Garden Time

By M. E. Gardner

It is not too early to be thinking about bedding plants for summer enjoyment. Here is a good list of some of the better varieties:

We will begin with the ever-popular petunia and first list the eight varieties that have scored highest in our test plots. Peach Blossom - pink, free-flowering grandiflora (large-flowered); Rose Star - compact, uniform, red and white multiflora (many-flowered); Coral Cascade - low-growing, compact pink multiflora; Red Magic - uniform bright red multiflora; Candy Apple - excellent, more floriferous and uniform than Comanche grandiflora; Blue Danube - double dwarf grandiflora, similar to Blue Lace but lighter in color; Blue Jeans - pleasing light blue grandiflora, lighter in color than Capri; Valentine - excellent dark rose, double grandiflora.

Snappers: Floral Carpet - good dwarf bedding variety; Carioca - good medium height snapdragon for cutting; Rocket - excellent tall growing garden variety for both bedding and cutting. I think that you will be pleased with these snaps as they will add color and interest to your garden.

Margolds: Sparky - dwarf, gold and red; Spun Yellow - dwarf, compact with large flowers; Dolly - a dwarf yellow with large four-inch flowers; Gold Coin - this is a large variety, reaching a height of about two and one-half feet under good growing conditions. The flowers are large, sometimes three and one-half to four inches across.

Zinnia: State Fair - tall with large, five to six-inch flowers. Variety of colors: Pink Buttons - bushy dwarf type, about 12 inches; Yellow Zenith - this is another tall variety with five to six-inch flowers.
