Corn War Trophy Goes On Display

North Carolinians had their first chance last week to see the challenge trophy which is at stake in the "corn war" between the Old North State and Virginia.

A window display featuring the trophy and pictures of Governors Scott and Tuck was placed on exhibit in Raleigh Wednesday morning. This week it is being shown in Troy, Montgomery County.

Frank Daniels of Raleigh, chairman of Governor Scott's corn contest publicity committee, said the display will be exhibited in Asheboro, Randolph County, during the week of May 16; in Marion, McDowell County, the week of May 23; and at fertilizer dealers' meetings in Asheville, Asheboro, Fayetteville, Tarboro, and Elizabeth City during the week of May 30.

The display was prepared by the National Fertilizer Association which is donating the 30-inch-high trophy to the winning State. The exhibit includes the challenge by Governor Tuck, the acceptance by Governor Scott, and pointers on "what it takes to win" and "what it means to win."

Northwest for such projects as power development, while far smaller sums are being allotted to the South. He then charged that such legislation as Taft-Hartley and a higher Minimum wage is aimed directly at the ## South.

Apparently, Mr. Chatham is much in favor of the Taft-Hartley Act. Although he does think some amendments to it are necessary.

"We have had more labor peace since Taft-Hartley than since 1926," he said.

From all indications the Congressman thinks wages to be pretty well adjusted in the South. This problem, he should be well acquainted with (both from the standpoint of the employer and the employee) since he is the manufacturer of the well-known "Chatham" blankets. He revealed that he expects to vote for a "medium" wage. The present minimum wage is 40 cents per hour. So, it is assumed that he regards a medium wage as about 50 or 60 cents an hour. He followed his viewpoint on labor with the quotation from Lincoln: "You can't help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer."

The speech of Mr. Chatham was quite effective in stirring-up the rebel spirit in the Southerners. Concluding with a punch that brought a round of applause from the audience, he said: "The South should stand up, get up on its hind legs, and fight it out!"
