McFadyen Music Company

The McFadyen Music Company, Fayetteville, N. C., formerly with Raeford Furniture and Piano Co. of Raeford, manager, has grown to be the leading house in their line in the part of the State.

Even at this season of the year, the worst crop year in a quarter of a century, this house reports business good, and you remember last week these dealers advertised in The Journal the arrival of a carload of Gulbransen's, a high grade piano, although the house handles a number of other makes of good pianos and piano players.

Mr. McFadyen is a man of tireless energy, is honest, and the folks have found him pleasant to deal with, and he likes his line of business, and taken altogether, he is a booming success.

Mr. McFadyen appreciates the patronage his house is getting from Raeford and the county.

Stewart Leads Truck Across Mountains to Tennessee

The possibilities of motor transportation were demonstrated last week when Dugald Stewart's big truck, driven by Mr. Martin Kelley, made a trip clear across the State, trailed its way over the great Blue Ridge and then down into east Tennessee, moving the household goods and effects of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robertson from Laurinburg to Johnson City. The idea of moving by truck was advanced, but there were some of their friends in the doubting Thomas class and thought it could not be done successfully. But the goods were loaded on the big truck and Mr. Kelley started from Laurinburg at 7:30 last Tuesday morning. Thursday he drove into Johnson City. Mrs. Robertson writes back that when he unloaded their stuff it was "in as good shape as if we had moved only a few blocks in Laurinburg." Mr. Kelley says the roads were good all the way and he had no difficulty in making the trip.—Laurinburg Exchange.

In Honor of Mrs. Mary Smith

At her home at Dundarrach, N. C., on the evening of March 27, 1925, her dear Grandmother breathed her last. The mention of her name arouses many pleasant recollections in our mind. She gave encouragement to the weary and heavy hearts that were about her. She loved God's word and studied it for herself. It was the glory of her life. In her early years she shaped her course according to it, and followed it on to the going down of the sun.

Henceforth we move toward the dawn without her hand to lead us, and without her voice to give us cheer. But the memory of her will be to us an anchor in every storm, a beacon in the darkest night. Her love was the same through joy, sorrow and pain.

Sleep on in peace, dear Grandmother. We cannot do the memory justice while in this world we remain. We only meet you part again. We shall meet you here no more. But when we reach that Heavenly shore, we there shall meet to part no more.

God grant that her life of loving kindness and her willingness to help bear the burdens of others may enable us to render better service for our Master.

JOHN D. ROBINSON.

The people at St. Pauls are natural entertainers, or at least they are entertainers from their hearts. Presbytery may have been as well entertained somewhere but never better. It just couldn't be beaten.

All presbytery and all visitors to St. Pauls last week are still smiling over the cordiality of the reception given them by the brethren in St. Pauls, in respect to the denomination.

Colonel Alex. Takes A Trip.

Mr. Editor: Having been invited to attend at Ansonville, as the guests of Gen. and Mrs. Wm. A. Smith on the 15th at their beautiful home in the town and given by the veterans and ladies of Charlotte in honor of Gen. and Mrs. Smith, we left Dundarrach about 3 o'clock, motored through the country and towns—first Raeford thru Bowmore, Wagram, Laurel Hill when we struck the State Highway thru to Hamlet, Rockingham and across the Pee Dee River at Bluet's Falls ferry, about one and a half miles below the Falls thru to Lilesville, Wadesboro and to Ansonville at about 10 o'clock a. m. It was a fine day and we certainly enjoyed the ride just as the spring time is opening up and putting on its best dresses.

We were very glad to find the General very much improved after his serious illness. He was delighted to see so many of the Old Boys and that it's better than medicine to see them around him. There was about 30 or 35 veterans from Charlotte, Red Springs, Concord, Morvin and other places, all in the finest humor. I would like to give the names of the veterans but we can't recall names now, but it is sufficient just to see that Southern Cross of Honor. We all understand that we are one family. You can just imagine the pleasure there is in listening to their experiences in the army and through the days after the war when we all being reconstructed by the rule of the Scalawag and Carpetbagger, Freeman's Bureau Agents, U. S. Detectives and Garrisons in every little village of our land, all to catch up and punish the men whom they first called Traitors, then Rebels, then Secessionists and then Confederates. But we are glad and thankful they have not got us yet. A few are living and although the longer we live the more helpless we are getting we are proud that we have not been compelled to steal, for they are too honest for that and too proud to beg.

There were two old vets there that called the roll of their companies just as they did in the army. That was fine. Sixty years after the war and two men answered to their names from one company. But there was no answer from the roll of the other company.

After this we were invited to dinner spread on three long tables groaning under the weight of one of the finest picnic dinners we have ever seen.

There were several short speeches by veterans and a few ladies made short addresses.
