

Fall Fishing in Coastal Waters Gets Off To Excellent Start as October Arrives

Fall fishing in the coastal waters of Southeastern North Carolina has gotten off to an excellent start with phenomenal catches of channel bass, king mackerel, large size blue fish and Spanish mackerel, and grey trout. With calm cooler weather now prevailing, thousands of fishermen from all over North Carolina and many other states are trying their luck with excellent results from the surf, the many ocean side fishing piers, and the scores of charter boats for offshore fishing. During the past week, charter boats at Sneads Ferry, Wrightsville, Carolina Beach, Southport, Lockwood Folly and Shallotte inlets, with fishing parties making excellent catches daily of blue fish, large Spanish and king mackerel. A number of sailfish are being hooked and landed by boats from Southport, fishing Fryling Pan Shoals, and off Wrightsville Beach. Hundreds of pier fishermen at Surf City, New Topsail Beach, Wrightsville, Carolina, Kure and Fort Fisher beaches are making excellent catches of blues, trout, puppy drum, spots, pompano, and flounder.

Waltonites in large numbers are dotting the unrestricted beach strands, casting and plugging for channel bass, grey and speckled trout, bluefish, flounder, spots and Virginia mullets. A large number of large channel bass are being hauled in daily by surf casters.

Outlaw's Bridge

(By Mrs. J. H. Parker)
