Poole's Medley
BY D. SCOTT POOLE
A great deal of the time since I came upon this stage of action, I observed many people were having a hard time to live, for prices of the products they contributed to the world's food supply were low.

My observation proves to me, if an educated man, who has a vivid imagination, can make fiction sound like a true story, he is capable of doing much harm in a religious way. They are the Devil's employees.

At "The Surrender" and Freedom of the slaves, the country went to work to a man and a woman, and they made good crops. I have heard them talk of the crops of 1865, and while prices stayed up they made money.

We sowed wheat oats, rye on all the land we did not want to plant cotton or corn, and only a few in our section ever bought any commercial fertilizers.

John Baton, (the same as Bethune, he said) built his house over a small creek, and he lived there until the day of his death. He was a mechanic by trade, and farmed little.

Jesse Thomas was an old man when I can first remember him, and his wife was also old, the best of old creatures. She gave me something to eat as soon as I arrived-corn bread with butter on it.

Jesse Thomas owned a grist, corn mill, and he stayed there day and night, if he had anything to grind. He told me one night he found a big moccasin lying across his breast. He slept in the mill because there were all the bags of grain there was room for, and folks might steal it.

We had a large dog named Ring, and he was our guard day and night. Somebody's dog crippled Thomas' hogs, and he said it was Ring who did it so he shot him in the presence of the whole school.

I heard a preacher say once in a sermon that if you do not learn the Multiplication Table before you are forty, you will never learn it. I know I used to memorize hymns, Scripture, and Psalms, in particular, but after I passed forty, memorizing was almost an impossibility.

Can you name the Presidents of the United States in order-as they served? Begin with Washington and end with Truman.

It is good news for the taxpayers to learn that both Hoke County and Raeford are out of debt. Both have paid a large sum of interest.

Credit is a great thing to a town, but it can be easily strained and that is an unfortunate situation.

A good living is a living on good things. You may not have expensive luxuries, but you may enjoy real good things to eat every day.

It is a sin to waste. The cotton, scattered along the roads between the farm where it grew and the gin, would clothe one member of the family.

If anyone has committed an unforgivable sin politically, Henry Wallace is the one. Any man who goes thousands of miles from home to slander his own people, to avowed enemies, does not deserve citizenship in the
