HOKE HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Miss Doris Bradley resumed her work as public school music and voice teacher in the high school on Monday of this week.

Mr. Wrenn took the band members to Red Springs Wednesday to participate in the Cotton Festival parade.

Fanette Gore, junior in the local high school, represented Raeford as one of the Maids of Cotton in the cotton fashion show staged in connection with the Cotton Festival at Red Springs Wednesday.

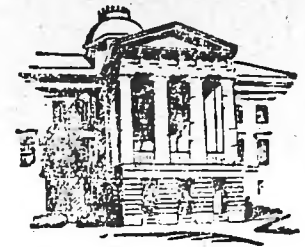

The members of the Junior class are selling magazines to help finance their junior-senior banquet which will be given sometime during the spring. Joan Pickler won $5.00 for selling the most magazines during the first five days of the campaign.

Miss Priest's biology classes have just finished a unit on "Why we Study Biology." In the unit the evils of superstitions are brought out. This unit helps the pupils to enjoy nature, to solve their social problems, and to adjust themselves in the world. In connection with this study two films were used as visual aids: "The Life of Louis Pasteur" and "The Life of Edward Jenner."

At a recent meeting of the Beta Club the following officers were elected: Elizabeth Suddreth, president; Jane McKeithan, vice-president; Elsie Moss, secretary; and James Tapp, treasurer.

Miss William's tenth grade English classes handed in their first essays on Monday. The class period was spent having each pupil read his paper, and then the class gave constructive criticism on each theme.

Mrs. McGoogan recently attended Tri-County Vocational Home Economic Teachers' meeting in Ellerbe. Miss Mary Hines Leonard, assistant supervisor of home economic Education of the State Department, met with the group to help plan program of work for the year. THE TREND OF THE TIMES...

"OLE" Josh was sittin' on a keg in front of Lem's store the other day. Suddenly he looked up and drawled, "Did you fellers see where the Governor was down to Lumberton last week to help the Carolina Power & Light Company cut in their new steam plant to make electricity? They tell me they don't need any more electricity now. What do you think of that?"

Lem stopped sortin' apples to say, "Yep, they tell me that they don't really need that electricity now, but that they want to be sure they have it when they do need it. That's the trend of the times—don't ever be caught napping."

Lem was right. The trend of the times is don't be caught napping, and that is the reason the beer retailers of North Carolina are cooperating 100 per cent with the Malt Beverage Division of the North Carolina ABC Board. They are cooperating with the Malt Beverage Division to be sure that the people of North Carolina have the kind of retail beer establishments that the General Assembly had in mind when it established the Malt Beverage Division.

What goes on here?

Referee makes first down — or did he really just miss it? Field judge blocks out the nearest tackler — or was it clipping? If the officials call 'em — and play too — what kind of a game is that?

You wouldn't stand for that sort of thing on a football field — but it happens every day in the electric light and power business. Government not only regulates the electric companies — but is in competition with them at the same time!

The catch is that government sets up two different sets of rules. Government electric agencies pay little or no interest on borrowed money, and pay no Federal taxes — but electric companies do, and expect to. When government-in-the-power-business can't make ends meet — it gets a handout of tax money from the U. S. Treasury. Who foots the bill? American taxpayers — of whom you are one.

If government can get into the light and power business this way — it can get into every other business in just exactly the same way.

In sixty-odd years, the self-supporting electric companies have built for America the most and the best electric service in the world. While costs of everything else are way up (including the costs of making and delivering electricity) electric service is still the best bargain in the American family's budget... it does so much, and costs so little.

This is a good record for the thousands of people who work in power companies, and for the millions of people who invest savings in them.

Don't you think these men and women deserve a fair break?

The answer is yours to make, for government money is your money.
