will deliver the main address at the Women's meeting at the North Carolina Farm Bureau's 13th annual Convention in Asheville, February 13-17, it was announced today.

This year's women's program is planned around the theme "Building a Better Rural North Carolina." It is expected to attract the largest number of rural women in the history of the state organization, Mrs. B. B. Everett, Palmyra, State Chairman, said.

Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, Chicago, Administrative Director, Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will lead the Candlelighting Vesper Service which customarily marks the official opening of the annual meeting.

Appearing on the program also will be Mrs. O. L. Yates, Waynesville, Chairman of the Haywood County unit; Mrs. P. N. Taylor, White Plains, and Mrs. W. W. Eagles, Macclesfield, members of the State Board of Directors, and Mrs. H. H. Bullock, Columbus County Secretary.

The musical part of the program will include vocal solos by Mrs. L. M. Massey, Zebulon, and Douglas Bolton, Asheville.

Mrs. Everett will preside at the Vesper Service on Sunday evening February 13, and Mrs. Herman Baker, Farmville, Vice-Chairman of the State FB Associated Women, at the Monday session.

Twenty-eight women attended the meeting of the Hoke County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs on the afternoon of January 10. New officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. John Baker; Vice-President, Mrs. J. R. Blue. The Council members voted at the meeting to charge non-club families for the use of the wheel chair and the hospital bed which are owned by the Hoke County Club women. They also voted to use a score card for judging the activities of the clubs this year.

The Pine Forest Club women spent one afternoon at their community building cleaning the grounds, hanging new curtains and painting the benches.

On the evening of January 21 these same women served a chicken supper to the class of Hoke County teachers who concluded their class instruction on County Resources. Each person present received a favor significant of some phase of Home Demonstration Club work. Many of the favors were donated by business firms in the county.

The Home Agent spent one day in Clinton, N. C. where she attended a meeting of Agents from the twenty southeastern counties. One thousand pine seedlings were ordered for Myrna Almond, a 4-H club girl, who lives in the Ashmont community.

Home Demonstration Club women in every community in the county assisted with the Polio drive in January. Most of the clubs gave five or 10 dollars donation to the drive.

4-H clubs also studied their organization at January meetings.

The Home Agent attended a AAAA meeting for Veterans and other interested farmers at which time Mr. Nicholson, Field Representative, from Raleigh discussed the 1949 Program and practices.

Disabled Vets May Take Farm G. I. Training

Able-bodied veterans have no monopoly on institutional on-farm training.

A World War II veteran with a service-connected ailment can take this training, too, according to the Veterans Administration, if VA considers the training necessary for him to overcome his handicap. In fact, he may get training for as long as is necessary to restore his ability to work, up to a total of four years.

Unlike able-bodied veterans who apply at the school in their community approved for on-farm training, disabled veterans should apply for this training at their nearest VA office. They should take along a certified or photostatic copy of their discharge papers. If they are married or have dependents, they should bring marriage certificate and other documents that will establish their dependency claims.

Before they begin institutional on-farm training, disabled veterans are interviewed by VA counselors who help them decide on the type of training they should take.

BURNING PERMITS

Burning permits are required for brush or woodland burning during the forest fire season months of February, March and April. These permits may be obtained from Hoke County Warden, C. F. McBryde, any Hoke County Fire Tower, District Fire Warden or other authorized representative.

These permits cost nothing and the law is designed to protect your woodlots from indiscriminate burning.

Obtaining a permit does not relieve the permittee of responsibility if the fire gets out of control. To be safe, observe the following rules:

1. Obtain a permit and notify your neighbors of your intention to burn.
2. Plow a good fire line around the area to be burned.
3. Burn only after a good rain when the woods are damp and fire will not spread.
4. Burn in the evening and on days when there is no wind and the humidity is high.
5. Keep fire fighting tools and a supply of water on hand while burning.
6. Keep your brush piles small.
7. Patrol the area after the burning is completed.
