No invitations are being mailed, but friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend.

Women of Faison Church Have Meeting

Women of the Faison Presbyterian church met last Monday in the church. In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. M. Baugham, vice-president, presided.

The Bible study, "Anxious Moments," taken from the book, "Released Power for Today," by the Rev. T. H. McMill, Jr., was given by Mrs. J. E. Faison.

During the business session, Mrs. Baugham read the program for the year. Mrs. C. A. Decker presented the program, "What is the Church?"

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. D. Newton, Mrs. Solomon Powell, Mrs. Sam Bass, and Mrs. Nell Precythe.

Business Women Meet With Miss Martin

The Mount Olive Business and Professional Women's club met Thursday evening in the home of Miss Margaret Martin. Mrs. Helen Caviness was co-hostess.

Mrs. Ralph Joyner, president, presided over the meeting. For the program, Dr. Elizabeth Corkey, president of the Goldsboro club and assistant Health Officer for Wayne county, showed interesting films on tuberculosis. Dr. Corkey spoke briefly on the importance of having X-rays made.

It was announced during the meeting the Goldsboro club will have its annual "Bosses Night" banquet at the Goldsboro Country club February 18. Members of the Mount Olive club were extended an invitation to attend.

The club voted during the business session to set up a fund to be used in aiding some worthy girl or boy for educational purposes. Further plans will be made on this by a committee of teachers who were appointed by the president to investigate the matter.

During the social hour the hostesses served delicious refreshments.

Service League Meets With Mrs. Andrews

The Mount Olive Service League met last week in the home of Mrs. Floyd Andrews with Mrs. D. F. Odom, Sr., Mrs. L. G. Geddie, Mrs. R. H. Morton, and Mrs. Charles Matthews, assistant hostesses.

The president, Mrs. Hodges, presided during the business session. It was decided to buy a slide for the playground of the elementary school. The group voted to send the club woman magazine to each member.

Mrs. Hodges introduced Mrs. S. B. McPheeters, who gave the program. She spoke on "The Cure and Prevention of Cancer and Tuberculosis."

During the social hour the hostesses served chicken salad on lettuce, brownies, and coffee.

Wise Mothers Abandon Their Pre-Baby Work Schedule

BY EDNA MILES

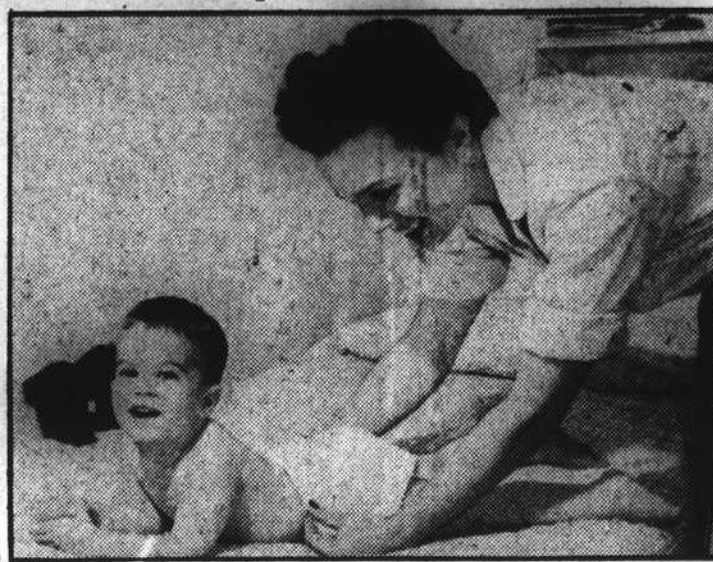

BRINGING a new baby home from the hospital means that your former household schedule goes out the window and that for about six weeks you devote about 18 hours of your working day to the baby.

Cutting corners and thus saving time will mean that you'll have time for much-needed rest. This means you can't have a shining house or elaborate meals. You may have to let dust collect while you wield a can opener.

Women who feel that they can use time when the baby's sleeping for housecleaning are only exhausting themselves. When the baby naps, take time out for a nap, too. You may not be able to show a clean house when your husband comes home, but you'll be a more relaxed, pleasant companion.

Don't feel that you shouldn't put baby pants on a small baby for fear of skin rash. You'll save yourself time and trouble by equipping him with several pairs of new waterproof, machine-washable rayon fabric pants. This means you've one less job to do by hand and that you've also relieved yourself of the task of changing (and washing) the baby's bedclothes three or four times a day.

These new baby pants can go into the machine with other laundry and then be hung up to dry. With a half dozen pairs, you can save yourself both time and work.

Right off baby and into the washing machine. These new waterproof-rayon, machine-washable baby pants save Mother extra work.

TEEN TROUBLES

By John Douglas, M.D., and Mary Douglas

QUESTION: How much should a boy spend on a date?

ANSWER: Not much. It's foolish for a girl to expect a boy to spend more than he can comfortably afford, because it means he can't date very often. Besides, there are so many things you can do that are fun but don't cost much money. (Record sessions, for example, and coke dates.)

Every smart girl will keep her date's pocketbook in mind when making plans.

If he asks you to dinner and you don't know what his allowance is—play safe and go on the assumption that it isn't very much. After you've looked at the menu, ask him what he is going to have. That will give you an indication as to how much he can spend. If he doesn't know what he's going to have, ask him what sounds good to him. If he still won't give, you'll be wise to show enthusiasm for one of the less expensive "Table d'hote" dinners.

You can use the same technique when he invites you to have a coke after the movie. If he says a coke—then make it a coke. It could be extremely embarrassing if you ordered something he couldn't pay for.

Don't take a chance on being classified as one of those "too expensive" gals.

QUESTION: What should you do when someone in the crowd tells an off-color joke?

ANSWER: There is only one well-bred thing to do: pretend you didn't hear it. No matter how loud the others laugh—you didn't hear it. Don't smile. Don't frown. Try to show absolute blankness in your face. And change the subject immediately.

There will be a women's school at Stanford church Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

mediately. It isn't difficult to do this. Just say something about something. It doesn't matter how you change the subject. Everybody will know why you did it, especially the one who told the joke. And remember, you don't need to apologize to anybody for not liking dirty stories.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

The Rev. T. W. Williams, pastor; Mack Herring, elected representative; E. J. Bundy, Associational Brotherhood president, and C. O. Whitley, chairman of Christian education, represented the church at the Associational Executive council meeting Monday night in the Beaulville church.

Schedule for this week: Wednesday: Prayer service at 7:30.

Thursday: Cherub choir rehearsal at 3 p.m.; Adult choir practice at 7:30.

Friday: Melody choir rehearsal; Intermediate G.A.'s meet at the Annex at 3:30 p.m.

"Spiritual Life Week" will begin Monday evening, January 31, and continue through Friday, February 4. Teachers for the week are the Rev. Ralph Cannon, the Rev. Eugene Hager, Miss Tookie Cashwell, and Mrs. Gilmar Cross.

"Please do not think of this as just a study course," the Rev. Mr. Williams stated. Credit for either Sunday school or Training Union will be awarded, he said.
