State College
Answers Timely
Farm Questions

QUESTION: What is the best type of hog to select for breeding?
ANSWER: Jack Kelley, Extension swine specialist at State College, suggests that you breed for the "middle-of-the-road" type for postwar markets. Years ago most of the hogs were short and chunky, and then breeders sought to give the hogs more size. As a result, many of the animals have become too leggy and breeders are now seeking to produce animals that can be furnished at 200 to 240 pounds, but which can be carried to heavier weights, if the market warrants. All sows that are shy producers and those that produce slow gaining pigs should be eliminated.

QUESTION: How is the best way to put egg whites with other mixtures?
ANSWER: Home economists at State College suggest that you fold in gently the beaten egg whites with other mixtures to get the best combination, using a light under-and-over motion. For omelets and souffles, fold the heavy mixture into the beaten egg white, not the whites into the other mixture. Don't overmix, or you will lose some of the air you have already beaten into the egg whites.

QUESTION: Why are so many farmers getting all excited over growing alfalfa?
ANSWER: It's yields of high quality hay, for one reason. Another is that farmers are finding that the crop can be grown on a wide number of soil types successfully, if the soil is well prepared, the crop properly seeded with good inoculation, and that alfalfa responds to high fertilization, including borax. The average yield of tame hay in North Carolina is .92 of a ton as compared with 2.2 tons per acre for alfalfa this year. Total production of alfalfa hay is up 57 per cent and it is taking another jump this year.

Ginners Meet Plans For Better Cotton

A seven-point cotton improvement plan for North Carolina will be studied by members of the North Carolina Ginners' Association, when they meet at Raleigh on December 10 to plan a cooperative program with all other agricultural agencies interested in the future of cotton.

Fred Johnson, executive secretary of the association, says that a special feature of the meeting will be discussions on mechanized cotton production, and on ginning practices and equipment needed for handling machine-picked cotton.

The Agriculture Experiment Station and the Extension Service at State College, the State Department of Agriculture, and a number of other agricultural agencies will assist the cotton ginners in making plans for next year.

George Ashford of Red Springs is president of the organization and R. B. Reeves of Raleigh is treasurer. Vice presidents from the eastern, central, and western sections of the state are J. W. Robbins of Scotland Neck, E. L. Peterson of Clinton, and O. Z. Morgan of Shelby.

Members of the Board of Directors are J. Henry Vaughn of Elm City, Carl T. Hicks of Walsenburg, A. D. Cashion of Cornelius, Edwin Pate of Laurinburg, R. E. Evans of Charlotte, B. B. Everett of Palmyra, Lee R. Robbins of Rutherfordton, and John S. Jenkins of Norfolk, Va.

Men honorably discharged from the Army in the grade of Private, who have served as long as six months may now be enlisted with the Regular Army rating of PFC.

The Army enlistment period is no longer limited to a three year hitch. Enlistments for 18 months, two years, or three years are now authorized.

Veterans who reenlist in the Army within twenty days after their discharge may retain their present Army rating as a permanent rating in the Regular Army.

Soldiers reenlisting in the Army are paid reenlistment bonus of $50.00 for each year of active service since their last entry into service.
