Charleston's Azaleas Bloom

Easter weekend visitors to Charleston's famous gardens will be rewarded with a colorful display of early azaleas blooming under a canopy of fragrant wisteria.

Telephone lines to Cypress, Magnolia and Middleton Place have been busy with inquiries. "Are the azaleas in bloom?" "Now the answer is a positive 'yes.'"

The long, cool spring will give an extended period of color going well into April. The prediction is that the weekend of April 10-12 will be especially rewarding to azalea fanciers.

Mild weather is perfect for the thousands of visitors who come to stroll and admire the beauties of Cypress, Magnolia and Middleton Place. Those tiring of exploring on foot are offered a change of pace at Cypress where boat rides are available.

Other blooms out this weekend include thousands of camellias, flowering trees and shrubs and a variety of early spring flowers. All three gardens are open every day.
