It appears that for several terms he conducted a school for wnite boys in the day and one for Negro youth at night. Dr. Knight showed that there was no evidence for the tradition that he attended Princeton University, made it clear that he probably did attend what is now Washington and Lee University and he read several letters from Chavis to his friend W. P. Mangum, prominent at the time as judge and United States Senator. In general it appeared that Chavis was regarded as a highly efficient teacher, that in temper he was very conservative, and that his work was greatly curtailed after the Nat Turner insurrection in 1831. Professor Knight's study will formally appear in the North Carolina Historical Quarterly for July.

NEGRO FOUND DEAD IN YARD

Willie Goodyear, colored, who lived on the Donahoe McQueen farm in Southern Hoke, near the Robeson County line, was found dead late Sunday afternoon in the yard of in the chest made by a shot gun and his body covered with guano sacks. It is said that his pocket knife was in his hand. Dr. G. W. Brown, acting coroner, empannelled a jury Monday and viewed the body after it had been brought to the undertaking establishment of Mr McDiarmid in Raeford. Sufficient witnesses were not available, however, to complete the inquest at that time and they clean-up campaign. We are all in-deferred the hearing until later. The body was buried by the county later. It is thought that McRae is guilty until Thursday. By doing this I am sure our town will be in a better condition and we will all feel better.

It is thought that there is guard of the crime, or, at any rate, he and his wife and four children disappeared after the killing and have not been seen since. Whether the deceased had the knife in his hand when killed or was placed there afterwards is not known.
