PRESS AND PULPIT.

Charlotte Chronicle.

In a friendly letter to this newspaper Rev. W. C. Barrett, pastor of the First Baptist church of Gastonia, makes the point that the press of these times is too far removed from the activities of the pulpit. I want to commend you, he says, for publishing sermons in your paper recently. I have heard several favorable comments on it. As a rule too little from the pulpit and too much from the slums gets into the papers. Often our daily papers display and magnify the worst of our city life and neglect the best of its. The guit between the pulpit and the press is too

Mr. Barrett is right, but with some modifications. The truth is that while the press is somewhat distanced from the pulpit these times. the line of separation is not nearly so distinct as it was in other times. If the gulf is at present too broad, it must have been staggeringly so .. few years ago for it is a matter of common knowledge and observation that there never was a time in the career of journalism when it was paying so much attention to the activities of the church as right now. Church news is being displayed and magnified to the exclusion of the slum tragedies and back street scandals which were formerly crowding out of the newspapers the most worthy and the most constructive char-

This incident brings up the old agitation as to what to print and every day there is evidence that the best newspapers of the times are getting around to the conception that there is more interest in the building of a bridge than in the tearing down of a character. They are discarding the colored and sensational stuff that was eagerly devoured a few years ago and seeking at this moment to educate the people up to a point where they will appreciate news of a constructive type. After all this is the only sort worth while and the only sort that the people should have an interest in. Possibly it is true that the pulptt and the press are still a good distance apart. The point however, we are making and the point we believe that the ministers and church people generally will accede to is that they are getting closer together every day. The metropolitan newspapers are finding in the activities of the church a character of news that is not only worth printing, but precisely the character of news in which a great throng of their readers are directly interested and in which they have a prominent part. Through their news and editorial columns they are endeavoring to do a service to the church by the dissemination of news and comment favorable to whatever line of effort the churches are putting forth and in this manner they are reducing by material distances the breadth of the gulf that has been separating the pulpit and

NASH ELECTS

Dr. Washburn, of the State Board of Health, Elected Whole Time County Health Officer.

At a recent meeting of the Nash County Board of Health Dr. B. E. Washburn, of Rutherfordton, was unanimously elected whole time county health officer. Dr. Washburn was selected from a list of 12 or 15 applicants for the position and is considered unusually qualified for such work.

Dr. Washburn holds the degree of A. B., A. M. and M. D., being a graquate of the University of North Carolina and Virginia. For several years he was librarian at both universities. After graduating in medicine at the University of Virginia he spent one year in hospital practice and later, a year in private practice, at his home town. This he gave up to accept a position with the Rockefeller Sanitary Commission as field director, in which capacity he has been employed for the past year.

Nash county is fortunate in securing the services of this particularly qualified young physician who will devote his entire time to preventing sickness and reducing the death rate in that county.

Nash county is also to be congratulated for taking this wise and progressive step. It is unfortunate that more of our counties do not do likewise.

NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERING

But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death.

Medicines patched me up for awhile but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.

I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly trou-

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength. If you are a woman, give it a fair trial.

If you are a woman, give it a fair trial. It should surely help you, as it has a million others.

Get a bottle of Cardui to-day.

GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE.

Famous Inventor Who Died Last Week Started His Career at Fifteen—Many High Honors Conferred Upon Him in America and Europe,

George Westinghouse, inventor of the air brake and many other valuable decises, who died last Friday at his home in New York city, was 68 years old and was perhaps best known as the inventor of the airbrake which bears his name and which revolutionized railroading in this country. He was born at Central Bridge, N. Y., and received his early edite ation in the common schools. He served in the war between the sections. At his death he was the president of nearly 30 corporations.

The airbrake which he invented is used throughout the civilized world and in almost every part of the globe are great plants which he

Mr. Westinghouse became an inventor when 15 years old, producing a rotary engine. Four years later he constructed a device for replacing derailed steam cars. Then, when 21 years old, he sought the financial backing of the late Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, for his now famous airbrale, perfected after three years of labor.

"Do you mean to tell me you can stop a railroad train by wind?" demanded the commodore. "Well, yes, inasmuch as air ts wind, I suppose you are right," spoke the youth.

"I have no time to waste on fools." said the commodore, thus abruptly rhave no time to waste on tools, said the commodore, thus abruptly terminating the interview. Westinghouse sought and found capital elsewhere, manufactured his invention, and made high speed possible on railroads, revolutionizing traffic systems.

Mr. Westinghouse did not confine his genius to railroads. For half a century he continued to make other contributions to electrical as well as engineering advancement. His inventions and improvements had to do with railway signaling and power safety devices and for economically conveying natural gas over long distances and using it for fuel: air springs for motor vehicles of all kinds, and a geared turbine system for the propulsion of ships, developed in collaboration with the late Admiral George W. Melville, U. S. N., and John H. MacAlpine.

In return for his achievements the highest honors of technical cocieties and institutions of Europe and America were bestowed upon Mr. Westinghouse. European sovereigns also conferred distinguished orders. As recently as last December he received from the principal engineering society of Germany the celebrated Grashof gold medal.

Mr. Westinghouse founded many manufacturing companies in the United States and abroad, including plants at East Pittsburgh, Wilberding, Swissvale and Trafford City, Pa., and others in Hamilton, Canada: Manchester and London, England: Havre, France; Hanover, Germany: St. Petersburg, Russia: Vienna, Australia, and Vado, Italy. In these tradustries about 50,000 persons are employed and the companies have a capitalization of $200,000,000.

Mr. Westinghouse's mental alertness and activity remained unimpaired to the last. His final years of life were among the most productive.
For several months, however, he had limited his activities.

Lands Restored to Entry.

Nearly $8,000 acres of land from a former oil withdrawal in Wyoming were restored to entry by the President during February on the recommendation of Secretary Lane, examination of the land by the United States Geological Survey having shown that it is non-oil in character. In Idaho about 2,000 acres of land, heretofore withheld from entry in powersite reserves, were found to have no hower value and were therefore restored.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured.

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. Is it not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a tribe? "About one year ago." says P. H. Beel, of Walelee, Mich. "I bought a passage of Chamberlain's Tablets, at I since using them I have felt perform well. I had previously used any name of different medicines by none of them were of any lasting henefit."
