A Large Percentage of the Cotton

Is Stapling 1" to 1-1/16"

HERE'S WHY-

· Next year is election year and form prices will come in for first consideration. We believe cotton prices will advance above government loan rates later in the season. Therefore, holding your cotton now and selling when prices go up can mean extra dollars in your pocket. However, if you sell your cotton immediately after it is ginned, without first learning its true value through a grade and staple report, you stand to lose hard-earned dollars in today's depressed market.

A Brand New Cotton Warehouse To Serve You-

Don't Take Chances—Deliver Your Cotton To Us

And Let Us Get You The Full Government Loan

EXTRA SERVICE — If your ginner has not sent in samples of your cotton, we will secure at NO EXTRA COST TO YOU the official government class of your cotton through the Government Classing Office. We are glad to provide this extra service.
