200 Jobs at a Time

WHEN electricity works for you on your farm you have a hired hand who never leaves — never tires — never grumbles — and who works for remarkably low wages.

There are more than two hundred jobs your electrical hired hand can do on your farm. He can milk the cows — grind the feed — saw the wood — fill the silo or hay loft . . . can even cure wet hay in the loft. The modern farm depends more and more on electricity to increase production — save time — and increase profits. You should be sure that you are using your electricity to best advantage on your farm.

Agricultural Representatives of this Company are always glad to help you with applications of electricity to your particular farm operations. There is no obligation for this service. Just call our nearest office.
