(By The Associated Press) NEWARK, N. J., April 28.—Major General Leonard Wood was leading Senator Johnson of California by 332 votes in the New Jersey preferential presidential primary contest at 11 o'clock this morning.

NEWARK, N. J., April 28.—Revised returns from 1,802 out of 2,025 election districts, tabulated at 7 o'clock this morning, showed that Major General Leonard Wood was leading Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, by 723 votes in the New Jersey preferential presidential primary contest. The vote was: Johnson 47,554; Wood 48,392.

United States Senators Waller B. Dyer and Joseph S. Freelinghusen, pledged to the presidential choice of the voters as expressed at the primary, have been elected as members of the republican "big four" by substantial pluralities over their eight opponents.

With but 235 precincts missing, the vote was: Freelinghusen, 50,903; Edge, 45,791; Stokes 48,125; Runyon 43,229; Raymond 40,900; Ballard 40,633; Layden, 40,532; Griggs, 39,372.

Complete returns from five districts showed the election of five Wood, four Johnson district delegates and one unpledged. Incomplete returns from six other districts indicated the election of eight Wood, two Johnson and two unpledged delegates, although the vote in some cases was close.

Governor Edward I. Edwards, who has announced that he would carry the fight against prohibition onto the floor of the San Francisco convention, was elected head of the democratic "big four."

Other democratic delegates at large elected, all without opposition, were James B. Nugent, Essex county democratic leader; Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly, of Trenton. Democratic voters did not have an opportunity to register their choice for president, there being no candidates names printed on the ballot, although all of the "big four" and virtually all of the district delegates are pledged to the candidacy of Governor Edwards.

The revolt of Colonel Francisco Del Arco with his troops in Chihuahua was part of a pre-arranged plan, General Calles said. He also announced he expected to have reports of two other Carranza leaders in the same state having joined Del Arco with their men.

General Calles last night received a report that General Ramon Iturbide, Carranza military commander in the states of Sonora and Nayarit, and who is preparing to resist troops under General Agustin Flores in their march on the port of Mazatlan, had announced he would evacuate the port unless Carranza reinforcements reached him before the rebels.

LOWELL LOCALS. Correspondence of The Daily Gazette. LOWELL, April 28.—Misses Annie and Mary Ford spent the week-end in Salisbury.

Mr. W. H. Holmes left Monday for Washington, D. C., on a business trip. Mr. Frank Robinson, of the Rexall Drug store, of Rutherfordton, spent Sunday in town.

Miss Essie Brimer returned last week from the Presbyterian hospital, Charlotte, very much improved. Lowell may not be growing by leaps and bounds, but it is by no means in a dormant state.

On last Friday night the Lowell Masonic lodge held quite an interesting meeting. Mr. Clyde Craig, of Gastonia, lectured on the third degree. Several new members went the way it takes to be a Mason.

On Saturday afternoon, May 1, at 5:30 o'clock in the open, a pageant, "When Polly Was Queen of the May." Saturday, May 2, at 11 a. m. Annus sermon by Rev. Dr. T. W. Lingie, of Davidson college.

Monday, May 3, at 2 p. m. Graduating exercises. Literary address by Rev. Dr. Jas. H. Henderick, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Gastonia. Conferring of diplomas and warding of medals by Mr. E. B. Denny, of the Gastonia bar.

A. R. P. ORPHANAGE MAY COME TO LINWOOD

Associate Reformed Presbyterians Are Thinking of Locating Another Big Orphanage in Eastern Section of Congregation — Several Sites Are Being Considered By Committee — Matter Will Come Up Before Synod in Meeting Next Week — Considered Good Proposition For City and County.

If certain plans and suggestions are acted upon at the approaching meeting of the A. R. P. Synod in Gastonia next week, Linwood College at Crowders mountain may become the seat of a second large orphanage in the A. R. P. church and the site of a permanent summer assembly grounds for the holding of conferences and summer programs of that denomination.

It has been known for some time that the Linwood college property has been on the market for sale. In fact, a 60-day option on the property held by Dr. Lucian B. Morse, of Hendersonville and Chimney Rock, has just expired.

There is a strong probability that the Synod of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church will see fit to establish a second orphanage, according to Rev. J. L. Oates, pastor of the Yorkville A. R. P. church and a member of a committee appointed by Synod last year to investigate offers of orphanage sites.

Members of a committee on orphanage went to Sardis, Mecklenburg county, last Thursday to inspect a tract of 50 acres which the congregation at that place proposes to offer synod for the purpose of establishing an orphanage. The site is the property of a Charlotte, N. C., man who proposes to sell it to the congregation at a reduced price with the proviso that it be used for an orphanage.

It is understood that the A. R. P. congregation at Back Creek, N. C., will make an offer of a site for orphanage purposes to Synod when it meets in Gastonia, N. C., next Wednesday and there is also a probability that there will be other offers. There is no immediate prospect of the location of a second orphanage in South Carolina.

Monday evening, at 8 p. m., the high school will give a play, "Mistress of St. Ives," for which a small admission fee will be charged. All exercises will be held in the graded school auditorium.

CHASE IS INAUGURATED PRESIDENT OF UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA TODAY

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., April 28.—In the presence of representatives of more than a hundred colleges and societies, including thirty-three college presidents, and before thousands of alumni and visitors, Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase was today inaugurated President of the University of North Carolina.

Surrounding the new president as he was formally inaugurated were also Secretary Daniels, a trustee for many years of the University, and three former presidents, Dr. R. A. Alderman, Dr. George T. Winston and Dr. Francis P. Venable.

Following President Chase's inaugural address, greetings were extended to the new president and to the University of North Carolina by President Alderman of the University of Virginia, representing all state universities; by President William L. Poter of Wake Forest College, representing the colleges of North Carolina; by Superintendent of Public Instruction E. C. Brooks, representing the public school system of the state, and by W. N. Everett of the alumni, Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the faculty, and Emerson White, of the student body.

More than a thousand persons, including all the visiting educational leaders, marched in the academic procession across the campus to Memorial Hall, where the inaugural exercises were held. Included in the procession were the students, faculty, alumni, and trustees of the University, the county and city school superintendents of the state, members of the legislature, justices of the state supreme court, delegates from colleges, universities and societies, and visiting college and university presidents.

President Chase, who is 37 years old, has been connected with the University of North Carolina since 1910, as professor of psychology, acting dean of the college of liberal arts, and chairman of the faculty. He was elected President by the trustees in June, 1919, succeeding Edward Kidder Graham, who died of influenza in October, 1918.

SKETCH OF PRESIDENT CHASE. Harry Woodburn Chase, who on April 28 will be inaugurated president of the University of North Carolina, is a New Englander by family, birth, childhood, youth, training and education—but a North Carolinian by adoption and by virtue of the fact that he has poured the 10 best years of his life into the service of the state.

He was born at Groveland, Mass., April 11, 1883, and is therefore just being his 37th birthday. He studied at Dartmouth and at Clark University. From Dartmouth he received his A. B. degree in 1904 and his A. M. degree in 1906. At Clark University his study centered in philosophy, psychology, and education. He was director of the Clark University clinic for sub-normal children, 1909-10, and in June, 1910, he received his Ph. D. degree, being then 27 years old. The following September Dr. Chase entered the service of the University of North Carolina as professor of the philosophy of education and he has been connected with the university since that time. In 1914 he became professor of psychology in October, 1918, acting dean of the college of liberal arts; in January, 1919, chairman of the faculty and executive head of the institution; in June, 1919, president of the university. It is the first time North Carolina has sought a university president from north of Mason and Dixon's line since 1816 when Robert Hott Chapman, of New Jersey, became second president.

President Chase's earlier professional work was closely connected with his chosen field of research and teaching. He has made numerous investigations in educational psychology, he has been a frequent contributor to educational and philosophical publications, he has attracted attention with writings on such subjects as The Adolescent Imagination, The Psychology of Social Science, Freud's Theories of the Unconscious, The Inheritance of Acquired Modifications of Behavior. He has been a member of such learned societies as the American Psychological Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the South Society for Philosophy and Psychology.

At North Carolina his work carried him somewhat away from limited spheres of study into executive leadership, more so as his executive ability grew under added responsibility. He served on the faculty committee on the curriculum and on the graduate school. In the school of education, in the summer school, in the North Carolina Teachers' Assembly he tied himself to the teachers of the state.

To the development of the bureau of extension, struggling for a start in its early university days, he brought all his study of the social sciences and he has been a leader in the epoch-making movement of the university to reach all the people of the state. His personal leadership is largely responsible for the development of the school of public welfare to train social workers, a definite answer to a direct call, sounded with trumpet loudness in the war years. He has youth, strength, breadth, vision, and the will to action, and he assumes leadership with a great chance to blaze an educational trail in the new south.

Will the labor board agree immediately to hear and endeavor to adjust the differences between the railroads and their employees and the latter will return to work."
