CARD OF THANKS
 Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Jackson would like to express their sincere appreciation for the prayers, cards, flowers and visits received by Mrs. Jackson while a patient at Moore Memorial Hospital.

Jerusalem, May 31. Pentecost celebrations by Jerusalem's Jews were marred when a small but fanatical religious group caused a disturbance at a dwelling on the Street of Camels. The group was identified by police as disciples of Jesus the Nazarene who was executed at Golgotha following a similar disturbance during the Passover.

According to eyewitness reports, a meeting of the small group had been in progress in an upper room of the house of Mary, the Tanner's Wife. Shortly before 9:00 a.m., neighbors heard a loud commotion in the dwelling, the sound of many voices, all speaking loudly at the same time.

Earliest reports indicated that the group had been drinking and many of the participants appeared to be intoxicated. The scene was one of great confusion, with many of the Nazarene's followers speaking in an incoherent fashion. One angry neighbor threatened to petition the Council. "It is a shameful thing for people to conduct themselves like this during the Feast (of Weeks)," he told reporters.

Other eyewitnesses, however, maintained that the Nazarene's disciples, many of them Galileans, were not speaking incoherently, but in various foreign tongues and dialects. Levi Ben - Shuria, a Parthian merchant who has made his home in Jerusalem for the past fifteen years, said he heard one man speaking loudly in his native Parthian dialect. "I haven't heard my native tongue spoken since I left Parthia fifteen years ago," said the amazed merchant.

Several other foreign - born residents of Jerusalem told stories similar to that of Ben - Shuria. One, a baker originally from the Isle of Crete, insisted he heard several people speaking enthusiastically in his native tongue. Asked what these people were saying, the baker said: "They all seemed to be thanking and praising God for the wonderful things he has done. I never have heard such exuberance."

Despite many reports similar to these, most Jerusalem officials discounted these stories. "Mass hysteria and too much new wine!" said one. Some observers pointed out that it was very unlikely that the Nazarene's followers would be speaking in various foreign languages, since these men, for the most part, are uneducated Galileans. "Drunken babblers, yes!" said one scribe. "But linguists? Definitely not!"

Rabbi Wiseman who lives near the scene of the disturbance voiced surprise when informed of it. "What these people have to celebrate is beyond me," he said to a reporter. "Their leader was executed and humiliated and their movement thoroughly discredited; that should have been the end of it." The popular Jerusalem rabbi added: "It may take several more crosses to finish this Nazarene thing once and for all." Other authorities were reported to be considering various repressive measures.

As this paper goes to press it is reported that the crowd outside the building has still not been dispersed. Simon Peter, a fisherman from Capernaum, was reported addressing a large crowd. No advance copies of his sermon were available to members of the press.

Read John 14:1-7)
 He goeth before you.

What a notable event! The Christ who was dead appeared alive. Good Friday had brought darkness and sadness; the resurrection day brought gladness and joy.

In the early centuries it seemed the progress of the gospel of Christ and the new church would come to an end behind prison bars. Despite vigorous opposition and persecution, God's will prevailed, and the gospel spread more and more.

When at times the church and churchmen have lost sight of the straight and narrow way, God has produced reformers, saints, evangelists, prophets. Some have been put to death.

Christ ever goes before us. His power rolls away confining stones. His gospel destroys barriers. In His name the battle against man's sinfulness goes on, and bridges of understanding and goodwill are built.

PRAYER: We thank Thee, our Father, for Jesus the Christ. He has gone before us in death and in life: in death that our sins might be forgiven, in life that we shall have His inspiration and guidance and rise from the dead. We thank Thee in the name of our Savior, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven... Amen."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,
 Surveys have been conducted in many lands to find out what newspaper headline people would most like to see. Almost invariably their choice was CANCER CURE FOUND.

After the tremendous scientific triumph attained when men walked on the moon many people asked a pointed question: Why can't the same resources be devoted to finding a cancer cure? The American Cancer Society has told the nation that we are in a delicate and critical period in the history of cancer control. The Society has warned that the leveling off of government expenditures for cancer research is placing a heavy demand on the Society for increased support.

At the same time scientists have frankly indicated the difference between reaching for the moon and seeking the conquest of cancer. All the basic scientific knowledge was available when the moon project was undertaken. It became a matter of applying maximum technology and effort to the goal, and the goal was reached even before the scheduled time.

With respect to cancer, much of the scientific information is still to be discovered and unraveled. The innermost secrets of life processes are involved. Much has already been found and that's why one of three cancer patients is now being saved. The doctors tell us that with present knowledge it could be one of two saved if the cancer is diagnosed in time and properly treated.

But the difference between the moon project and the scientific war against cancer only points up the importance of getting our priorities straight. The American Cancer Society says that the cancer control effort is in jeopardy in two vital areas -- in the need for speedier and more effective application of research results to the cancer patient, and in the development of cancer research itself.

To help meet these urgent needs the Cancer Crusade this year deserves greater support than ever before.

Sincerely,
 Mrs. Daynie Crumpler
