

Apply Needed Lime But Not Too Much

"Get all the lime you need, but need all you use," is a slogan adopted for North Carolina farmers by the agronomy specialists of the Extension Service at State College. In the "Agronomy Suggestions for February" there are three drawings which show why lime is applied to acid soils, how the proper amount of lime benefits the plant, and how too much lime may cause crop losses. Where lime is not applied on acid soils, iron and aluminum go into solution and they keep the plant from getting sufficient phosphate, the agronomists explain.

Where the proper amount of lime is added to a soil, soil acids are neutralized, and calcium and magnesium are supplied the plant. Also, phosphate applied in fertilizers can be fully used by the plant.

Where too much lime is added, diseases may become worse and some plants may die. Also, such plant foods as manganese, boron, and iron cannot be used by the plant.

"Unless you have had a soil test made, do not apply more than one ton of lime per acre," say the agronomists.

Free soil tests may be obtained and growers can get help from the county agents and vocational agricultural teachers in taking soil samples and preparing them for shipment. Lime requirements for the various crops differ and, therefore, the grower should consider the "recipe" he is following in determining just how much lime to apply to a particular field.

Ask ARC For Bibles

CALCUTTA, India.—An American fighting unit on leave at Raeford has asked the American Red Cross for the several Bibles which it has in its possession.

After moving into a hardy location two weeks later, the group sent back the following note: "Send us up 100 Bibles."

Unusual requests come from American Red Cross field directors in advance positions of the Burma front.

One serviceman, just back from a jungle foxhole, wanted to procure a self-instruction course on snake charming.

A group of American fighting men, armed with a camera and one-day passes, wanted to know where they could rent an elephant "that was broken to ride."

The elephant was found, but the booklet on snake charming was ruled out in deference to military security measures.

ERNIE PYLE says: "This is your Red Cross"

"Something Fine to Behold"

By Ernie Pyle

EVERYWHERE I went there was the American Red Cross giving its services to our fighting men. It is something fine to behold, this touch of home which the men and women Red Cross workers are able to bring to our troops abroad.

When the Red Cross opens up in a new war theater, its growth has to be as fast as the growth of the Army. The way clubs spring up overnight in newly occupied centers, the way restaurants and dances and movies and clubmobiles and doughnut factories mushroom into life all over a new country, is something that still astonishes me.

Right in the field with their regiments are the Red Cross field directors, who act as a link between the soldiers and their homes.

In most of the hospitals, doing the recreational and welfare work for which the nurses can spare so little time, are the Red Cross hospital girls. With every medical unit are countless quantities of the indispensable blood plasma made from the voluntary blood donations of the American people.

Our soldiers and sailors abroad literally worship the Red Cross, and I personally can find nothing but praise to say about its program as I saw it in operation.
