"Race Patches" Set
Corn Growing Pace

D. A. Dunlap of the Spies section of Moore County gets a lion's share of the credit for stimulating grower interest and increasing corn yields in the south-central section of the state. Moore County Agent E. H. Garrison recalls that "years ago" Dunlap, even though living on a "poor, dry farm", had visions of producing 100 bushels of corn to the acre and took steps in that direction by starting neighborhood contest with "race patches". While the veteran farmer has not yet produced 100 bushels to the acre, he has twice gone past the 90 bushel mark and may reach the century goal in the county corn contest this year. He will plant N. C. T-23, a yellow hybrid.

"Mr. Dunlap's work in stimulating community interest did more to increase corn yields in this area than anything else I know about," Garrison said. Today, the county's corn yields are far above previous levels. A strong believer in cover crops, Mr. Dunlap has set the pace for his neighbors with hard work, following recommendation, terracing cover crops and proper fertilization.

"Not only is he a grower of corn but he is also producing good livestock. He has kept a purebred Guernsey bull for many years, being of the first farmers in the county to recognize the importance of good breeding stock. Recently adding mule production to his farm program, he now has a handsome pair of colts on pasture.

"Mr. Dan", as he is familiarly known to friends and neighbors, grows no cotton or tobacco, concentrating with outstanding success on corn, small grains, lespedeza and livestock."

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS!

Gossip over a back fence is everybody's business! ... And, in quite another way, your electric company, too, is everybody's business!

It belongs to you—to the man next door and the woman across the street—to the people who rub shoulders with you in shops and trains and buses.

All types and kinds of folks are on our stockholder list—housewives, farmers, merchants, teachers, doctors, nurses. They're the direct owners.

And there are countless indirect owners. Even if you don't own a share of our stock yourself, you probably have a stake in this company through your life insurance policy or savings account.

Why? Because banks and insurance companies—who handle your savings—must invest those funds wisely. Next to War Bonds, one of their largest investments is public utility securities. They know that sound business management has made cheap, dependable electric power a basic part of the American way of life.

So, whether you realize it or not—your electric light and power company is not just our business—it's your business.

Hints To Farm
Homemakers

When working out a family spending plan, remember to include the children, family life specialists say. A child's experience in handling money is part of the training which home life provides.

Some families start the youngsters off by making them responsible for a small allowance. Then as the children grow older, they learn more about the needs and problems of the family as a whole. Children are usually more willing to go without some of the things they would like to have, if they see their responsibility in relation to needs of others.

Few housewives would admit spending time on trash. Yet in every home there are daily accumulations of waste which cause time-consuming clutter unless proper storage and systematic disposal is planned, say household management specialists. In the kitchen, especially, waste needs to be organized—garbage as well as bags, paper, boxes, bottles and cans. In the rest of the house there are newspapers, magazines, and old clothes.

Some of this "trash" may be saved and used again by thrifty housewives if they have space to keep it. Some may be given away or sold for salvage the rest should be collected and discarded promptly. In many kitchens a drawer or a rack may be used to hold paper bags, wrapping paper and string. An upper shelf may be given to jars and glasses that can be reused for home canning and preserving.

Too often magazines are allowed to pile up, filling needed space and catching dust. A better plan is to pass them regularly to the many hospitals, recreation centers or other institutions in need of reading matter.

A waste basket in every room will save much time. Garbage should be kept tightly covered both indoors and out and disposed of as promptly as possible. Other trash should be burned regularly or kept in a covered container until carried away.

Inland Water
Fishing Closed
On April 6

Easter holidays excepted; year-round fishing on larger lakes and waters.

Raleigh -- Sport fishing for warm water species in the inland waters of the Piedmont and Eastern Carolina will be closed from April 6 through May 19, both dates inclusive. Season runs through April 14 in mountain counties, according to a reminder from Dr. Willis King, State Fish Biologist.

During the period it will be illegal to fish by any means in any of the creeks and small rivers of the state. However lakes and larger impoundments designated for commercial and year round fishing will not be affected. C. D. Kirkpatrick, Chief of Law Enforcement for the Division, has reminded the game and fish protectors to be alert for violators.

By special concession of the Board of Conservation and Development and the North Carolina Game Committee, fishing for all species will be permitted during the Easter Holidays, April 20 to April 22, inclusive, on all areas open to public fishing. The trout season opens April 15 and extends through August 31 in all sections of the western counties except the cooperative wildlife management areas of the national forest. These areas open sometime after May 1.

With warm spells whetting the urge, coastal fishing got off to an early start this season and some sizeable catches have been reported. Confined by the closed season, sport fishermen are expected to try their hand around Oregon Inlet and Cape Hatteras where the big red drum are reported running the best they have in several years. In the inland waters, fishermen will be shoving off from the TVA impoundments in the west and from Lake Phelps, East Lake, Waccamaw and others where the above restrictions on the season are not applied.
