Modern Etiquette

Q—When writing a social letter, is it proper to close the letter with "Respectfully yours?"

A—No, this form is used for business letters, or when an employee is writing to his employer. If the person is of equal social position, it would be better to close the letter with "Sincerely yours."

Q—What is the proper way to eat spaghetti at the table?

A—With the fork. Twist the spaghetti against the plate to wind it about the fork. If you cannot manage this gracefully—and many cannot—cut it with the fork.

Q—After a death in a family, should the calls of sympathy be returned?

A—Such calls are not returned, since the family is in mourning and is not making social visits.

Q—When should the bridegroom and his best man arrive at the church for the wedding?

A—At least 15 minutes prior to the ceremony, thus allowing time for any delay. Upon their arrival, they should repair to the vestry where the clergyman awaits them. They enter through a side door, not through the church.

Q—When dining with guests, is it proper for one to continue to eat while someone else is talking to one?

A—It is perfectly proper to continue eating while listening to someone else's conversation.

Q—May an invitation be written on a visiting card?

A—Yes; a card may be used for an invitation to a tea to meet a guest, an informal dance, or a bridge party.

Q—Is it good form to state in an introduction, "I want to make you acquainted with, etc.?"

A—This is considered very bad form, as is the other oft-used expression, "Shake hands with." If it is much better just to say, "Mr. Jones, Mr. Williams," or, "Mrs. Jones, may I present Mr. Williams?"

Q—If one is but slightly acquainted with a bride and bridegroom, and an invitation to the wedding is received, is it necessary to send a gift?

A—No; under these circumstances, it is entirely optional.

Q—Is it correct to use a fork to place jelly on bread?

A—No; the knife is used for this purpose.

Q—If one is walking with a

MRS. PAUL HADDEN AVERY

Miss Doris Guy, of Calypso, and Paul Avery, of Erwin, Are Married

Miss Doris Evelyn Guy became the bride of Paul Hadden Avery in an afternoon ceremony held in the Calypso Baptist church Saturday, February 5, with the Rev. M. M. Turner officiating.

The bride, who was formerly employed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Charlotte, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Guy of Calypso.

The bride, who was formerly employed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Charlotte, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Guy of Calypso.

Mr. Avery is now employed in Gastonia. He is a graduate of N. C. State college and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. Avery of Erwin. He has formerly served two years in the Navy.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white Chantilly lace with long sleeves and a Queen Anne collar. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a white satin tiara decorated with seed pearls and she carried a white purple-throated orchid on a white Bible.

Her only attendant was Miss Barbara Jean Hackney of Charlotte.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Jeff D. Avery of Fayetteville, brother of the bridegroom, and L. S. Guy of Calypso, the bride's brother.

Mrs. Dennis Lane, soloist, and Mrs. W. H. Hurdle, pianist, presided the nuptial music.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bridal couple greeted guests in the vestibule of the church.

On return from their wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Avery will reside in Gastonia.

It's Simple to Dress For the Occasion

Do you know what to wear to a wedding? A funeral? An afternoon tea?

According to Julia McIver, State college extension specialist in clothing, you'll find that a few general rules are always helpful.

For a formal wedding before six o'clock, wear a street-length dress with hat and gloves. But for a formal wedding after six, you'll find a dinner dress the order of the day in most localities. And wear a head covering if the church requires it.

Funeral dress should be conservative in both style and color, says Miss McIver. It depends upon how near your relation is to the deceased. If very near, you'll be correct in black, navy, or grey. Hat and gloves should be worn, but should be simple.

For an afternoon tea a suit or dressy dress is in order. A hat, of course, is a must—and it can be fairly elaborate. Step out in pumps, carry a dressy bag (smaller than one for shopping) and be sure to wear your gloves. In summer, you may want to dress up one of your pretty cottons with an uncluttered hat of straw. But don't dispense with accessories. Wear your gloves, carry a small purse, and of course wear your best shoes.

When can a veil be worn in good taste, in general, says Miss McIver, veils are a little dressy for morning use, but they can be worn in church. They are proper hat accessories for afternoon and evening and can be used by themselves with evening costumes. However, the use of veils varies with the mode of hats at the time. They are never a "must."

Help your parents plan a party to which you can invite the boys without embarrassment. Several girls can give such a party—as co-hostesses. Plan plenty of activity. Be ready with more games than you will have time to finish. This will keep your party from sagging in the middle. Leave out the kissing games. Boys enjoy active games—like 3-legged races or balloon tennis.

Have your party so well planned that everybody will have fun right up to the moment their parents hunk to take them home.

If your lad still doesn't break down and ask for a date—better forget him for awhile. Of course, he may be just keeping an eye on you for future reference—or he

Son for McManuses

The Rev. and Mrs. U. A. McManus, Jr., of Mount Olive, route 2, announce the birth of a daughter, February 12, at Henderson-Crumpler clinic. Mr. McManus is pastor of the Bear Marsh Baptist church.

On return from their wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Avery will reside in Gastonia.

QUICK JUMP for JUNIOR!

From baby shoes to basketball is no trick at all for Junior. Up he sprouts and before you know it he's taller than you are. To keep pace with his healthy growth, you provide accordingly.

You've grown pretty fast in other ways around the house. One, in particular, calls for special attention to present and future needs. The odds are 4 to 1 that ELECTRICALLY your home is "too Big for its Switches."

When your home was built, the original wiring was probably installed to handle lighting and a few electric appliances. But, like Junior, your use of electricity has "jumped" tremendously! NOW the same wiring must handle more than a score of major and minor appliances. Your needs have far outgrown the capacity of the wiring to serve your modern way of life. Such overloaded wires waste your current — cut appliance efficiency — interrupt your service by blowing fuses or tripping circuit-breakers.

To insure your comfort and safety, you can add to your present wiring — modernize it. Why not find out soon if your home has grown "too Big for its Switches"? Just call your electrical contractor (listed in YELLOW PAGES of phone book), or your nearest CP&L office. No obligation.

TEEN TROUBLES

By John Douglas, M.D., and Mary Douglas

Question—How can a girl get a boy to ask her for a date?

Answer—First, and very important, don't chase him. Don't be obvious. Boys run from girls who do either.

Now for some things you can do—without being obvious:

1. Make yourself as attractive as possible. Not sexy looking—but just neat and clean and nicely (but not showily) dressed.

Keep your sweaters, blouses, scarves, gloves, etc. fresh. Keep your hair, teeth and skin shining clean. And not too much makeup.

2. Look happy. This is very important. Boys think a glum-looking girl is either stuck-up or a sad sack. They are attracted to a happy look. It means smiling a lot and being nice to everybody. It means never saying mean things about people. It means being interested in a lot of things besides yourself. It means going out of your way a bit to help people. It means working for good grades in school. (Boys don't like dumb girls.)

3. Practice being friendly with everybody. Smile and say, "Hi," to new students who may be feeling lonely — and to your own friends, including the boy you have in mind. (He can't think you're chasing him, if you do it to others, too!)

4. Help your parents plan a party to which you can invite the boys without embarrassment. Several girls can give such a party—as co-hostesses. Plan plenty of activity. Be ready with more games than you will have time to finish. This will keep your party from sagging in the middle. Leave out the kissing games.
