

HOKE COUNTY JOURNAL

Published at the postoffice at Raeford, N. C., as second-class matter.
Published Weekly by
RAEFORD PUBLISHING CO.
G. SCOTT POOLE, Editor.
Raeford, N. C., May 31st, 1928

We can spell KNOW, but we played thunder at it in our explanation of WHY WE ARE A CANDIDATE last week. Somehow, we had the letters necessary to spell the word, but they were out of order several times. We had years of experience, but we have never been able to account for the tricks type play on a man trying to make words of them.

Well, the primary is at hand. Put a cross mark in front of the name you wish to vote for. We had too large a paper last week. Work comes in bunches.

Miss Ora Maxwell, who has been teaching at Kenly, has returned home.

Mrs. E. S. Smith was operated on at Highsmith hospital Saturday and is reported doing well.

The big rains washed gulleys on the hill fields and flooded the flat land last week. We had much rain.

Miss Maude Poole has had a bad time for a week or more from a carbuncle in her nose. She is now improving.

Mrs. Ella Juat of Aberdeen recently spent a day in Raeford on business. Mrs. Juat still owns her property in Raeford.

Miss Arville Yorke who has been at Cullowee State Normal College, is visiting her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Maxwell.

Raeford has a well kept cemetery, thanks to the Woman's club and others who contribute to the expense account created by having work done there.

Mrs. Annie Culbreth McDaniel a sister of Mr. T. F. Culbreth of Raeford, was killed in an auto mobile wreck near Fayetteville Sunday evening. More later.

People can live on very little. The editor of The Journal had an abscess from the removal of a dead tooth last week, and he lived and did well on nothing for a week, except milk.

Misses Mary Douglas Smith, (who graduated this year) and Sarah Catherine Cromartie, Josephine Hall, Bennie McFadyen, Martha L. McLean have returned from Queens College, Charlotte.

Mr. W. R. Barrington gathered a gallon of snapbeans from his garden last Wednesday, the 23rd, and they were real nice, for he gave us enough for dinner Thursday. Only once have we known beans earlier here, that was 1921; but ye editor had some last Sunday.

The Board of Elections have declared the following candidates nominated for the offices to which they aspire in the general election in November, as they had no opposition:

- For State Senator
W. B. McQUEEN
- For County Treasurer
HERBERT McKEITHAN.
- For Solicitor Regarders Court
G. B. ROWLAND
