eyed, low browed sot that he is today. Cactus Charley—Not altogether, parson. It mebbe made him a low browed sot, but it was me that made him one eyed.—Judge.

A Love Passage.

"Love! Ah, love!" cooed the sentimental maiden. "I feel as if I could live on nothing but love."
"Do let me be your caterer," returned the ardent youth at her side.—Boston Transcript.

Whoever sincerely endeavors to do all the good he can will probably do much more than he imagines or will ever know.—Miss Bowdler

LAWYERS IN GERMANY.

They Cannot Advertise, and Their Fees Are Fixed by Law.

The German law fixes the exact fees which a German attorney has to claim for all kinds of professional work, and the rechtsanwalt can charge neither more nor less.

These fees apply to all matters of the civil code and of criminal cases. The amount, according to the Green Bag, depends exclusively on the value of the object of contention.

It is an old though still unfulfilled wish of German lawyers to have a new fixed list of fees, not made after the old and low standard of the year 1870, but made with consideration to the changes—the numerous decided changes—which have taken place since that year.

The rechtsanwalt is attorney and counselor at law all in one (in England solicitor and barrister). The rechtsanwalt can never be a business man, as is the case in the United States.

The exercise of the law is not to be considered a calling of profession, but is to be looked on more as a public office. According to the lawyers' code of the 1st of July, 1878, a lawyer is charged publicly with certain duties.

He is obliged to have his residence in the town or district where he is appointed (so called residence duty). Further, he must conduct himself in and out of office in a way befitting his professional and social standing—i. e., duty due to his rank. Thus a lawyer is forbidden to advertise in newspapers, by canvassing, etc., or to buy or take over a practice already made as being unworthy of his calling.

His position in society is between officials and scholars, and through custom and law he is compelled to keep the position to the last degree. This compulsion to keep one's rank has given rise to the existence of committees called anwaltskammern, whose duty it is to keep a strict watch that no lawyer dishonors his calling. These committees have a strict code of punishment, ranging to complete expulsion from office. In this way the lawyers in Germany have a good and honored position. In fact, there is scarcely a country in which the lawyer enjoys more respect and confidence.

TASMANIA.

Nicknames Applied to the One Time Convict Settlement.

"Tasmania is perhaps the most interesting of the states of our commonwealth," remarked the Australian. "It is a large triangular island lying to the south of Melbourne and was once a convict settlement."

"The climate is delightful and the soil remarkably fertile. The island is practically one large orchard, where peaches, apples, cherries, etc., are grown in sufficient quantities to keep the adjoining continent supplied, with some left over for export to England. As fruit trees do not require much tending, leisure is a notable characteristic of the inhabitants, and Tasmania is known throughout the antipodes as 'the land of lots of time' or 'the land of sleep a lot.' It is also called 'the jam country' and its natives familiarly termed 'jam eaters.' This is on account of the presence of an enormous cannery in the island, where some of the orchard products are converted into jams, jellies and preserved fruits."

"But this by no means ends the list of Tasmanian nicknames. Two Dutch explorers—Tasman and Van Dieman—had to do with the discovery of the island, and although the name of Tasmania is now used, it is often referred to in old school books as Van Dieman's Land. We find it amusing to twist the latter name a bit and call the Tasmanians 'demons,' which is a shame, as they are the mildest and best fellows in the world. They speak of themselves as 'Tasies,' and that may be accepted as their unofficial designation."—New York Press.

The Test of Greatness.

When Elliston went from London to his own theater at Birmingham he was known to scarcely a member of his own company. On reprimanding one of them sharply the irate actor threatened to kick him off the stage. He rushed to the stage manager and asked who that man was.

"Mr. A.," said the manager. "A great man, a very great man," said Elliston. "He threatened to kick me, the lessee of Drury Lane. Such a man as that must go to London. He mustn't waste his energies here." And he engaged the actor on the spot for Drury Lane.

His Method.

The little girl who was visiting at a neighbor's house had gone out to look at the horses.
"Here's one of them," she said, "that has watery eyes and coughs and hangs his head just the way papa's horse did last summer."
"What did your papa do for his horse?" asked the owner of the animals.

"He sold him," was the innocent answer.—Pearson's Weekly.

Rules For Dress.

Dress yourself fine where others are fine and plain where others are plain, but take care that your clothes are well made and fit you, for otherwise they will give you a very awkward air.—Lord Chesterfield.

The Object of Disputes.

"Were you a bull or a bear when you went into Wall street?"
"Neither. I was one of the fellows they were both after."—Exchange.

Our generosity should never exceed our abilities.—Cicero.
