SENATOR LENNON REPORTS

Washington—We were saddened by the death of Senator Lester Hunt of Wyoming.

GOP Majority
He had decided not to run for reelection due to bad health. He was on the floor of the Senate on Friday before his death Saturday morning. I had lunch with him on Thursday. Senator Hunt, a Democrat, had served with distinction in the Senate and was twice governor of his state. His successor, Senator E. D. (Ted) Crippa, a Republican, is the newest member of the Senate. He was appointed last Thursday by the Republican governor of Wyoming. This now gives the GOP an actual majority in the Senate. There are 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats, plus Independent Senator Morse.

Fall Elections
The narrow gap between the two parties makes this fall's elections very important. Many of my friends on both sides of the aisle are not wasting any time in their campaigns. Such is the great game of politics. With the Senate so evenly divided, there will be great national-wide attention given to all races this fall, particularly in the close states.

Moving Up
Until last week, Senator Ervin was the newest member of the Senate. He now moves up. Seniority is gained in this manner, and seniority is important in the Congress. Senator Ervin, by his previous service in the House, was already recognized with a number of Senators.

Last week, the office employees of the North Carolina delegation entertained the members at a buffet dinner. A part of the after dinner program was a joke telling contest between two teams of our delegation. It was a riot of humor. Judges voted a tie between the teams.

Reciprocal Trade
I supported the extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. The Senate divided over whether it should be a one-year or a three-year extension. I favored extending it for three years, because proper world trade is extremely important to our economy. Also, I have been interested in cutting off economic aid to foreign countries. I want them to become dependent upon their trade and self-help for strength, plus our military aid to those countries honestly trying to help stamp out aggressive communism.

The Commission
Last year, the President asked for and got a one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements in order to appoint a commission to study the whole field of world trade. This was done. It was called the Randall Commission, and it recommended the three-year extension of the present act with certain modifications. My friends on the other side of the aisle did not see fit to go along with the President's commission. While I realize that the problems are very complicated, my party has taken a historical position for free trade. I hope that we can get this work-out because I do not believe we can continue to pour billions of dollars in economic aid to other countries from our own taxpayers' pockets.

THE QUESTION — In 1932 a retired industrialist of Rockingham County tossed his hat into the political ring as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor. Most of the politicians didn't give him much of a chance. Some even felt sorry for him. But when the primary votes were cast Luther WILSON — A likely contender for the State YDC Presidency this fall is Henry Hall Wilson of Monroe who has just been nominated without opposition for his second term as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives from Union County. Wilson is an able young man and should be able to win unless something unforeseen happens.

JAMES — Dr. W. D. James, M.D., of Hamlet who was the Democratic nomination for State Senator in Richmond County over two opponents in the May 29 primary campaign chiefly on a platform calling for better health insurance laws. Dr. James has just written to this effect to the writer who with others sponsored legislation providing more adequate health

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A DRAFTING CASE

When the home craftsman starts to make his own plans for woodworking projects, he will need a few items of drafting equipment: T-square, triangles, protractor, curves, compass, paper and pencils. His problem of keeping his materials together, ready to use, is solved with a simple drafting case.

No dimensions are shown on the illustrative drawings because the size of the drafting board will be the controlling element. The case is made of 1-inch lumber, the slanted sides being about 6 inches high at one end and about 3 inches at the other. The inside shelf is attached with angle fasteners. The 3-inch box end is hinged to drop below the paper tray when the case is opened. The drafting board is hinged to the 6-inch end. Screen hooks keep the lid closed for carrying. A suit-case handle provides a grip. Strips of elastic cloth on the underside of the drafting board hold the T-square in place. Other strips, tacked to the shelf, will anchor the equipment.

Hodges was found to have a substantial lead over his nearest opponent, Roy Rowe of Pender County. Marshall Kurpees, Winston-Salem mayor who came in for publicity of an undesirable nature in the recent Scott-Lennon senatorial campaign ran a poor third.

We have always thought that Luther Hodges fell heir to a goodly number of votes just because his name was Hodges and Brandon Hodges was then serving as State Treasurer; and a second reason the dry forces over North Carolina were doing some quiet but effective work for the Rockingham County man. Without a doubt Luther Hodges was the ablest of the three and he has conducted the affairs of his office in a most commendable manner.

But the question now is: Will a Moore County industrialist, William Preston Saunders, who retired as vice-president and director of the Robbin Mills a few weeks ago follow in the footsteps of his UNC football captain and run for Lieutenant Governor, come the spring of 1956?

Like Thad Eure and some of the other would-be Governors, Stag is getting a little shopworn. Stag made a good Lieutenant Governor and we think he has made a good Commissioner of Agriculture but the farmers have never looked upon him as their champion as they did Kerr Scott. The difference could be that Kerr Scott would make a bee-line for his Haw River farm when his work was done in the Commissioner of Agriculture office whereas Stag and his beautiful and charming wife can often be seen the blooming season. This occurs more often in Western North Carolina than in the Coastal Plain.

QUESTION: What is 2,4,5-T?
ANSWER: The chemical 2,4,5-T (2,4,5-Trichlorophenoxyacetic) is similar to 2,4-D weed killer in common use in North Carolina at present, except that it is more effective than 2,4-D on some plants and less effective on others. It appears to be particularly more effective on some woody species such as blackberries, poison ivy, sweet gum, some oaks, rose and ribes. The chemical is more expensive than 2,4-D. In some cases increased concentrations of 2,4-D will do the job nearly as well and more economically than 2,4,5-T. The chemical is available as amines and esters. Esters are generally more effective.

QUESTION: What are the plant diseases which most often attack alfalfa grown in North Carolina?
ANSWER: Downy mildew, leaf spot, leaf blotch, black stem, anthracnose, and rust. But there recently has developed another serious threat to alfalfa in this state — the alfalfa stem nematode, which has spread into North Carolina from Virginia.

REVIVAL

The Rev. Don McCamish, gospel preacher and Steel Guitar player from Los Angeles, Calif., will conduct Revival Services nightly at the Foursquare Gospel Church, located at 506 E. Prospect Avenue starting Tuesday, July 6 at 7:30 p. m.

Mr. McCamish is one of the world's best Hawaiian Guitar players, as well as being an outstanding speaker. He has also had many offers from the entertainment world, but chooses to use his talent for God. His wife will also be singing gospel songs during the revival.

The pastor, Rev. Bill Hartness, extends a cordial welcome to all.

Who is America's biggest boss?

HE IS YOUR BOSS — everybody's boss.
He has the biggest say in whether or not you take home a fat pay envelope.

Who is he? The consumer—the person who buys, or does not buy, the product you have a part in making. If he thinks the product of your company is better than that of any competitor, and if he can get it at an attractive price, he'll buy it; your company will prosper; and there'll be more money for the wages and salaries of your company's employees.

If he can get a superior product elsewhere, or get it cheaper, of course he'll buy that.

By doing your full part in turning out the best possible product — and turning it out more efficiently, so that it can be sold at a lower price — you can persuade the "biggest boss" to buy it, and so make raises possible. The better you produce, the more you benefit, in the long run.

You are the boss when it comes to deciding what you will do with your dollars that don't have to be spent. Why not deposit them here, and be ready for future emergencies . . . opportunities? Next payday is a good time to start.
