Put Social Security Number On Tax Payments To IRS

Greensboro — Some North Carolina taxpayers make payments that cannot be properly credited to their account, according to J. E. Wall, District Director for North Carolina. This happens when a payment is received without an accompanying form or notice or becomes separated from identifying documents.

Payments that IRS can't identify are put in a special account until proper identification can be made, Wall said. This necessarily delays action on that account.

To avoid such identification problems, Wall asked taxpayers to put their Social Security number on their check or money order. It will also be helpful to note the type of tax and period covered by the payment.

Wall said money order stubs or cancelled checks should be kept in case you are requested to verify a payment.
