HUGHES AND THE 8-HOUR LAW. (By Savoyard.)

The loftiest sort of eloquence is that which makes men think. Tom Corwin, of Ohio, was one of the most effective stump speakers our country ever produced, but he never made anybody think. His power came from his genius as an actor. John C. Calhoun and Daniel Webster set men a-thinking, though neither was the captivating orator Henry Clay was. was far superior to Abraham Lincoln; and he never failed to get the greater share of the applause; but Lincoln always managed to say something that set a lot of folks to thinking, and when a political speakor has done that his case is virtually

Woodrow Wilson is the most powarful public speaker of our day. ad thinker himself, he has he rare gift to say things that set ers to thinking. As a master of the English tongue he never had a ior in our hemisphere, not even Edgar Allen Poe, wizard of Engsh speech. Wilson is what Abraham In would have been if Lincoln had been a collegiate and a student. oln read men; Wilson reads men

At Shadow Lawn on September 20 Mr. Wilson, in a public address, de-livered himself of the following, that is very suggestive of Lincoln:

"I want to suggest to you a means of testing your fellowmen, as to whether they know what they are talking about or not. It is not neceary for a man to come-and argue with me on obvious moral principle, but I am very much interested when he comes and argues as to how he is going to make it work. And when men say, "We must not permit an or-ganization to neglect the interests of society,' I say 'Amen,' but what I want to sit down and discus with you is, how are you going to prevent it?

"The only thing worth talking about in politics or any other sphere is the constructive idea. How are you going to do it?' We all know, or at any rate we pretend to know, what we ought to do, but we do not all know how to do it, and the very difficult question which the American people is now face to face with, and which they are going to settle, is 'How are we going to organize our participation as a partner in the settlement of disputes between capiof the nation?' Invite all subscribers to suggest a method!" I'll bet when Charles E. Hughes read that the next day be felt and ked just like Stephen A. Douglas did 58 years before, when Abraham Lincoln put those searching practical questions before him at Freeport, III.

Interpreted, it means: "What would you have done, Mr. Hughes?" It is a question that comes to everyan small, well as great. It pestered on, as he sat on a throne of iv-Solomon, as he sat on a throne of ivory, under a drown of jewels, in a palace of cedars. It plagues the humble shepherd with his crook as he tends his gentle flock on peaceful walk remote from public haunt. Of course it came to Shakespeare, who treated it thus: "If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches and poor men's cottages princes' palaces.'
Hughes employs a heap of what

To Cure a Cold in One Day

the late Tom Reed called "lans-wige" to keep secret what he would do in any given case.

We all know what Wilson has done and from that we can augur what he will do. Nobody, not even himself, pretends to know what Hughes would do under any circumstances whatever. Hughes says that Wilson surrendered to the labor unions when he averted the railroad strike. Wilson answered that charge con-clusively in his great speech of Sep-tember 23 that no conscientious vot-er should neglect to read.

But what of Mr. Hughes' surrender? In Wall Street there is good and bad. There are concerns engaged in legitimate business, and they are public benefactors. There are other concerns in Wall Street vicious from skin to marrow. Gavin McNab. of California, characterizes them this way: They add two things to-gether, call them five, and sell them to the public for ten. These are the gentry who got hold of the Hartford Railroad a few years ago. Their business is to water railroad stocks Their motto is "the public be damped." Hughes has surrendered to those chaps. He has not and he does not criticise them, much less de-nounce them. Their newspaper or-gans are all for Hughes, and they hate Wilson with the hatred of fear. They are against the eight-hour law: Hughes rails against the eight-hour law. They are for the repeal of the reserve banking system; Hughes at Milwaukee came out for the repeal of all the constructive work of the Wilson administration, of which the Federal reserve banking system is not the least.

Hughes says the eight-hour law is a cowardly surrender. Then' what sort of a coward is the G. O. P. as it is represented in the two houses of Congress? In the House of Repre-sentatives 154 Republicans voted on the passage of the eight-hour law, 70 of them voted for it, including Joseph G. Cannon. The very cream of the Republican party lined up with Uncle Cannon to approve the act of the Democratic President in averting the strike. The Republicans in the Senate could have prevented this "surrender." Any one of them could have avoided it by a little bit of a filibuster. They did not do it because they were too cowardly to do it. All the cowardice that appeared on that scene was located on the Republican side of the United States Senate September 1, 1916. They had the will to bring on industrial chaos they lacked the courage. As Addison put it, they were willing to wound but a-feared to strike the blow, and that is about the meanest cowardice there is.

Mr. Hughes says he is for the hour day for labor. Then what is he howling about? The Adamson law provides the eight-hour day. When Hughes says he is for the eight-hour ay and denounces the Adamson law, he reminds me of that Kentucky county judge who made an order authorizing the construction of a bridge ross a river and refused an order to open a roadway through the forest to the bridge. His Honor was for the bridge but against its use. Hughes is for the eight-hour day but against its practice. He is agin everything. What the devil is he for?

A Correction. The Gazette was in error in its is sue last Friday in stating that the miniature steamship Lurline, which is on display at the Gastonia Hardware Company, was made by Mr. William Jones. Mr. Everett Jones erected the model.

Teachers Meeting.

County Superintendent of Schools Hall requests The Gazette to state that there will be a special teachers' meeting at the court house in Gastonia Saturday of this week from 9:30 to 12:30 o'clock. Every public school teacher in the county is expected to be present.

Small Fire Yesterday.

The fire department was called to Dr. F. G. Wilson's residence on West Airline avenue yesterday afternoon to extinguish a blaze which had started in a small shed adjoining the kitchen. While the fire was burning fast it was soon extinguished. The damage will not exceed $25.

Attending Presbytery. Rev. Dr. J. C. Galloway, pastor of the First Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, and Mr. A. M. Whitesides, one of the elders, left yesterday afternoon for Richburg, S. C., to attend the annual meeting of the First Presbytery, which convened at Union church near Richburg, this morning: The A. R. P. Synod meets this year at York, S. C., on Wednesday, November 15. Pisgan church is represented at Presbytery by Rev. J. B. Hood, pastor, and El-der Charles Pearson.

. THE GAZETTE $2.00.

On and after January 1, 1917, the subscription price of The Gazette will be $2 the year instead of $1.50 as at present. Until that date new subscriptions and renewals will be taken at the old price. All subscriptions are strictly cash in advance. This increase in the price of the paper is rendered imperative because of the unprecedented increase in the cost of print paper and all other materials which enter into the making of a newspaper. THE FLORAL FAIR.

Annual Flower Show by Betterment Association Will Begin Thursday Evening in Armory Building — Much Interest Manifested,

After the big municipal Halloween party in the armory building tonight the next event of importance is the annual floral fair to be given by the Gastonia Woman's Betterment Association in the same building Thursday evening and Friday of this week, November 2 and 3. The doors will be open to the public at six o'clock, and supper will be served. At seven o'clock there will be a fancy drift on the streets near the armory by the Gastonia Pythian Drum Corp. Besides supper Thursday night, the ladies will also serve dinner at noon Friday. The menus to be served are given below. The weather has been exceedlingly favorable during the past several weeks for the chrysanthemums and other flowers, and the display this year is expected to be fully up to former high records. One admission tag, at ten cents, is good for both days. There will be candy and other refreshments for sale, as well as the regular menus.

LETTER FROM MRS. WILSON.

Correspondence of The Gazette. DAVIDSON, Oct. 30.—The following letter was recently received by the editor-in-chief of last year's "Quips and Cranks," the college annual from Mrs. Woodrow Wilson: The President's Cottage

Elberon, New Jersey My Dear Mr. Mullen: I am deeply touched by the gener-ous thought which prompted "the boys" of Davidson College to send me so beautiful a copy of the year Will you not express to them my warm appreciation—and say with what pleasure I read their loyal and splendid tribute to the President expressed in the Dedication. .The book came yesterday, so I hasten to thank you for your letter and the good wishes it brought. With regards, in which the President joins, believe me, Cordially and sincerely yours, EDITH BOLLING WILSON. October 17, 1916.

McAdenville Matters.

Correspondence of The Gazette.
McADENVILLE, Oct. 26.—We are boring with a big auger here yet. The county bridge will soon be finished, the concrete work on the race will also soon be finished, the cap stone back on the dam and the mills will be running day and night.

Tells How Vinol Made Her Strong

In her eighty-second year Mrs. John Wickersham, of Russellville, Pa., says: "I was in a run-down, feeble condition and had lost flesh. A neighbor asked me to try Vinol, and after taking two bottles my strength returned; I am gaining in flesh, it has built up my health and I am feeling fine for a woman of my age, so I get around and do my housework."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Wickersham's case was because it contains the very elements needed to build her up.
