

Poole's Medley

BY D. SCOTT POOLE

Governor Scott is endeavoring to have law enforcement officers enforce the law against bootleggers. That should be done, but liquor stores set a bad example for folks without conscience.

A general revival of the Christian Religion would do more toward enforcement than any thing else possible. Let's try it.

Union laborers are lawless when they strike, or just after they strike. They join the Union from selfishness and not liberality.

The difference between conditions now and when America was discovered is the result in the labor performed.

But both Capital and Labor deserves justice and brotherly consideration. Every man is his brother's keeper.

Clay soil retains fertility because in its makeup water does not leak through it so readily while sandy soil yields all it contains readily.

The Sunday School lessons for the third Quarter of this year were on the Book of Psalms. The people of all denominations should be better citizens after this study.

All the Sunday School lessons should be profitable, but the Psalms seem more popular, and the lessons may have been given more.

Not only are cotton crops short this year, but vegetables are not plentiful. But many vegetables may be grown even yet.

Neighborliness grew threadbare between those who supported the South, and those who refused to join the South's supporters.

Men who were of war age took to the woods and swamps rather than shoulder arms for their country, as they said. Neighborly feeling had a supreme test. Some of our neighbors were not friendly.

They did not call it drafting then; it was conscripting, and instead of enlisting they went to the woods and swamps.

All our neighbors were not friendly. There was unfriendliness, not only for the duration of the war, but afterwards. That was bad.

It is required of us that we be good, kind, helping neighbors and loving and helping one another. But not many live up to the requirement.

The church on the hill near our home was divided, and it never was reunited after the war.

Richmond and Montgomery Counties corner at Patterson's Bridge on Drowning Creek. The Richmond - Montgomery County line runs almost directly west to Mangum on the east bank of the Yadkin River and here meets the Rocky River, and converges in the Pee Dee River.

The old Brown Mill so well described by Miss Lassiter in last week's Citizen started me to thinking of the mills I have seen. That Brown Mill your correspondent wrote about is or was located on Bear Creek. South of that mill about twenty-five miles is the head of Drowning Creek, and four miles from the head of the creek is Dave Campbell's mill, and Jesse Thomas' Mill. A mile beyond Thomas' mill is the Old Clark site which had more than 100 acres in the lake. There is a valuable water power. There are now no more mills on Drowning Creek, but a place for two power

State College Hints To Farm Homemakers

Where many are fed, as in school lunchrooms, at church suppers and picnics, it is sometimes hard to serve food quickly in uniform portions, giving each plate its fair share and making the food supply 'go round'.

Those who often serve such groups can get good use from standard size scoops and ladles made for restaurants and hotels. Such tools are recommended to those serving school lunches by food specialists.

For serving school lunches or adult groups, the specialists say that ladles of 1-2 cup, 3-4 and 1 cup are especially useful. Half-cup and 3-4 cup portions are useful when serving vegetables, desserts, and many main dishes. Cup-size portions are usual for soups and beverages.

Scoops, sometimes called "dishers", are more convenient than ladles for serving thick mixtures, such as mashed potatoes, cottage cheese and salmon salad. Scoops come in sizes from No. 6 to No. 40. Size number indicate the number of leveled-off scoopsfuls in 1 quart. Convenient sizes for serving plates include No. 8 (1-2 cup) and No. 16 (1-4 cup). No. 16 (1-4 cup) and No. 20 (3-1 5 table-spoons) are handy for filling muffin or cupcakes batter. No. 40 (1-3 5 tablespoons) is helpful in making drop cookies of an even size.

Scoops and ladles of sizes commonly used may be found in some hardware stores. Hotel supply houses carry a larger line.

Meat loaf mixtures can be baked in muffin tins and individual servings are thus attractively acquired.
