FASTER -- FASTER -- FASTER -- This "slasher" which storehes and winds thread twice liters an first up models on many widthe of material is an example of the type of new equipment on which the called radia are now spending $50,000,000 a year. The Cotton Mills information Service has estimated that be in-dustry will spend a hundred million dollars a year for the next five years in renovating, huilding and new equipment. Equipment manufacturers believe that better faster machinery like this shaher will help the American mills to hold their world markets in spite of the lower wage rates in foreign textile plants.
