A BAD MOVE.

Gastonia business men are entering vigorous protest against a proposal of the Piedmont & Northern Railway to move its passenger station from the bus iness section of town to the corner of East Franklin avenue and South Broad street. If such a step were taken it would not only operate against the interests of the merchants of Gastonia but would work a great hardship on the traeling public as it would remove the passenger station some distance from the business part of Gastonia. The P. & N. has almost a monopoly on the travel between Gastonia and Charlotte, because of the convenience of the schedules, but it would almost certainly lose a large percentage of this trade should this move be

If we understand the attitude of the business men of the town they would not I object to the office being moved to some point on South street between the square and Franklin avenue but they are opposed to its being taken out of the business part of town. We believe if the officials of the road will carefully investigate the situation and give due consideration to the matter the proposed move will be abandoned.

BIRTHDAY DINNER FOR MR. A. M. WHITESIDES.

Mr. A. Monroe Whitesides was sixty years old Friday but he had forgotten the fact until, about dusk, he came in from the back yard, where he had been sharpening a saw, to find a number of his friends gathered in the parlor around a glowing fire waiting to greet him and to join him in partaking of a sumptuous repast which Mrs. Whitesides and his his daughters had prepared in honor of the occasion without letting the guest of honor know anything about it. The guests were Rev. Dr. J. C. Galloway, Messes, Ed Whitesides, J. E. Lindsay, J. H. Matthews, M. T. Wilson and E. Lee Wilson and B. M. Weir. The occasion was a most delightful one and the guests departed wishing Mr. Whitesides many returns of this happy event in his life.

President and Mrs. Wilson spent a quiet day in Paris yesterday. They went to church in the morning and took a long auto ride in the afternoon. President Wilson received the new ambassador to France, William G. Sharp.

'LOOK PLEASANT SMILE A LITTLE"

Says This Photographer As She Presses the Bulb and Makes the Grouchy Grin.

Asking other people to "look pleas ant" is an important part of a ph tographer's business, and it is equally as important that the photographer should look pleasant while making the request Mrs. F. G. Harris, Raleigh's well known photopraghic artist, points out that her work often requires her to wear a genial smile though utterly miserable at the moment. Mrs. Harris says:

"Being a photographer requires me to be in my studio nearly all of the time I have had to be there in sile of the fact that I suffered from indigestion for three years and was very nervous. I could not sleep at night owing to gas on lose considerable weight. Peplax brought tions. a change and now I can eat heavy food for breakfast and enjoy it very much. I sleep like a babe and take more interest in my work. I want others to take Penlax as I have for it has caused me to gain in weight and feel real jolly."
