AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SUNDAY MORNING

Next Sunday will be a day of dedication in the Presbyterian Church. At the morning service the new church will be dedicated with the sermon being preached by Dr. J. McDowell Richards, president of Columbia Theological Seminary, Decatur, Georgia. At the evening service at 7:30 o'clock the organ will be dedicated. After a brief service of dedication Dean Robert Reuter of the music department of Flora MacDonald college will give an organ recital.

Former pastors of the church, the Rev. L. A. McLaurin of Mullins, South Carolina, and Dr. Watson M. Fairley of Montreat have been invited to participate in these services. It is definitely understood that Mr. McLaurin will be present, but recent word from Dr. Fairley indicates that he may be unable to attend on account of illness.

The dedication services on Sunday will mark the completion of the reconstruction project which became necessary when fire partially destroyed the building on October 23rd, 1943. With the aid of a church architect the church was completely redesigned, and the restoration was planned around these new specifications. The first service in the church was held on Sunday, December 23rd, 1945.

The organ was installed in time for the first service in the new church and has been enjoyed by the congregation in all of the services of the church. The recital Sunday evening by Dean Reuter will give the people of Raeford an opportunity to hear the organ in recital for the first time. An invitation is extended to all the public to attend both of these services.
