Williamsport To Train At Home Due To Travel Conditions.

By Elmer L. Schuyler

Williamsport, Pa. (special)—The Raeford friends of the Williamsport Grays will, we are sure, be glad to know that the Grays are back in the Eastern League. It would be fine if we could report that they would get their spring training in Raeford this year, but travel conditions and the gasoline situation will make a trip out of the question. Let's hope for better things a year hence.

Williamsport will take the place of Springfield, Mass., in the league. The franchise will be Williamsport-owned, but the 1944 team will be directed by John Cambria, a retired business man of Cincinnati, Ohio, who a dyed-in-the-wool baseball en-

Antioch School Matter Up For Settlement

Question Of Determining Continuation To Be Decided Monday By Board of Education.

The final decision concerning continued operation of the Antioch grad-ed school is expected to be reached Monday at the April meeting of the Hoke County Board of Education, it was stated yesterday by K. A. Mac donald, county superntendent.

Up for discussion last summer, final decision of the matter was left open until next Monday, when, the be agreed upon

A petition containing many names of patrons of the school sought the closing of the school last fall and permission for the children to attend the Raeford school. At the hear-ing on the petition a large delegation urged continuation of the school and decision was not reached by the board.

The school, once one of the mosopulous of the county with a large nigh school, has been operated in the last few years as a grammar school only, and each year attendance records have shown a decrease in average attendance for the past several years. Last year the average attendance dropped so that only two teachers were allowed for the 1943-44 session, and this year there has been a greater decrease and the average attendance so far indicates that only one teacher will be allowed by the State for the school next year.

Due to the fact that only one teacher will be alloted the school next year, but two arrangements are possible, according to the school officials ficials. One, that the school be con-tinued with that teacher dividing instruction among about three grades or two, that all children be brought to Raeford by bus and enrolled in the Raeford schools. USE OF BUILDING the latter decision is In case reached, it has been proposed that the Antioch building be converted into a school for vocational instrucsuch students be spent in practical training and classroom raining and classroom work as coarding students as such a school. The growth of vocational education in Hoke County High has been ex-ceptional and it is said that within a few years present facilities will be inadequate for a well-rounded voca-tional program. The Antioch school, with its beautiful site and well-constructed brick building would be ideal for such a school. Land coud be acquired and practical training in farm mechanics, carpentry, electricity could be expanded far beyond that possible with present facilities, it is said. Little additional construction would be necessary to provide buildings for a vocational school that would surpass anything in this section of the state
