How Would You Spend Extra Cash?

RALEIGH--Think you know how the other half of the family thinks? Try this sometime. Imagine that your family's income has just gone up 50 per cent. Then, without any discussion, you and your mate write down what you would do with the extra money. Compare notes. You may find you've been taking too much for granted, point out extension home economics specialists, North Carolina State University.

Social researchers at the University of Michigan tried this type of test on couples and didn't find much spontaneous agreement when it came to money matters.

With 10 possible choices of what they would do with more money, only 36 per cent of the husbands and wives picked the same area of spending.

But when couples did agree, the researchers found they agreed most about family security. Thirty-two couples, more than one out of three in the sample, said they wanted to "salt the money away." The researchers didn't ask them to specify, but families adding to their security usually follow a pattern of increasing their bank accounts, adding to their life insurance, buying saving bonds and similar investments.

In addition to the couples who agreed on this point, 16 husbands and 21 wives independently picked the security area.

"So perhaps there is some truth to the notion that women think more about possible troublesome times," the home economists point out.

Who is more likely to want to move to a better house? More husbands than wives, the researchers found.

What about buying a new car? Wives were more auto-conscious than husbands, according to the report.

The couples were also asked how they feel about shopping in general. "It is clear that wives are more likely to report they like to shop and husbands are more likely to report shopping is a bother," researchers found.

Read Revelation 5:11-14

When my eye too in this sight I fell at His feet like a dead man. And then he placed his right hand upon me and said: "Do not be afraid. I am the first and the last, the living one. I am he who was dead, and now you see me alive for timeless ages! I hold in my hand the keys of death and the grave. (Revelation 1:17-18, Phillips)

We grasp the greatness of God by contemplating His wonderful creation. We comprehend His boundless love when we consider the Savior He sent us. We perceive His measureless mercies when we feel the forgiveness of our sins. We marvel at His matchless wisdom when we ponder the precision of the universe.

Many have glimpsed God's holiness, but few have related their experiences. Isaiah, Ezekiel, Paul, John are among those who have told unforgettable experiences. Seeing the One so infinitely good and perfect commanded of these men of God their fullest powers of adoration. There followed a complete surrender and an unreserved willingness to do God's will, whatever the cost.

PRAYER: O holy Father, take our lives and let them be consecrated wholly to Thee. Our finite minds cannot comprehend Thee fully, but through Thy Son we have learned to know Thee as our Father, and in that relationship we find our rest. In the name of Thy Son we thank Thee, Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: God's holiness commands our fullest adoration and reverence. Roberta B. West (Montana) Copyright--THE UPPER ROOM
